South Americans Invited to Support Marshall Plan for Rebuilding Europe

Post Reporter

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 2.—President Truman pointedly invited South America today to join with United States in giving aid to the Marshall Plan for reconstruction of Europe.

Speaking bluntly at the final plenary session of the Inter-American Conference for Continental Peace and Security, the American President made it clear that America does not feel she has the sole obligation t ohelp Europe recover.

"Our resources are not unlimited," he reminded representatives of 18 Latin American countries wre later today signed a hemisphere mutual aid treaty with the United States and with one another.

The American President had traveled more than 5000 miles over sea and jungle by plane since Sunday morning, then 40 miles from Rio by automobile over a slippery, winding, fog-obscured mountain road this morning to make his speech.

U. S. Is Determined

In the main the address was one expressing satisfaction that nations of this hemisphere had been able to reach accord on all points implementing the Chapultepec mutual aid pact of two years ago.

He spoke in the plushy Hotel Quitandinha, in the Petropolis resort area 3000 feet up in the mountains, with opaque clouds swirling outside.

But the speech was far from merely laudatory.

It was more even than a summons to South America to go to the economic aid of Europe.

It was a reiteration that the United States is willing to make war to establish lasting peace.

This last certainly was meant for Russia by implication though Russia was not mentioned by name.

It occurred in the following passages which are given in sequence though out of context:

"The postwar era has brought us bitter disappointment and deep concern."

"We find that a number of nations are still subjected to a type of foreign domination which we fought to overcome. Many of the remaining peoples of Europe and Asia live under the shadow of armed aggression."

Human Rights Stressed

"Much of Europe's economic distress is due to the paralysis of political fear and uncertainty in addition to the devastation caused by war."

"The attainment of worldwide respect for essential human rights

Veterans Rush to Banks Here To Cash Terminal Leave Bonds

The Washington Post.

COMPLIMENTS OF "UNCLE SUGAR"—Navy veteran Eugene Beach, 22, of 1011 M st. nw., and his wife, Mrs. Rose Marie Beach, will use the cash from Beach's $225 terminal leave bond to pay off loan made for the arrival of their baby, Frances, now 7 months old.

World War II veterans cashing terminal leave bonds helped give District banks one of their busiest days since the 1933 bank holiday.

Students, newlyweds and fathers of large families made the heaviest inroads on their leave bonds. Tired tellers ruefully pointed out that the bond-cashing rush coincided with a Government pay day and the end of the three-day Labor Day weekend, creating a backlog of business from returning vacationists and firms which stayed open during the holiday.

Greenbelt's Tax Savings Topped 70%

Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., in the past seven years, has paid less than 30 per cent of the Federal taxes it would have been charged as a private corporation.

Patronage refunds, exempted from taxable income "whether justifiable or not," spelled the tax savings for the business cooperative of the New Deal-sponsored town of Greenbelt, Md.

The tax comparison report and observations were made public yesterday by the House Small Business Committee. It investigated operations of the cooperative, last month, labeled it a monopoly, and urged dissolution of its contract with the Federal Housing Authority. The report was prepared by Committee Counsel Willis J. Ballinger.

It was promptly called "misleading" by the Greenbelt cooperative.

Ballinger's chart showed the cooperative paid Federal income taxes totaling $25,299 for the seven years of 1940-46 (inclusive). Had the cooperative been a privately owned corporation, it would have had to pay $85,447 in similar taxation, he estimated.

Ballinger based his findings on a tax study made for the committee by William J. Warmack, certified public accountant.

The committee counsel pointed

Error in Listing Delays Payments To Idle Veterans

While hundreds of former servicemen waited in long lines to cash their terminal leave bonds yesterday, many of their former comrades sweated out long waits at the District Unemployment Compensation Board offices and left empty-handed.

Board officials explained the lack of unemployment compensation checks was caused by an improperly drawn check list. Through some snarl, 318 checks, or about one fourth of the total number distributed yesterday, were dated as of three weeks ago, according to Frank Preston, board representative.

He said the situation was additionally complicated because those persons scheduled to receive checks on Labor Day got in line yesterday, almost doubling the usual turnout. Preston said board workers would reissue the outdated checks and mail them to yesterday's disappointed applicants.

Trial Board Reversed

D. C. Commissioners Reinstate Officer Who Beat Student

The District Commissioners yesterday reversed the decision of a police trial board and reduced the penalty against Police Pvt. James A. Stewart from dismissal to a $400 fine.

The Commissioners approved the trial board recommendation that Pvt. Warren L. Garrett, with whom Stewart was tried, should be fined $350.

Both men were involved in a fracas with a Georgetown student, Daniel J. Fitzpatrick on June 4. Stewart was found guilty of maltreating and using unnecessary violence on Fitzpatrick, of conduct unbecoming an officer, and of being willfully and knowingly untruthful to a superior. Garrett was found guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer, of being willfully untruthful to a superior and of neglect of duty.

The Commissioners yesterday ordered that Stewart receive regular pay for the period of his suspension since July 25.

Police officials said Stewart's basic salary of $3396 per year will entitle him to $311 for the period from July 25 to the present. That represented more than 75 per cent of his fine. Garrett was restored to duty on July 24.

In forwarding the trial board reports to the District Commissioners, Maj. Robert Barrett, police superintendent, recommended approval of the finding and sentence of Garrett, but had written of Stewart's report:

"Attention is respectfully invited to the dissenting vote of a member of the trial board in which a fine of $400 was recommended in lieu of dismissal from the force."

The minority opinion was that of Capt. Walter T. Storm, one of the three board members. Other members of the board were Inspector Clement P. Cox, police property clerk, and Assistant Cor-

Domestic Record Hit

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Democrats across the country last night pounded the Republican record on prices, housing, labor and agriculture in the first broadcast political rally of its kind, but hit a strong National unity note.

Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, conducted the unusual political meeting from Washington, picking up Democratic speakers from six States.

Jumping the gun on the 1948 election, still a full year away, Sullivan appealed for "doorbell ringing" and hard work in the precinct to turn out the 60 million voters who stayed home last election day.

Coast-to-Coast Speeches

Speaker after speaker blamed the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress for inaction on vital domestic issues and predicted return of President Truman and a Democratic Congress in 1948. Speeches by Sullivan, Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York, Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas of California, Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis, President Marshall Hanley of the Young Democratic Clubs of Indiana, Senator Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania and Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut were piped into local Democratic rallies from coast to coast.

Only one eschewed politics. Senator McMahon appealed for continued bipartisan unity on foreign affairs to make the Marshall Plan a success. Denouncing Russian overriding of the American proposal for international control of atomic energy, McMahon said this Government is attaining "ever greater superiority in atomic energy production, including the making of atomic bombs.

United Against Red Expansion

Said McMahon:

"Because we have failed to succeed in securing agreement in the control of weapons of mass destruction; because we have seen Russia is pursuing an aggressive expansionist policy on every from because we see that the Curtain' is ever becoming Weekmveloping and rigid, we York income unified in our determ Istanbul that Russia shall not Bangkok intrigue or by force ac Honolulu the domination of Europe See you. Rail Workers Get 15½ ct. Wage Boost

Nonoperating Hike May Lead Other Carrier Employes To Demand Raise

Chicago, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Nation's one million non-operating railroad workers were awarded a 15½ cents hourly wage boost today which the carriers estimated would increase their payroll costs $438,340,000 annually.

The railroads and 17 unions affected did not comment immediately on the wage increase, which was awarded by a six-man arbitration board. However, in recent testimony before the board, Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington System, asserted that "adding to the already inflated railroad payrolls . . . would immediately necessitate increasing railroad rates."

Other Demands Possible

The unions originally demanded a 20 cents hourly wage increase but agreed in advance with the railroads to accept the arbitration board's decision. The railroads had argued that no increase should be granted.

The nonoperating personnel affected involve such employes as clerks, telegraphers, maintenance men and others not employed directly in the running of trains.

Executives of the 350,000 operating employes announced they would meet in Cleveland Monday to consider adding a wage demand to their previous request for changes in 44 working rules. The railroads contended the working rules changes alone would boost operating costs by one billion dollars.

Third Increase Granted

The arbitration board award to the nonoperating employes was retroactive to September 1. It marked the third wage increase given such employes in a little more than a year. Last year they were awarded wage boosts of 16 cents and 2½ cents hourly.

The arbitration board convened here August 4, finished evidence by railroad and union representatives Saturday and filed its report with the Federal District Court today. The board was headed by Dr. William Leiserson, former chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

Two railroad representatives of the board, Henry A. Scandrett of Chicago, former president of the Milwaukee road, and J. Carter Fort of Washington, vice president of the Association of American Railroads, dissented and declined to sign the award.

Pottery Workers Get Boost

Pittsburgh, Sept. 2 (AP).—About 18,000 pottery workers in a score of plants across the country will receive wage hikes of six cents an hour September 15 under the terms of a new contract negotiated here over the Labor Day weekend by the United States Potters Association and the AFL-National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

Union President James M. Duffy said the pay boost is in addition to an eight and one-half cent hourly boost agreed upon last January.

Nine-day Rule Ends?

Mancheno Quits in Ecuador, Troops End Fight, Quito Says

Quito, Ecuador, Sept. 2 (AP).—Authoritative sources said tonight that Col. Carlos Mancheno, head of Ecuador's de facto government had resigned and issued a cease-fire order to troops under his command.

There was no official confirmation of this report, although it became apparent late today that Mancheno's forces were being defeated and counter-revolutionary troops could march into Quito with practically no opposition.

(In Buenos Aires, former President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, deposed by Mancheno in a bloodless coup d'etat nine days ago, said he had received the news of Mancheno's reverses in Ecuador and would leave Argentina to return to his country on the first plane available tomorrow.)

[Velasco Ibarra told the United Press that Mancheno had abandoned his dictatorial regime and was seking to go into exile. Velasco said that Mancheno had sought to invoke the Latin American tradition of "asylum" by taking refuge in the Venevuelan Embassy but that there had been some delay in getting permission and Mancheno had "disappeared."

[Diplomatic sources in Santiago, Chile, said they had learned that Mancheno had fled the Ecuadorean capital after handing his resignation to the leaders of three main political parties.]

Labor Minister Maldonado Tomayo was reported seeking agreement for peaceful entry into Quito of the insurgent troops. (The United Press said the insurgents were within 12 miles of Quito.)

Mancheno and all the troops loyal to his regime left the city earlier in the day in an effort to hold back the counter-revolutionaries. Mancheno himself was understood to have gone to "the center of operations" to take personal command of his forces.

The Mancheno faction suffered a severe blow when a detachment of the Ricaasarte battalion, which had been sent from Quito to the Ambato sector south of the city, joined the counter-revolutionary cause and marched to join its advancing forces in the north.

Anti-Mancheno demonstrations flared in the streets of Quito as the counter-revolutionaries approached the city.

Newspapers in the capital, which had suspended publication because of censorship imposed by the Mancheno government, announced today they would resume publication tomorrow morning and, at the same time, issued an appeal for order.

Newspaper proprietors said the appeal had been issued because they expected the counter-revolutionary forces to enter the capital at any moment and felt that any civilian disorders might cause un-

Ramadier Asks Austerity Plan For France to Curb Inflation

Paris, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Premier Paul Ramadier today warned France is heading for all-out inflation and demanded "c o u rageous" austerity measures similar to those adopted by Britain.

Strikes and demonstrations protesting the bread ration cut and the government's reluctance to approve new wage boosts agreed on by management and unions interrupted production at plants in Paris and the provinces.

Addressing an apathetic National Assembly whose benches were only half filled, Ramadier said France was suffering a "psychological" crisis.

He urged adoption of a government request for immediate credits for coal subsidies totaling $67,200,000 which had been rejected by the assembly's finance commission. Ramadier said if the request was not granted, the price of coal would jump 50 per cent and manufactured goods 15 per cent.

[The Associated Press said Premier Ramadier appeared assured of succes sin his demand that the Assembly underwrite subsidies for the coal industry when deputies agreed overwhelmingly tonight to consider the measure ahead of other legislation.

[The cabinet, meeting earlier tonight, authorized Ramadier to demand a vote of confidence on the issue of coal subsidies if he felt it necessary, but there was no indication, as debate on the issue began, that the premier intended to test his government's support at this time.]

"We are faced by a spurt in prices, a really dangerous trend leading toward inflation," he said. "Take potatoes, for example. The crop has been better than in any recent years. There is no possible reason for alarm about feeding the population and yet we have to admit panic—a state of mind—which has resulted in potato prices almost doubling. This should be a serious warning to us and we should react strongly."

Ramadier said France "should do as England has done and react courageously. We have at our disposal regulations which must be applied. This is a battle we have to win. We should lose it if we

Irate Hungary Losers Called 'On Carpet'

Sviridov Summons Socialist Leaders In Ominous Crisis

By Seymour Freidin

Budapest, Sept. 2 (NYHT)—The Socialist leadership of Hungary, angered over the elections and ready to bolt the government coalition which is headed by the Communist Party, was summoned preemptorily today to a conference with the Soviet commander, Col. Gen. V. P. Sviridov.

The outcome of the discussion is not yet known but the acute interest of the Russian commander in the face of the crisis had a striking parallel two months ago when General Sviridov offered political counsel that helped oust former Premier Ferenc Nagy, Smallholders' party leader.

Authoritative sources said the Socialist executive committee, in open revolt over the disenfranchisement of 186,000 active Socialists from last Sunday's national elections, repudiated at a party executive caucus yesterday Arpad Szakasits, their leader and exponent of close cooperation with the Communists.

By a vote of 18 to 3 the executive committee, it was said, threatened to bolt the coalition which includes the Communists, Smallholders and National Peasant Party, unless these demands were met: Removal of Laszlo Rajk, minister of interior and one of Hungary's leading Communists, and continuance of a Socialist in the Ministry of Justice. They also demanded the elections be branded a fraud.

Premier's Resignation Demanded

Tonight dissension broke out within the Smallholders ranks when a delegation of 200 party members led by a priest, Father Istvan Szely, stormed into a meeting at which Premier Laszlo Dinnyes was presiding at party headquarters and demanded his resignation.

The political police were summoned but no arrests were made. The delegation accused Dinnyes and the Smallholders leaders of having betrayed the party which

Bevin Warns Labor to Avoid Dictatorship

Alternative, He Says, Is Acceptance of Peacetime Job Draft

Southport, England, Sept. 2 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin called on the worker of Britain tonight to accept drastic measures to combat the country's economic crisis as an alternative to dictatorship.

"I want this old country to remain democratic," Bevin said at a dinner of the Transport and General Workers Union, the organization he formerly headed, preparatory to a full-driss speech tomorrow to the Trades Union Congress meeting here.

"I hate dictatorships. But the only way we can avoid it is to succeed by consent and not by force. I believe that the vast mass of the trades unionists of this country are ready to consent."

Calls Britain Still Great

The Foreign Secretary, speaking after the TUC had voted overwhelming to consider full direction of labor in peacetime if the situation demanded it, heaped scorn on countries that "imagine, now nd again, we are no longer a great nation."

"Let them live in their fool's paradise," Bevin declared, without naming the countries to which he referred. "We are great. We have fought and we have fought clean."

Hinting at a belief that the British economic crisis will last at least two more years, Bevin described himself as "not daunted, not a pessimist."

Earlier, the TUC had voted to support the government's efforts to funnel workers into undermanned, essential industries.

Warned that "the emergency is here" and that immediate and drastic steps must be taken, the powerful alliance of nearly eight million union workers voted five to one for a report calling for a review of the nation's manpower shortage.

Prepared by the TUC's general council, the report voiced doubts that present emergency govern-

Taxicab Kills Girl, 3, Running To Mother at Huckster Truck

A 3-year-old girl was injured fatally at 4 p. m. yesterday when struck by a taxi as she ran between two parked cars to her mother, at 1129 New Jersey ave. se.

The child succumbed in her mother's arms in the taxicab that struck her, en route to Providence Hospital.

From Utah, the Associated Press reported, a 23-year-old Washington war veteran was killed and his wife injured critically in a traffic mishap yesterday near Tooele, Utah. They were identified as Jack C. Brucken and wife, Caroline, also 23.

The child, Josephine Estelle Pugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pugh of 1137 New Jersey ave. se., was pronounced dead on arrival at Providence Hospital.

Police said the driver of the taxicab, Paul O. Richardson, 28, of 502 62nd pl. ne., was driving at about 20 miles an hour when the accident occurred. The child, they said, ran out to be with her mother, who was purchasing bananas from a trucker parked double in the street.

Emergency Reported As Certain Before Marshall Plan Can Get Under Way

Danger to Democracy

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

A western European food and fuel crisis of great secerity and danger is now regarded as certain before the Marshall Plan can possibly get under way.

It will begin this month, according to official reports reaching Washington, and will persist for at least six months. It will last longer if there are unforeseen delays or timidities on either side of the Atlantic in putting the Marshall Plan into effect.

It will be most acute in France, but in varying degree it will affect virtually every non-Soviet country and also some of the Soviet group, notably Poland.

Emergency Is Baffling

Unless the coming winter is unusually mild, the lack of food and fuel will bring hardship to millions. It may put a strain on democratic institutions in more than one country—a strain of the sort the Marshall Plan was intended to offset and overcome.

What makes the emergency of the next six months so baffling to officials here is that the United States can do little or nothing to prevent it, or to ease it to any appreciable extent.

The Marshall Plan cannot possibly come quickly enough to avert it. The program now being worked out by 16 governments at Paris, in response to Secretary Marshall's offer, is an exceedingly complex and difficult attempt at reconstruction, spread over a four or five year period.

Long Process of Debate

The Marshall program calls for agreement among 16 European countries, then a careful review by the United States to determine what supplies are available here, and finally a long process of congressional debate.

The fastest timetable now contemplated here would not bring a congressional appropriations until early spring. Even if this timetable were speeded up by calling a special session in mid-November or early December, action on a four or five-year reconstruction program could hardly come in time to ease the coming winter's shortages.

There is some talk here of asking Congress, whenever it assembles, for a quick lump-sum grant to tide Europe over until decisions can be taken on the longer-range Marshall program. But such talk does not yet have serious official support.

The trouble is that most of Western Europe desperately needs food and fuel this fall, regardless of its longer-term needs. It can only get its supplies from the United States; it hasn't the dollars to pay for them, and Congress is not in session to appropirate the dollars.

So the prospect is that Europe will have to grit its teeth, tighten its belt still further, patch its old

Race Drivers Burn Up Calif. Tracks With Sunkist Ethyl

San Gabriel, Calif., Sept. 2 (U.P.).—A wine salesman said today he had distilled orange juice to make a motor fuel that would boost racing car speeds.

Dean McKinney, 44, said southern California racing drivers were using orange juice fuel and consistently winning speed deshes.

"Anybody could make motor fuel with my orange juice alky right in their own back yards," he said, "if they knew what else I put in.

The fuel is becoming popular for speedboats, McKinney said, but isn't practical now for airplane engines or for the ordinary motorist.

"They don't turn up enough revolutions-per-minute to take advantage of its high speed qualities," he said.

Western Canada Train Wreck Kills 35, Seriously Injures 15

Dugald, Manitoba, Sept. 2 (AP).—The worst train wreck in western Canada's history killed at least 35 persons and seriously injured 15 others here last night when a Canadian National Railways campers' special collided head-on with a stationary transcontinental passenger train at this flag station 20 miles east of Winnipeg.

The westbound 13-coach special from Minaki, Ontario, and other Lake of the Woods resorts was traveling 30 miles an hour when it plowed into the standing express, which was discharging passengers.

Two of the five wooden coaches of the special caught fire. The flames quickly spread to other coaches, a grain elevator and nearby oil storage tanks, some of which exploded.

Early rescuers found flames shooting 50 feet high. Canoes and other baggage were scattered over the right of way. The two locomotives were locked together, the baggage car of the transcontinental train raised partly over the tender ahead.

The screams of the hurt and trapped came from the piled up wreckage, but the heat of the flames drove most of the rescuers back.

Telephone operators summoned ambulances, doctors, police and firemen from Winnipeg, St. Boniface and Transcona, 10 miles to the west. The firemen pumped water on the wreckage from a nearby ditch, but it was not until early noon that the 35 bodies had been dug from the still sizzling wreckage.

The 15 injured were taken to St. Boniface Hospital in trucks, cars and ambulances. Only the most seriously hurt were hospitalized.

Two of the bodies were decapitated and only two were identifiable. They were Gaye Lewis, 64, of Transcona, Manitoba, engineer of the special, and a Mrs. Albert Simpson of Winnipeg, who died en route to the hospital.

So far as known all victims were Canadians. The missing conductor of the special had the only list of its passengers.

Passengers of the express escaped with only minor scratches.

G. A. Stone, Robert Creighton, Nora Paterson and Belle McIntyre, all of Winnipeg, said they were playing cards when "all of a sudden there was a lurch," the lights went out and the car pitched into the ditch.

"A bolt of flame, like an electric flash, came right through the car and then the car caught fire," said Stone. "I don't know how we got out the window, but we did. I saw one girl lying on the right of way with her arm cut off as clean as if it had been done with a scalpel.

"Our coach burned slowly but the one behind seemed to go up like a flash. I don't know how the people there fared. Outside the flames lit up he scene like daylight. We were certainly lucky. Nora found a four-leaf clover yesterday, strange to say."

Seven Mexicans Killed Over Cattle Inspection

Mexico City, Sept. 2 (AP).—"Thousands" of farmers stabbed t odeath six Mexican soldiers and a veterinarian yesterday as the group entered their mountainous region of western Michoacan state to inspect cattle for the hoof and mouth disease, it was learned today.

One Mexican soldier, the only person to survive the massacre, escaped, although he was badly wounded, and reached a military post at Zitacuaro where strong detachments of troops were sent out to round up the farmers. The soldiers said the crowd numbered in the "thousands."

The attack occurred near the village of Ciudad Hidalgo.

Sleeping Sickness Traced to Birds

New Orleans, Sept. 2 (AP).—If there were no chickens, fowls or other birds, there would be no sleeping sickness in human beings or horses, a Tulane University professor said today. Dr. Albert Miller, who specializes in parasites and their habits, reported the course of sleeping sickness goes like this:

First, a mite or louse—bites the chicken or some other bird and infects it with the disease. Then a mosquito bites the chicken and gets a stomach full of infected blood. Finally the mosquito bites a human being and injects the disease into the victim's blood stream.

13 Dumbbells Stolen; 350 Miss Job Tests

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Some 350 eager candidates for jobs as Sanitation Department truck drivers were lined up for physical examinations today when the test was called off.

An embarrassed civil service examiner explained that 13 dumbells, weighing 740 pounds and used to test the strength of the prospective garbage can tossers, had been stolen.

Tito Wages Summer Drive To Exterminate Peasant Party

By The Associated Press

Reports reaching the State Department yesterday indicated that the Tito government of Yugoslavia had been engaged this summer in a campaign to smash the Croat Peasant Party in the Croatian area of Yugoslavia.

These reports, coming from official informants, tell of far-reaching activities by the Yugoslav Communists against members and sympathizers of the party and followers of its exiled Leader Vladimir Machek, who is now in this country.

The latest account to reach top authorities here, and considered by them to be trustworthy, is that, in mid-August, 35 students were tried in Zagreb and sentenced to one to three years for allegedly removing pictures of Tito and Communist Party slogans from schools and substituting pictures of Machek and Peasant Party slogans.

Reds Invade Courtroom

The students were described as being around 14 to 15 years old and as having reached the trials in poor physical condition after being held incommunicado following their arrest last March and April. Their trials were said to be complicated by the fact that the courtroom was packed with Communist youth members who loudly and repeatedly demanded that the 35 be put to death.

These 35, according to the State Department's reports, were part of a larger group of approximately 100 students arrested in March and April and these in turn helped make a total of 900 persons arrested at that time as members or sympathizers of the Croat Peasant Party. The other 65 students may be tried eventually, the State Department has been informed.

Other incidents which have been reported included the following:

In March seven families known to have been close to Machek fled the country.

Catholic Church a Target

At Dubrovnik a mechanic was reportedly accused, convicted and given a death sentence for sabotage because he failed to drain certain automobile radiators which froze and burst.

In heavily Catholic Croatia there has been great friction between the church and Communists. The Communists are accused of having destroyed bulletin boards and torn down notices of meetings.

Reports circulating in Yugoslavia say that various actions have been taken against individual priests but advices reaching here contained no confirmation of these reports.

The 35 students who were sentenced to prison were defended, reports here said, by Attorney Politeo, who had previously defended Archbishop Stepinac in the trail in which he was given life imprisonment after a long record of opposition to the Tito government.

Partial Text of President Truman's Address

Petropolis, Sept. 2 (AP).—Following is a partial text of President Truman's address to the Inter-American Defense Conference:

IT IS a distinguished privilege to address the final session of this historic conference . . . You have successfully accomplished the task of putting into permanent form the commitments made in the Act of Chapultepec. You have made it clear to any possible aggressor that the American republics are determined to support one another against attacks. Our nations have provided an example of good neighborliness and international amity to the rest of the world, and in our association together we have strengthened the fabric of the United Nations. You can be justly proud of the achievements of this conference and I commend the noble spirit which has inspired your efforts . . .

The people of the United States engaged in the recent war in the deep faith that we were opening the way to a free world, and that out of the terrible suffering caused by the war something better would emerge than the world had known before.

The postwar era, however, has brought us bitter disappointment and deep concern.

We find that a number of nations are still subjected to a type of foreign domination which we fought to overcome. Many of the remaining peoples of Europe and Asia live under the shadow of armed aggression.

No agreement has been reached among the Allies on the main outlines of a peace settlement. In consequence, we are obliged to contemplate a prolonged military occupation of enemy territories. This is profoundly distasteful to our people.

ALMOST everywhere in Europe, economic recovery has lagged. Great urban and industrial areas have been left in a state of dependence on our economy which is as painful to us as it is to them. Much of this economic distress is due to the paralysis of political fear and uncertainty in addition to the devastation caused by war.

This situation has impeded the return to normal economic conditions everywhere in the world and has hampered seriously our efforts to develop useful forms of economic collaboration with our friends in other areas . . .

In view of the unfortunate conditions which now prevail, we have faced some difficult problems of adjustment in our foreign policy. I would not say that we have made no mistakes. But I think that the elements of the policy we have evolved thus far are sound and justifiable.

The fundamental basis of the policy of the United States is the desire for permanent world peace.

We are determined that, in the company of our friends, we shall achieve that peace.

We are determined because of the belief of our people in the principle that there are basic human rights which all men everywhere should enjoy. Men can enjoy these rights—the right to life itself, and the right to share fully in the bounties of modern civilization—only when the threat of war has been ended forever.

THE ATTAINMENT of worldwide respect for essential human rights is synonymous with the attainment of world peace. The peoples of the earth want a peaceful world, a prosperous world, and a free world, and when the basic rights of men everywhere are observed and respected, there will be such a world.

We know that in the hearts of common people everywhere there is a deep longing for stability and for settled conditions in which men can attain personal security and a decent livelihood for themselves and their children. We know that there are aspirations for a better and a finer life which are common to all humanity. We know—and the world knows—that these aspirations have never been promoted by policies of aggression.

We shall pursue the quest for peace with no less persistence and no less determination than we applied to the quest for military victory. . .

We intend to do our best to provide economic help to those who are prepared to help themselves and each other. But our resources are not unlimited. We must apply them where they can serve most effectively to bring production, freedom and confidence back to the world. We undertook to do this on an individual basis in the case of Greece and Turkey, where we were confronted with specific problems of limited scope and of peculiar urgency. But it was evident, at the time that decision was made early this year, that this precedent could not be applied generally to the problems of other European countries. The demands elsewhere were of far greater dimensions. It was clear that we would not be able to meet them all. It was equally clear that the peoples of Europe would have to get together and work out a solution of their common economic problems. In this way they would be able to make the most of their own recources and of such help as they might receive from others.

THE REPRESENTATIVES of 16 nations are now meeting in Paris in an effort to get to the root of Europe's continued economic difficulties and to chart a program of European recovery based on helping themselves and each other. They will then make known their needs in carrying this program to completion. Unquestionably it is in the interest of our country and of the Western Hemisphere in general that we should receive this appeal with sympathy and good will, prepared to do everything we can, within safe limits, that will be helpful and effective.

Our own troubles—and we have many—are small in contrast with the struggle for life itself that engrosses the peoples of Europe. The nations of free Europe will soon make known their needs. I hope that the nations of free America will be prepared, each according to its ability and in its own manner, to contribute to lasting peace for the benefit of mankind.

Another important element of our policy vital to our search for peace, is fidelity to the United Nations. We recognize that the United Nations has been subjected to a strain which it was never designed to bear. Its role is to maintain the peace and not to make the peace. It has been embroiled in its infancy in almost continuous conflict. We must be careful not to prejudge it by this unfair test. We must cherish the seedling in the hope of a mighty oak. We shall not forget our obligation under the Charter, nor shall we permit others to forget theirs.

In carrying out our policy we are determined to remain strong. This is in no way a threat. The record of the past speaks for us. No great nation has been more reluctant than ours to use armed force. We do not believe that present international differences will have to be resolved by armed conflict. The world may depend upon it that we shall continue to go far out of our way to avoid anything that would increase the tensions of international life.

BUT we are determined that there shall be no misunderstanding in these matters. Our aversion to violence must not be misread as a lack of determination on our part to live up to the obligations of the United Nations Charter or as an invitation to others to take liberties with the foundations of international peace. Our military strength will be retained as evidence of the seriousness with which we view our obligations. . . .

The Western Hemisphere cannot alone assure world peace, but without the Western Hemisphere no peace is possible. The Western Hemisphere cannot alone provide world prosperity, but without the Western Hemisphere no world prosperity is possible.

Insofar as the economic problems common to the nations of North and South America are concerned, we have long been aware that much remains to be done. In reaching a solution there are many subjects which will have to be discussed by us. . . .

This is a type of collaboration in which a much greater role falls to private citizens and groups than is the case in a program designed to aid European countries to recover from the destruction of war. You have my solemn assurance that we in Washington are not oblivious to the needs of increased economic collaboration within the family of American nations and that these problems will be approached by us with the utmost good faith and with increased vigor in the coming period.

If acceptable solutions of these economic problems can be found, and if we can continue to work with mutual confidence and courage at the building of that great edifice of political security to which this conference has made so signal a contribution, then I believe that we can look with high hopes on the further development of our community life in this hemisphere.

I BELIEVE that we may view with sober satisfaction the general history of our hemisphere. There has been steady progress in the development of mutual respect and of understanding among us. As the United States acquires greater maturity, as its experience becomes deeper and richer, our people gain in appreciation of the distinguished cultural traditions which flourish among our neighbors in the Western World. I hope that as your acquaintance with us broadens, you will appreciate our fundamental good will and will understand that we are trying to bear with dignity and decency the responsibility of an economic power unique in human history.

There are many concrete problems ahead of us on the path of inter-American relations. They will not be solved with generalities or with sentimentality. They will call for the utmost we can give in practical ingenuity, in patience, and good will, but their solution will be easier if we are able to set our sights above the troubles of the moment and to bear in mind the great truths upon which our common prosperity and our common destiny must rest. . . .

The United States seeks world peace—the peace of free men. I know that you stand with us. United, we can constitute the greatest single force in the world for the good of humanity.

We approach our task with resolution and courage, firm in the faith of our Lord, whose will it is that there shall be peace on earth.

We cannot be dissuaded, and we shall not be diverted, from our efforts to achieve His will.

Editor Keeps On His Toes By Reporting

One way of keeping an editor on his toes is to let him report the news occasionally, Frank L. Dennis, now in Rio with President Truman, spends most of his time at a desk, where, as assistant managing editor of The Washington Post, he weighs the news value of the various stories that pour in from reporters and wire services.

Dennis

Once in a while he gets a chance to return t othe field. Last April Dennis flew t oTexas City to cover the ship explosion there which resulted in 408 deaths. In the fall he likes to get to some of the big football games, to recapture the feel of sports reporting.

Dennis has been a newspaper man since high school days. He put himself through Oklahoma University and Harvard Law School by working as reporter and copy-reader. After getting his LL.B. he returned to Oklahoma City and eventually became assistant managing editor.

Dennis came here as city editor in 1939, became assistant managing editor soon after. He is also a member of the D. C. bar and was one of the 25 men selected to attend the first seminar of the American Press Institute last fall.

Our military strength will be retained as evidence of the seriousness with which we view our obligations."

There was polite applause from time to time in the predominantly Latin crowd, as one or another caught the meaning of the English words and clapped. But the cheering was vociferous when the speech was read ni translation.

The setting and what the President saw on his way to Petropolis ma yhave given eloquence to his remark that the sick and hungry cannot do much to build peace. On an almost sheer hillside 500 feet high near the embassy residence where he spent the night he saw hovels of the indescribably poor. They stuck to cliff like wasps nests. He haw the vultures flocking in the streets on the edge of town, frightened into flight by the motor cavalcade that included the Truman family and President Dutra of Brazil.

Then he was led into the Quitandinha, the rendezvous of South American playboys, where a cocktail costs $2 American money.

The crowd which heard him in the glit concert hall was made up of delegates and rich guests of the hotel.

Goats, chickens, natives scattered as motorcycle police, the same in every country, cleared the way. But the cavalcade was stopped five minutes when a railroad train pulled by a diminutive engine blocked the way.

As the caravan ascended the mountain, Mr. Truman saw bananas, hibiscus and poinsettias growing along one side of road, on the other side of which were precipices 1500 feet deep.

After the drive back to Rio, Mr. Truman was host at a reception aboard the 52,000-ton battleship Missouri in Guanabara bay. There he told the conference delegates and other guests of this coincidence: today's treaty was signed on the second anniversary of the signing of the Japanese surrender. It was not prearranged, he pointed out. The surrender occurred on same spot aboard the Missouri where the guests were assembled.

Raul Fernandes, Brazilian foreign minister, responding to Mr. Truman's greeting, told the United States President "you have been able to move the soul of Brazil."

He said Monday's greeting by hundreds of thousands of persons in Rio was sincere, saying, "Thank God, we are not a nation which arranges spontaneous demonstrations," a crack at Argentina.

Missed Treaty Signing

The co-host with Mr. Truman aboard the Missouri was Capt. C. E. Dennison of District of Columbia, its commanding officer. President did not go ashore in time to attend the treaty signing at the Foreign Ministry.

The treaty provides that an armed attack against any of the signator nations will be considered an attack against them all; that collective military defense measures will be taken in case of an armed attack within a geographically defined security zone, which includes all the republics, ocean territory and most of the Western Hemisphere polar regions, or "within the territory of an American state."

A-Bombers Set, Kenney Says

Tokyo, Sept. 2 (AP).—Gen. George C. Kenney, chief of the United States strategic air command, said today that B-29 heavy bombers based in Alaska, Japan, the Philippines and other Pacific islands were better prepared for battle than during World War II.

Gen. Kenney

Kenney told a press conference that planes carrying the atomic bomb were ready to defend the United States "against anybody, anytime, who decides to take us on."

He called the island-based planes America's first line of defense.

Kenney has spent three weeks visiting heavy bomber bases around the world. He arrived here Sunday from Manila and plans to leave tomorrow for the Aleutians and Alaska.

"This trip has convinced me that the United States had better keep paid up on its defense insurance," he said. "Bonfires around the world sometimes get out of control. Our job is to be ready with a water bucket."

"In the new year I plan to send a whole group of B-29s from Tokyo to Washington non-stop," he said. "I want every youngster in my command to get used to having a cup of tea in England and dinner in Tokyo."

Kenney said the atomic bomb would not be dropped except by order of the President.

U. S. Rejects Soviet Protest on Germany

Moscow Notified It Cannot Veto U. S.-British Plans

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

The United States, rejecting a Russian protest, served notice yesterday that Moscow cannot veto the British-American plans for economic revival of western Germany.

A United States note said this country "is unable to accept the thesis that nothing can be done" simply because the Soviet Union has not consented to the plans.

At the same time, this Government accused the Soviet Union of failing to live up to its agreement, made by Generalissimo Stalin at Potsdam in 1945, to treat Germany as a single economic unit.

The American views were expressed in a letter sent by Undersecretary of State Lovett to Semen K. Tsarapkin, minister counselor and acting head of the Soviet Embassy here.

Reply to Soviet Protest

The note from Lovett was a reply to a Soviet protest delivered August 18 against agreement by the United States and Britain on raising the level of industry in western Germany and particularly the critical Ruhr area.

The letter was made public by the State Department yesterday and subsequently there were two other developments bearing upon relationships among the big three powers:

1. It was learned that United States and British experts seeking to boost coal production from the Ruhr mines have tentatively agreed here to British-American partnership control of the mining operations. The British at present have exclusive control. Under the new plan the pits in the British zone would be under supervision of a joint Anglo-American board but most, if not all, of the actual on-the-scene direction of coal mining would be done by Germans. American experts have argued that this is the best way to handle morale of German miners.

The mine talks are expected to be completed late this week. Press Officer Lincoln White said he understood plans for boosting Ruhr coal production to aid European economic recovery were about wound up and needed only to be reduced to final paper form.

U. S. Wants Troops to Stay

2. It was also learned that the United States is asking the British to retain troops in Greece until the United States position in that strife-ridden land is sufficiently strong and secure. An estimated 6000 British soldiers remain in the country and the Labor Government previously said they would all be withdrawn by autumn. American officials feel that even though they are only a symbolic force their withdrawal in the immediate future would prove very upsetting to the Greek situation which should have considerably more time to settle down under the effects of the American anti-communist aid program.

The American position on raising the level of German industry came as no surprise to Washington diplomats. Only last week London and Washington announced that they intended to build up the German economy to a production stage equivalent to output in the pre-war year 1936.

Replying to a Russian protest, the United States note declared that the American objectives in making the production changes are not in conflict with the 1945 Big Three agreement at Potsdam for eliminating the German war potential, developing peaceful German industries and helping the German people to maintain themselves.

"The Soviet government is certainly aware of the importance of German production to the economic rehabilitation of Europe. This is particularly true in respect of coal from the Ruhr area of Germany.

"Furthermore the failure of the Soviet government to implement the Berlin agreement has placed upon the United States a heavy financial burden in the occupation of Germany."

18 Legislators Start Europe Survey Tour

By Homer Jenks

London, Sept. 2 (AP).—Eighteen Congressmen started an economic assesment tour of 15 European nations today with a warning that the amount of American help they get under the Marshall Plan will depend upon how much they help each other.

The congressional investigating committee of which Representative Christian Herter (R., Mass.) is acting chairman, will see for itself the condition of western Europe and how much help it actually needs from the United States to get back on its fet.

Herter, speaking for his colleagues at a press conference, made it plain that the committee did not consider Russia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Romania or Hungary eligible for anything. He said members of the committee would, however, make one-day visits to Warsaw and Prague.

This indicated the committee's hope that Poland and Czechoslovakia might yet extract themselves sufficieintly from Russian influence to join the 16 other nations already in on the plan.

Help Before '48 Unlikely

Herter stated the committee's attitude frankly to some 50 British and American correspondents:

"The attitude of Congress—and here I am speaking at least for my colleagues on this committee—is likely to be conditioned to a great degree on the vigorous mutual assistance which European countries give themselves.

"As members of Congress, we are very much aware of the difficulties which you and many other people of Europe are faving. We hope you may be able to restore your economy and retain your freedom."

He said he saw no prospect of American help for Europe before Congress reconvenes early in January, although a special session could be called.

The committee saw Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, and Food Minister John Strachey, who announced yesterday suspension of food buying from the United States. The Congressmen will stay in Britain three days.

Cripps was about ready to announce new belt-tightening measures for Britons, oincluding fewer clothes and less washing powder and cosmetics in favor of more emphasis on essentials and export goods.

Strachey defended the chopping-off of food purchases from the United States on the ground that it was "the most expensive source of supply."

"By cutting out American meat, for example, we cut out by far our dearest meat," he said.

The congressional committee will fly to Berlin Thursday, after it sees Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. The committee will see American and British occupation officials and visit the Ruhr, then break up into subcommittees for a detailed study of Europe's problems.

One subcommittee will tour Germany and Austria and make a one-day visit to Prague. A second will visit Italy, Trieste and Greece. A third will come back to Britain to look into British and dominion problems. A fourth will visit France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Holland and a fifth will study agriculture through western Europe and Scandinavia.

Herter himself will visit Warsaw. He said the committee's deadline to report to congress was March, but it might well make recommendation before then. The committee will return to the United States on October 10.

Sterling Talks Proposed

London, Sept. 2 (AP).—The British government announced today it had "proposed to other commonwealth governments in the sterling area that discussions on the general financial position should take place in London as soon as possible."

Handless Trombonist Gives Solo Concerts

Emden, Ill., Sept. 2 (AP).—Loss of both hands and his left arm in a mowing machine accident four years ago failed to stop Ralph Nelson Hoar's musical career.

The 17-year-old Emden youth switched from trumpet to trombone and with the aid of a special harness has given trombone solo concerts at Emden civic gatherings.

He has a newspaper route, rides a bicycle, and mows lawns.

No Aid Likely From Canada

Ottawa, Sept. 2 (AP).—The government of Canada indicated today it hopes the United States program on economic rehabilitation of Europe may solve the Canadian dollar shortage, and warned that until Canada's own position improves it cannot be expected to extend additional aid to Britain or others.

Canada is known to be considering restriction of imports from the United States and an appeal for a loan from the World Bank. Canadian dollar devaluation also has been mentioned.

Western Europe Faces Crisis On Food, Fuel in Near Future clothes to keep out the cold, make its remaining dollars last as long as possible, and do everything to help itself without waiting for the Marshall Plan.

Worried officials here know that cold and hunger in Europe will not wait for the Marshall Plan. They know, too, that Communism feeds on cold and hunger as vultures feed on carrion. For this reason the next six months are regarded here as a danger period for American foreign policy, which aims at keeping world Communism in check.

The position of France is by far the most dangerous, largely because of disastrous crop failures caused by cold and snow last winter and by drought this summer.

The French had planned to import only 1,500,000 tons of wheat in 1947; now they find they must import four million tons. There are some offsetting factors, like an excellent potato crop, but to a nation of bread-eaters like the French these will bring little comfort.

The French had to import 1,120,000 tons of American coal in July, and at high dollar prices to cover shipping costs. Now that Ruhr coal output is picking up, they may get more coal from Germany and less from here. But German coal from the Anglo-American zones has to be paid for in dollars, and the dollar price has just been raised.

French Reserve Shrinking

French dollars will last until November, according to present calculations, and the gold reserve is believed to be down to 800 million dollars, or enough for about two months more. After that, it will be touch and go for the French economy.

To stretch their dollars further, the French have just cut off imports of all nonessential goods from here. They expect to cut their bread ration soon to a figure below the proposed figure for western Germany. The political consequences of such a comparison will not be pretty in view of the present strength and toughness of the Communist Party in France.

In Italy, where the prospect for the next six months is serious, the wheat crop will be down 30 per cent this year, but other crops will be better. Nevertheless, Italy is living from hand to mouth, largely dependent for relief on her share, approximately 75 million dollars, of the 350 million relief fund appropriated by Congress this summer.

Situation in Britain

In Great Britain, which is struggling with a deep-seated economic crisis, the immediate dollar position is not so acute, as informed officials here see it.

To tide them over the winter the British will still have the remaining 400 million dollars of the American loan, an estimated 500 million of the Canadian loan, and a gold reserve estimated at around 2½ billion dollars. But no prudent nation can afford to dip too deeply into its last reserves for food and fuel this winter.

Austria and Western Germany will be cold and hungry this winter, but these countries at least can get some relief supplies with dollars in the case of Austria from the 350 million dollar Congressional relief fund, in western Germany from the War Department appropriation for occupation costs.

Drought Hits North

The northern European countries were affected by this summer's drought, with Norway especially short of dollars, Denmark, a big producer of dairy products, fears some of her normal exports may be lost because of the crisis in Great Britain, her best foreign customer.

Only Belgium and Holland, of all the western European countries, appear in good shape to meet their dollar needs this fall and winter.

The over-all winter prospect in western Europe might not be so serious if the authors of the 350-million-dollar American relief program had made allowances for (a) crop failures in Europe, (b) soaring food prices here, and (c) the continued failure of Europe to produce and export. Moreover, this relief fund, intended to make up for the ending of UNRRA, was limited by law to Italy, Austria, Greece, Hungary, Poland and China. France was not even thought of as needing dollars so urgently by the end of 1947.

Storm Signals Flying

Since Congress is not in session, the only possible sources of dollars for Europe are the Export-Import Bank and the World Bank. But both of these lending agencies are intended for long-term projects rather than for short-term relief, and by their respective charters they cannot lend money for food, fuel or clothing.

Possibly further World Bank loans for reconstruction projects might release some European dollars for straight relief needs, but the prospect is not bright.

Meantime, the barometer is falling fast. The emergency storm warnings are up in western Europe and have been seen clearly in Government offices here. Again long-range planning will be interrupted by a short-term crisis that might have been averted if it had been foreseen in time.

Delegates to Return On President's Plane

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Sept. 2 (AP).—Secretary of State Marshall, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Warren Austin and their wives were planning to leave tonight for Washington on President Truman's special plane, Independence. The President will return later on the battleship Missouri.

At Washington the State Department said Secretary Marshall would arrive at the Capital at 2 p. m. (EST) Wednesday.

Vandenberg said he was elated over results of the conference and that he would broadcast a speech soon after reaching home.

"The conference has been 1000 per cent worthwhile," the Michigan Republican said.

Marshall Plan Support Urged To Halt Soviet

The National Planning Association charged yesterday that Russia "beyond question" has "seriously impeded" restoration of Europe's economy and urged prompt United States support of the Marshall Plan to prevent Europe from falling "prey to communism and dictatorship."

The NPA committee on international policy said in a report that "Russian imperialism is again on the march" and added that "no one can state with assurance what limits, if any, the Soviet Union has placed upon its dominion."

The committee, composed of prominent business, labor, agricultural and Government leaders, declared that Russia's "obstructive tractics" have demonstrated the futility of hoping for Soviet cooperation in Europe. For the time being it added, none "can be expected."

The report, indorsing the Marshall Plan as a constructive measure of enlightened self-interest for America, said that "no sacrifice is too great" to fend off the specter of a Russian-dominated Europe.

Answering criticism that the plan would be too costly, the committee said, "We can afford anything better than to allow western Europe, in deepening distress, to fall prey to communism and dictatorship." It added:

"Such a catastrophic development would plunge the world into economic and political turmoil and would threaten the well-being of our people and the integrity of our institutions."

The committee foresaw disillusioned western democracies collapsing, if the United States fails to implement its words with a boldly conceived and administered program, thus paving the way for Soviet expansion to the Atlantic. It continued:

"This would present a formidable and imminendt threat to the welfare and security of the United States. It is hardly an exaggeration to say it might even presage the destruction of western civilization."

With an eye on the British government, the committee replied to arguments that the Marshall Plan would strengthen Socialist governments in Europe.

It said the Socialist "experiment . . . unlike communism in practice, has involved no infringement" upon the individual civil liberties and added that "this, from the American point of view, is of supreme importance."

America's chief concern, it continued, should be "whether individual liberty is in fact protected, and not whether it finds expression under any particular pattern of economic life."

The report also answered charges the plan would give impetus to domestic inflation. It said anticipated expenditures would be similar to foreign purchases already absorbed by the United States price level. Future purchases, it added, would probably have a "sustaining influence" on the United States economy.

Red Hands Off Atom Report

Lake Success, Sept. 2 (AP).—Russia said today that dissensions over international atomic control proposals were so great that it would be useless to offer Soviet amendments to a majority-supported draft report of the United Nation's Atomic Energy Commission.

Echoing previous Russian rejection of proposals for international ownership and control of atomic facilities, Deputy Delegate Dmitri Skobeltsyn accused the 12-nation commission of making moves "to sidestep the possibilities of agreement."

"The Soviet delegation submitted amendments to the first report, and it became clear that the representatives of the majority showed no wish to seek means of coming to an agreement," he said.

"Even when there were no dissensions on principles, we met with a striving to elude (sic) these possibilities of agreement and to stress the dissensions and to sidestep the possibilities of agreement."

After the meeting, in which the commission nations sat as a committee, Professor Skobeltsyn told a reporter that his government would not offer formal changes because it would be useless in view of the commisison's attitude.

He said both he and Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko, now on a short vacation, would continue to comment on six papers laid down as a basis for a second report to the General Assembly later this month.

The Russian stand made it probable that the second report would end up as the first one did last December—supported by 10 of the 12 atomic commission nations. Russia and Poland were expected to either oppose or abstain.

Professor Skobeltsyn took the floor after Dr. Ignacy Zlotowski of Poland generally followed the Russian line in turning down the working papers. However, Poland planned to offer amendments.

ment powers for limited labor direction were adequate.

"It was possible," it said, "that negative restraints on the engagement of labor would have to be supplemented and reinforced to a limted extent by some positive direction of labor."

Debated for three hours, the statement was criticized by some union leaders as "not going far enough" in that it failed to provide also for closer regulation of industry.

Newell Not to Seek Citizens Post Again

Clifford H. Newell, of 1303 Delafield pl. nw., announced yesterday that he would not seek renomination as president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations this October.

His decision was made because of press of business, he said. He will continue active work in the organization, however, as a delegate from the Arkansas Avenue Association, which he helped organize in 1939, he added. He has been head of the Federation for the past year.

necessary loss of life and property damage.

In a broadcast from Ambato, the counter - revolutionaries declared they had inflicted a decisive defeat on Mancheno's forces in a six-hour battle yesterday in the Ambato area, 70 miles south of Quito, and that the beaten regiments were "fleeing in disorder" toward the capital.

There was no confirmation of these reports from officials loyal to Mancheno, who seized control of Ecuador nine days ago in a single-shot bloodless revolt which ousted President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra.

Earlier the garrison here in Guayaquil, Ecuador's largest city, joined the counter-revolutionists.

authorized a 50 per cent increase for coal or 15 per cent for industrial prices."

Applause is Unenthusiastic

Socialists applauded his 20-minute speech unenthusiastically. The rest of the assembly sat in silence.

The possibility of a ban on American films, similar to Britain's, was broken up.

Ten thousand workers at the Michelin tire plant in Clermont Ferrand struck yesterday for more bread and higher wages. Some 12,000 at the Peugeot automobile works at Sochaux, who walked out last week for the same reasons, also remained idle.

In Rouen, all workers except railroad personnel walked out for 24 hours.

Losers Called 'On Carpet'

two years ago had a majority in Hungary and emerged Sunday with but 15 per cent of the vote.

Previous to the conference by General Sviridov, the Russian commander had spoken to Szakasits, who is now reported feeling ill. Szakasits had an operation recently which presumably induced his latest indisposition.

The Communists, led by roly poly Matyas Rakosi, having come out of the elections as the single strongest party, were busy making overtures to other parties and mending colition fences. Rakosi, in a victory statement, warned that "reactionary and undemocratic elements" still threaten Hungary.

Socialists Can Upset Red Rule

If the Socialists leave the coalition and throw in their lot with the opposition, the Communists will head a minority bloc, a point apparently well appreciated by both General Sviridov and Rakosi.

The Socialists' hand-holding tactics with the Communists before the elections caused one of their oldest leaders, Karolyi Peyer, to bolt. His splinter party picked up six parliamentary seats in the elections.

The government coalition, through its pre-election alliance, obtained a total of 60 per cent of the votes, entitling it to 75 per cent of the National List which holds 60 seats in parliament. The second strongest party, the Democratic Peoples Party of Istvan Barankovits, which has the support of parish priests, received fewer seats in the parliamentary appointment than did the Smallholders who ran behind Barankovits.

Of the 289 seats in parliament, the allocations are: Communists 97, Smallholders 67, Socialists 66, Barankovits 58, Hungarian Independence Party 53, National Peasant Party 39, with the remainder scattered among four other parties technically in the opposition.

The Socialist blow-up resulted, according to party sources, after Istvan Ries, Socialist minister of justice, sent some state attorneys to check depositions on the fraudulent use of blue non-resident voting permits in the elections.

Minister of Interior Rajk, it was said, ordered these attorneys thrown out. Ries has offered his resignation along with two other Socialist ministers, but they haven't yet been brought before the Prime Minister. A government spokesman said tonight, "they are in unofficial resignation."

Socialist informants tell us, moreover, that 550,000 blue permits were fraudulently by the Communists. They added that between Friday night and Sunday, election day, the Communists were responsible for disenfranchising 110,000 Socialists, bringing the total to 186,000.

President of the republic Zoltan Tildy was informed, according to these sources, of the Socialist executive committee's sentiments before the board went to General Sviridov. They were headed by Anatole Ban, next to Szakasits the most important Socialist in the party.

Exile Not Hopeful

Vienna, Austria, Sept. 2 (U.P.)—Vincent Nagy, self-exiled deputy leader of the defunct Hungarian Freedom Party, said today that only armed forces from outside the country could dislodge the Communists from control of the Hungarian government.

GRIM FACTS about the next war
Here is the hard, cold, inescapable truth:
We are now engaged in a frantic scientific race with Russia to produce fantastically destructive weapons for another war... Weapons like radioactive clouds and bigger atom bombs... Like rockets, each larger than a B-29, which travel with the speed of meteors.
It is a long, perilous and incredibly expensive race over an uncharted course...with the loser risking national extinction.
In revealing the latest authoritative information on the vast research rivalry which may culminate in World War III, the Post brings you perhaps the most important message it will publish this year. It also gives you new, staggering information on what a close shave we had in the past war.
Not a word of this is pleasant reading.
But, grim as it is, no one can afford to shut his eyes to it.

Wedemeyer Report Hit by China Premier

Nanking, China, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—China will not alter either its domestic or foreign policy as a result of Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's mission, Premier Chang Chun said in an exclusive interview today. Chang charged the Presidential emissary was "lax" in his investigation in China.

Gen. Wedemeyer

"There were many things Wedemeyer did not know and did not find out," Chang said.

He said that although he and Wedemeyer met several times, they held no "serious" discussions.

"The General," he said, "paid more attention to people outside the government than in it."

Chang claimed many of the reforms suggested in Wedemeyer's statement upon leaving China were being carried out before his visit. The changes, however, must be made step by step, according to the schedule already decided on by the Chinese government," he declared.

"Chinese domestic and foreign policy is fixed and will not be changed," he added.

He said the government would hold elections this fall despite the civil war.

British Lands Look Forward To Jap Treaty

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 2 (AP).—British Empire countries, briefed on each other's ideas for the Japanese peace at a Commonwealth conference, looked tonight to a United States-convened conference in Washington to make an early start at writing the peace treaty.

An Australian source said the United States had indicated acceptance of British Empire conference proposal that the Japanese peace talks begin on a high level in Washington within a few weeks. The Canberra conference proposed that the policy-making conference be followed by a meeting of experts who would work out the details in a draft treaty which would be submitted to a final peace conference in the first half of 1948.

There were doubts here that Russia would participate.

Closing the empire conference today, Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Minister for External Affairs, declared the Commonwealth governments were "striving to bring about an early settlement with Japan based on justice and achived by democratic methods."

Tokyo, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today appointed William J. Sebald chief of allied headquarters' diplomatic section and chairman of the allied council for Japan. He succeeded the late George Atcheson, jr., who was killed in a plane crash off Honolulu recently.

Can you still raise a family on $18 a week?

Here is the heartening story of Mrs. Mildred Bemis, who does just that—with spirit, and proudly!

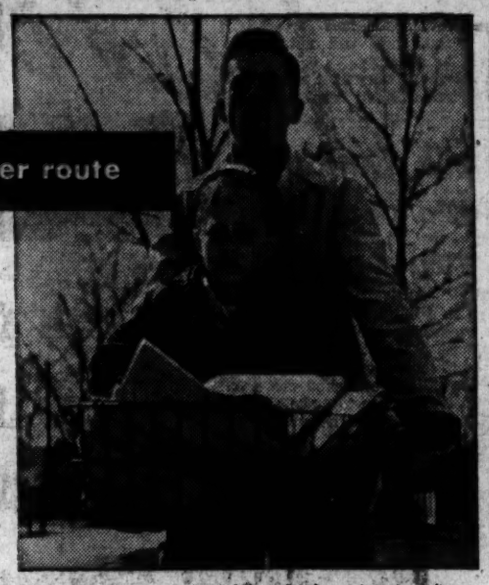
Mrs. Bemis is a small, slender woman with a serene expression. But she faces, and masters, cold, hard problems. A widow with two sons to raise, Mrs. Bemis lives in Rockville, Indiana. Her principal income is a small Social Security pension, to which she adds by taking in laundry and by boarding 7-year-old Sondra Mead. On a total of $18 a week, she maintains a happy, vital home that is respected throughout her community.

The story of how Mrs. Bemis accomplishes this near-miraculous feat is brought to you in the Journal's great continuing story, "How America Lives." This month the Journal introduces you to a family, which, like one American family in five, lives on an income of less than $1000 a year.

You will find, in the story of the Bemis family, an inspiring example of spiritual riches in a setting of adversity. You will find quiet glory in the life of 17-year-old Lennis . . . who delivers papers, works before and after school and Saturdays in a restaurant, and has been self-supporting since he was 12. Poised and emotionally mature, Lennis is a leader among Roekville youth, his girl is one of the town's most attractive. He is president of his school class, an athlete and musician.

Here, in a warm, intimate story, are independence, courage, self-reliance . . . the very qualities that make America great. These qualities, fortunately, are still alive in our land. The Journal believes that a fresh look at them will reassure Americans everywhere of the strengths inherent in our people—and in our way of life.

Paper route



Young Charles Bemis hitch-hikes a ride as Lennis delivers papers. This, and summer jobs, restaurant work before and after school, have made Lennis self-supporting since he was 12.

"Mom makes a party out of anything"

Popcorn is "date bait" when Lennis is broke, but even on pay day, the Bemis kitchen is a scene of fun. Mrs. Bemis "pours" for Charles and Lennis, and Lennis's girl, Norma.

Is England Dying? Harold E. Stassen answers this great question in a timely report on the British people, their economic crisis and what they are doing about it. Love, murder and scandal can happen in A Quiet Neighborhood. Amy Gilbert found out when she became, suddenly and bewilderingly, entangled in the lives of the people in Cherry Center, a small, mellow town, with streets that were deceptively calm. Read Anne Goodwin Winslow's mood-rich novel, "A Quiet Neighborhood." It comes to you complete in the September Ladies' Home Journal.

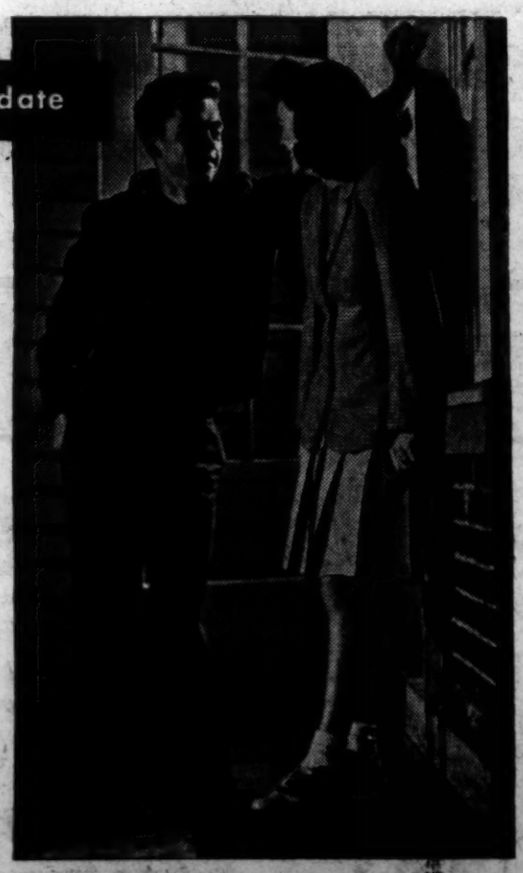
Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt answers James A. Farley who charged in his controversial memoirs that she told him "Franklin finds it hard to relax with people who aren't his social equals."

Exciting full-color pictures of Maryland's Eastern Shore, where land and water intermingle to create a glorious setting for some of the most beautiful old homes in America. . . . Nine glamourous pages of fashions for fall, including stunning John Frederics and Sally Victor hats you can make yourself. . . . More fresh new food ideas by Ann Batchelder. . . . An illustrated "how to do it" piece that shows you how to add new beauty to your home.

All this, and more, in the enlightening, entertaining September Journal, out today.

It's a date



Lennis and Norma start for the Youth Center, which, for 9¢ a year, indoor and outdoor sports, dancing, table tennis and billiards are available. Dating parents is forbidden.

Selection of W. Desmond Walker, 43-year-old Mitchellville Md., dairy and tobacco farmer, as foreman of the Prince Georges County, Md., grand jury for the term beginning October 6 was announced yesterday by Judge Charles C. Marbury of the Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

The jury will be the first county Grand Jury ever to have woman members. Women have been selected from voting lists and added to the venire list. They will serve this term for the first time on the grand jury and the petit juries of the county.

27 Tariff Agreements Mapped at Geneva

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Twenty-seven inter-nation tariff negotations have been concluded and at leat 13 others will end within a week, a progress report of the International Trade Conference said today.

United States and Australian negotiators met for the fourth time since tariff talks were resumed and "some progress" was reported by Australian sources.

Dutch Attack Pamekasan City, Indonesians Say

Batavia, Java, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—The Indonesian republic said tonight that Dutch troops attacked Pamekasan, the main city on Madura Island, from "several directions" on August 26.

The Dutch made the attack under cover of artillery and mortar fire that killed 24 civilians, wounded four and destroyed one building, the communique said.

The Indonesian communique did not mention a two-pronged attack that last night's communique said was "developing" against Jogjakarta, the Indonesian capital.

Democrats Assail Republicans In National Rally Over Air able plan for their salvation" and this country will back measures to make it a success.

While the Republican domestic record was denounced by other speakers as "stumbling and bumbling," Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), about to launch a speaking tour of the far west, was the only member of his party singled out for attack.

Sparkman charged that Taft "and the Republican old guard" refused to put to a vote the long range housing bill that bears Taft's name because they did not feel the housing shortage was serious.

He said Republican legislators went along with the real estate lobby "to get rid of the controls which were giving the veteran a break . . . and finally the last bit of help to the veteran was ended in the phony rent control bill."

Working People Declared "Angry"

Mayor O'Dwyer said the working people of his State "are angry . . .

"They know that the Republican Congress has tried to turn the working people of the country into second class citizens," New York's Mayor said. "They remember the days when working people were second class citizens."

Mrs. Douglas charged Republicans joined hands with the National Association of Manufacturers to increase prices. Recalling 1946 promises that prices would stabilize if OPA was repealed, she compared the 15 per cent climb in prices in four years under price control to the 35 per cent rise since.

"Prices not only haven't adjusted themselves to what consumers are willing and able to pay, but production has actually fallen below the wartime peak," said Mrs. Douglas. "People eat les sand they don't buy the pair of shoes and the shirt that keep other people at work."

Agricultural Acts Hit

Mayor Humphrey of Minneapolis said the Republican Congress not only hit labor and left veterans without adequate housing but "methodically undermined" the agricultural program.

Citing cuts in rural electrification, soil conservation service, agricultural research and the Farmers Home Administration, Mayor Humphrey said:

"The farmers of the Midwest will see that behind the smoke screen of labor legislation and false economy measures, the farmers of America have suffered more at the hands of reaction than any other single group."

Precinct Work Urged

Senator Myers said a recent poll by the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin showed 63 per cent of the adults there approve the way Truman is handling his job. Said Myers: "The people of the Keystone State share the disgust felt by all liberal-minded, fair-minded Americans over the policies of a Republican leadership which is trying to drag this Nation back to the dog-eat-dog economics and to the isolationism of the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover era in America."

Hanley appealed for hard precinct work, saying: "Active, enthusiastic precinct committeemen on the farms, in the villages and towns, and in every few blocks of the large cities, can insure the election of every Democratic national, State, county and municipal official."

Jews Demand U. S. Take Lead On Partition

Lake Success, Sept. 2 (AP).—The American Jewish Conference demanded late today that the United States take the leadership on the proposed Palestine partition plan before the United Nations Assembly.

It said the United States "dare not shirk" previous commitments regarding the future of the Holy Land.

These commitments included President Truman's recommendation for prompt admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine—a suggestion disregarded by the British mandate power—and for a Jewish state in an "adequate area" of Palestine.

The American Jewish Conference represents 63 Jewish organizations in the United States.

This development came after an authoritative source had already hinted that Britain might ask the United States to assist materially in the interim administration of Palestine if the United Nations agreed to partitioning the Holy Land.

Meanwhile, U. N. secretariat officials considered the possibility of constituting a special 55-nation committee on Palestine to deal with the problem after the General Assembly convenes in New York September 16. This was a move to give priority to the Holy Land dispute.

A British spokesman, expressing disapproval of the Palestine scheme, said that Britain alone could not be responsible for supervising the Holy Land during a two-year interim period before it would become actually independent.

"The United Nations ought to share the burden," he said to depend almost entirely on American willingness to provide economic aid—and in all probability partial military assistance as well—to support a divided Holy Land.

Commissioner Protests

London, Sept. 2 (AP).—Palestine's high commissioner, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, has protested strongly against the government's decision to send the 4400 Jews of the Exodus 1947 back to Germany, authoritative informants said today.

Sir Alan, vacationing here, lodged his protest on humanitarian as well as purely political grounds, the sources said.

Curb on Demonstrations

Frankfurt ,Germany, Sept. 2 (AP). A sharp curb on demonstrations by displaced persons was ordered by the American military government today—just a few days before the 4000 Jaws from the Exodus 1947 are exected to arrive at Hamburg.

Gangs Withhold Force

Jerusalem, Sept. 2.—The dissident Jewish underground gangs, Irgun and Stern, announced today that while they rejected the partition of Palestine and dislike other aspects of the United Nation's special Committee on Palestine report, they would not oppose it by force.

Both gangs have been idle for weeks. The unusually long lull may be attributed chiefly to the revulsion of sentiment among masses o fthe Jews resulting from the hanging by Irgunists of the two British sergeants July 31.

J. Fred Kirchner, 1611 Duke st., Alexandria, has been appointed director of apprenticeship training in Virginia. No Cure, But 'Exciting' Results Reported to Cancer Congress

(From Press Dispatches)

St. Louis, Sept. 2.—The Fourth International Cancer Research Congress opened a six-day session here today to discuss reports on the progress made against the disease.

Delegates from 44 nations were told deaths from cancer had increased 25 per cent in the past 10 years and would claim one victim in every other American home unless a cure was found.

The opening session heard a proposal to create a world-wide organization to coordinate the efforts of all cancer researches.

Dr. E. V. Cowdry, St. Louis, president of the Congress, declared the outlook was "optimistic."

No scientist as yet claims to have found any "specific cure," he declared, but added that "some results are promising—almost exciting."

The American Cancer Society reported that 184,000 Americans would die this year of cancer. Dr. Cowdry said the report indicated that some 17 million Americans now living would die of cancer.

Dr. Louis Herly, of Columbia University, announced that a blood test for early detection of cancer had shown quick and accurate results in animals susceptible to cancer through injection of cancer cells.

Dr. Herly examines blood under "black light." He said normal blood shines and fluoresces but blood of animals with cancer does not do so. The test detected cancer within 20 hours after injections of cancer cells.

It is being tested on humans with results yet inconclusive.

Big Carrier Sails For First Test of V-2 Firing at Sea

Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 2 (AP).—The super aircraft carrier Midway went to sea today to fire V-2 type rockets, it was reported tonight by a usually reliable source who asked to remain anonymous.

Naval spokesmen, asked for detailed information on the tests, believed the first for launching of the entire project was "confidential" and that nothing could be released for publication.

It was reported unofficially that a large number of high ranking Army and Navy officers sailed on the Midway to observe the firing tests.

Ballots, Not Strikes

AFL President William Green pulled no punches in his Labor Day attack on the Taft-Hartley Act. His suggested approach for bringing about changes in the law, however, contained an element of moderation which may well commend itself to other labor leaders. "We must fight our enemies," Mr. Green averred, "not with ill-considered strikes, but with ballots, in the peaceful, democratic way." In contrast to the brash and often hysterical threats that have been widely brandished, that is a procedure to which no one with faith in the traditional American custom of registering protest at the polls can legitimately object.

Mr. Green had other counsel that bears repeating. "The task of organized labor in the months ahead," he said, "will not be to rouse the spirit of retaliation among the membership, but to keep the spontaneous surge of that spirit within disciplined bounds. For our own good and the welfare of the country we must keep production going at full blast and the wheels of industry moving without serious interruption." In other words, Mr. Green realizes that only through continued full production will it be possible to achieve the AFL's principal aims with respect to lower prices, full employment, housing, a higher minimum wage and expanded social security. That realization, though slightly overdue, is highly encouraging, as is Mr. Green's expressed belief in the viability of collective bargaining with as little governmental interference as possible. It will be even more encouraging if there is evidence that Mr. Green intends to back up his praiseworthy stand with more than words.

Abused Veto

Andrei Gromyko needn't have become so excited over Herschel Johnson's effort in the Security Council the other day to arrive at some definition of the proper use of the veto. Mr. Johnson was just reminding Mr. Gromyko and the world that the veto power has been badly abused by the Soviet Union—largely through the application of it to issues, procedural issues especially, to which it was never intended to apply. And he was suggesting that this abuse might best be curbed by some clearer understanding of the distinction between procedural and substantive questions.

Mr. Gromyko must have known perfectly well that Mr. Johnson was not trying to bring about a revision of the United Nations Charter. He must have known at least that he had nothing to fear from such an attempt. For the Charter cannot be revised without his government's consent. There was no danger, therefore, that the Soviet veto power could be in any way impaired. A year or so ago, Messrs. Byrnes, Bevin, Molotov, Couve de Murville and Koo, representing the five governments empowered to exercise a veto in the Security Council, met in New York to study some British proposals for modifying the use of the veto. The meeting came to nothing because of Russian intransigeance. But if the Russians cannot be prevailed upon to exercise some self-restraint in respect of the veto, the United States is scarcely to be blamed for letting the world know about it. The Russians should understand that two can play at the game of using the Security Council as a sounding board.

Quoddy Plan

For several days news stories in The Washington Post have given Mr. Frank Cohen's version of his plan to bring 100,000 displaced persons temporarily to the United States, train them at Passamaquoddy Village, Me., and then send them to South America. We are happy to have afforded Mr. Cohen an opportunity to explain that his motives are wholly concerned with trying to do something about the DP stalemate.

We have in no way changed our mind as to the unworkability of his scheme. The loosely drawn character of the Quoddy prospectus warrants a large measure of skepticism as to the plan's feasibility. This is especially the case since apparently none of the South American governments concerned had given its assent before the plan was made public. We are altogether persuaded that the War Assets Administration and other Government agencies should have nothing to do with the proposal. As a matter of fact, were such a scheme to be put into effect and then to fail in the mechanics, as we feel sure it would, it would be both a cruel disillusionment and a great disservice to the DPs.

Nevertheless, the Cohen plan, premature and ill-advised as it was, in our view, does emphasize again that precious little is being done to give the DPs a chance at a new start as they continue to lose hope in the camps of Europe. To renew that hope is a job that is bigger than any one man or any one plan; it is a task that requires both national and international effort. For its part the United States ought to be thinking about taking skilled DPs in this country, as provided in the Stratton bill, rather than about shipping them to South America.

Mr. Truman At Rio

President Truman's address to the Inter-American Conference for the Maintenance of Continental Peace and Security must be ranked among the most skilled speeches he has ever made. His appearance in Rio de Janeiro marked the climax of a great event in the Western Hemisphere, but the President turned the thoughts of his audience away from the New World to the Old. He joined graciously in the family gathering of the Americas, and then asked his neighbors of this hemisphere to remember that they have a keen interest in the world community. Without in any way belittling the new inter-American security system, he properly subordinated it to the greater problem of bringing reconstruction and peace to the world.

Of course, the conferees at Rio have not been oblivious of the global point of view. Great care was taken at every point to keep the new peace system for the Western Hemisphere in line with the principles and organization of the United Nations. At the same time the special task of the delegates has been regional in character. We think it is especially fitting, therefore, that the President should link this regional achievement to world diplomacy. For the Western Hemisphere cannot hope to attain prosperity with the rest of the world in want. And even though regional disputes can be settled and outside aggression resisted by means of the new machinery devised at Rio, peace for the Western Hemisphere would prove to be an illusion if the economic calamities now confronting Europe should lead to another world war.

Nearly a month ago The Washington Post pointed out that "a joint effort by the continent to win the peace—similar to the joint effort required to win the war—would bring the time nearer when the United States could give more attention to the improvement of the economic ties of the Americas." President Truman has now given effective emphasis to that view. The nations of free Europe will soon make known their needs, he said, explaining that those needs are to be closely related to recovery programs based on self-help and mutual help. "Unquestionably it is in the interest of our country and of the Western Hemisphere in general," he continued, "that we should receive this appeal with sympathy and good will, prepared to do everything we can, within safe limits, that will be helpful and effective." That is a pointed answer to the Argentine hint of some weeks ago that a Marshall Plan for the Western Hemisphere should take precedence over aid to war-stricken Europe.

"The sick and the hungry cannot build a peaceful world," the President went on to say. "We cannot depend upon those who are weaker than we to achieve a peace for us to enjoy." The major burden of helping the world back to its feet clearly falls upon the undevastated Americas, where many nations have surplus food, raw materials or industrial goods. Surely, if the nations of the Western Hemisphere have a common interest in erecting barriers to aggression from Europe, they also have a common interest in ameliorating the conditions that lead to totalitarianism and war.

Constructive as it is, the treaty signed at Rio is a defense against aggression after threats to peace have already arisen. The President's plea was for the kind of help that will enable free peoples to live under tolerable conditions without war. Freedom and at least some measure of economic stability have become indivisible, and both are intimately related to peace. In carrying that thoughtful and progressive message to Rio, President Truman has lifted Pan-American solidarity into an intimate relationship with world community interest.

Turmoil In India

It is reported that Mr. Mohandas Gandhi has entered upon another fast in the hope of putting an end to the riots that have been raging with increasing violence between Hindus and Moslems in Bengal and between Sikhs and Moslems in the Punjab ever since India and Pakistan became sovereign and autonomous nations. The efficacy of Mr. Gandhi's methods of nonviolent suasion in hastening the end of British rule in India has been demonstrated; but that they will be equally effective in the present crisis may be doubted. The house in Calcutta where Mr. Gandhi is now living with the Bengalese Moslem leader, Mr. Suhrawardy—by way of demonstrating that interreligious amity is possible and practicable—was surrounded last Monday by an angry mob of Hindus, and the place was stoned before police dispersed the rioters with tear-gas bombs.

Meanwhile, in the disputed areas of the Punjab a condition approximating anarchy appears to prevail. Tens of thousands of Moslem farmers have been driven from their homes, the fields have been abandoned and the harvest may have been lost, with famine a not improbable consequence. Conditions favorable to epidemic and plague have been created by the slaughter or flight of the Untouchables, to whom the menial but necessary work in connection with sanitation has hitherto been relegated.

All this is evidence that neither Indian independence nor the partition of the country into Hindu and Moslem states has in any way resolved the problem of the Indian minorities, beside which our own minorities problem is simplicity itself. Whether or not, as some say, the Indian minorities are relics of the successive waves of conquest which the peninsula has experienced since prehistoric times, the fact remains that each minority has a religious as well as a social identity. India, in short, is a country where even the slightest religious differences are matters of the utmost seriousness and where less than a hairline divides piety and fanaticism. Whatever the shortcomings of the British Raj, and they were doubtless many, it had at least the virtue and advantage that it transcended the native religious conflicts and was to some extent capable of acting as arbitrator. This is something of which neither the Hindu government of India nor the Moslem government of Pakistan is capable.

When we add to the problem created by the hereditary hostility of Hindu and Moslem the problems created by the innumerable Hindu castes, and by such religious minorities as the Jains, the Parsis, the Sikhs, the Buddhists and the various sects of Indian Christians, it can be seen why the course of Indian independence has been inevitably a stormy one.

Verdict On Palestine

The report of the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine can be better evaluated in terms of expediency than of justice. For the primary question to be asked of the solution it recommends is not whether it is fair to all the conflicting interests concerned—that seems to be quite impossible—but whether it is workable. The question, in other words, is whether the report affords a genuine solution; whether it will bring an end to the problem. From the point of view of the rest of the world, a solution of this problem is imperative. Already it has embroiled so many groups and nations beyond those immediately involved in it as to constitute a real peril to peace. The existing state of affairs simply cannot be permitted to continue. What is necessary now is to accept the verdict and make it effective.

The Arabs, who have already protested against the U. N. report, have a legitimate case against it. So have the Jews, who have thus far lodged no formal protest but have certainly been awarded less than they deemed their due. The decision cannot be considered wholly fair to either side. Jews and Arabs alike can bring to the support of their respective contentions all sorts of data and documents; even Britain, the responsible ruling power, which has played the Jews and Arabs against one another, can make a case for itself, we suppose, out of the pressures and exigencies of world affairs. The U. N. committee no doubt listened patiently to all these cases, striving vainly to decide between them. But in sober truth they were beside the point. The point was that an intolerable situation had to be ended with as much fairness as possible and by the most expedient means.

This, it appears, is what the committee tried to do. Only time, of course, can test whether its solution will work well. But it seems to us to have the best chance of working of any proposal yet broached. Partition, to be sure, is no ideal solution in an area so small as Palestine. Yet it seems the only practicable solution in view of the bitterness that has been generated among its inhabitants. Its ill effects may be tempered by the economic integration recommended in the report. With good will and acceptance of the plan in good faith, Jews and Arabs in Palestine may well be able to develop the good neighborly relations which alone can bring peace and the blessings of prosperity to the long-troubled Holy Land.

No doubt there will be efforts, and especially by feudal leaders of the Arabs, to engender strife and to make the plan unworkable. It is indispensable to the success of the plan, if it is adopted by the United Nations, that such efforts be checked promptly and thoroughly; there is no room here for vacillation. The United States, we think, should share the responsibility and the burden of enforcing whatever solution the United Nations may decree. With this kind of firmness, the problem may be solved. And in this lies the best hope of Jews and Arabs and the world at large. Peace in Palestine is now the indispensable foundation for justice.

CATBIRD

Suddenly
the vine becomes alive and from the tangled leaves the mourning feathers, velvet-dark,
stir softly—
the unexpected song, the quick derisive note
out of the silken throat . . .
the catbird's call.
Unruffled, prim,
coaxing, scolding, teasing,
the tail tipped forward,
two onyx beads for eyes,
he moves along the hedgerows and the shrubs, half mimicry, half laughter,
mewing kitten-wise,
the song flowing after.

'Pacific Trusteeship'

The article, "Pacific Trusteeship," by Roscoe Drummond, in The Washington Post of August 27 should not go uncorrected. Its misinformation and misinterpretation are extreme. "With knowledge that they are accurate," writes Mr. Drummond, "the essential facts (as to the Navy's desire to rule the Pacific islanders) can be stated as follows."

He then sets it forth that Secretary Forrestal and President Truman favored civilian administration of the islanders, "but they were vetoed. Mr. Truman was vetoed, Mr. Forrestal was vetoed—both by the Reconstruction Finance Corp."

This "veto," Mr. Drumond explains, was the refusal of the RFC to continue to operate the Pacific branch of the United States Commercial Co., and the consequent annexation of that function by the Navy. Incidentally Mr. Drummond does not mention the Navy's purpose to "fire" all but two of the trained and experienced civilians of the United States Commercial Co. and to replace them with untrained and inexperienced naval officers.

The strange perversion in Mr. Drummond's article rests in his identification of the United States Commercial Co. with civilian rule over the islanders. Evidently he is totally unfamiliar with the record, congressional and other. The United States Commercial Co. never ruled the islanders. It never pretended to rule them. No one ever, anywhere or any time, has suggested that the United States Commercial Co. should become the civilian agency to replace the Navy as ruler of the islanders. The functions of the United States Commercial Co. were exclusively economic.

President Truman has never retreated from or qualified his stand for civilian administration. As for the Navy: that institution exerted itself potently for nearly 50 years to stay on as the absolutist ruler over American Samoa and Guam; and its determination to rule likewise over the Micronesians was one of the determining factors in the distortion of our trusteeship agreement for that vast area of the Pacific. The Navy continues to wage a delaying action, as it did in the years gone in the case of American Samoa and Guam.

Impatient Streetcars

In a letter published in this space on January 7, when the Capital Transit Co. was campaigning for an increase in fares, I complained of the service which that utility offered to the public. In particular I objected to the practice of deliberately passing up passengers who were waiting at stops. The proposed fare increase, I believed, should be made conditional upon an improvement in service.

Such an improvement has not, to my knowledge, been instituted. Frequently I wait for streetcars at Mount Pleasant and Harvard sts. This is near the beginning of the line, and there is no reason that I know of why cars should always be behind schedule at this point. Yet repeatedly, at all times during the day, one empty car after another has sped past the growing crowd of waiting patrons. Only if the stop-light is red, apparently, does one have the privilege of boarding a car here.

Public protest failing, I have devised a method of securing transportation when I am in a hurry. Instead of waiting patiently in the street to be ignored, I now stand on the tracks until the vehicle comes to a stop. This is not recommended procedure, for there is no way of knowing the limits of discourtesy and recklessness among Capital Transit operators, but here at least is a solution which has not yet failed.

Moderate Hem Line

I was astonished at an article I read recently on the skirt question. I thought everyone understand by this time that the skirt length we are trying to establish covers the knee and curve at back of leg. Nothing could be uglier or more unbecoming than a skirt length which shows the knee and curve of the leg.

This fashion came in during the war with many other ridiculous ones. The majority of women I don't believe have ever worn knee dresses. A few are still seen on the street. I imagine they are old garments that can't be lengthened or are not worth the trouble.

If everyone is as tired as I am of lengthening and shortening skirts they will put every iota of influence they have behind the move for skirts below the knee and push it through. It would be just as sensible to be changing men's pants from long to knee length and back again. The designers would do this if the men would stand for it, but they know they can't put just anything over on the men like they do the women on the pretext of being the style.

A poll has been taken of New York designers, and they say women will wear long skirts and like it. Will we? Wake up, ladies. We must do something drastic or we will find ourselves in ankle length dresses this fall.

Women Correspondents

The White House's slip is showing and career women are going to take exception to the fact Mrs. May Craig was ruled out of covering a story because she was a woman newspaper correspondent.

Twenty-five newspapermen are scheduled to return on the battleship Missouri with the President. The ship has accommodations for a crew of 2700. Quarters are reserved for the President, Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, but discrimination ruled out Mrs. May Craig, who is a former war correspondent.

Once before newspapermen objected to accommodations being installed for women reporters at the Capitol and Mrs. Craig fought the issue with the help of various women legislators and won. This was before World War II. Must this man's world be reminded the war has left thousands of women with families and even husbands to support and this "prejudice against career women" is not only old fashioned, but it is very ungallant and in very bad taste?

Everglades Park

A Californian, interested in a possible Everglades national park, offered the Audubon Society $1000 toward its saving the ivorybilled woodpecker. This magnificent bird is the largest of American woodpeckers. If any mating pairs still exist they probably are in the swamps of Florida or Louisiana.

National parks entered what might be called its "Mather development." Director Mather spent his private fortune where congressional appropriations were not obtainable 30 years ago.

In 1920, however, came the addition of nature guiding. This was based upon European nature studies. It spread like a prairie fire. Parks are now staffed with ranger naturalists.

When World War II broke, some 15 million Americans were using these naturalists. This number would be doubled if East-of-the-Mississippi had its fair share of national parks. An Everglades national park would accelerate this.

Mr. Marzani's Answer

In your issue of August 22, Ernest Lindley's guest columnist, Mr. Crawford, stated that the concern of Mrs. Roosevelt and others over the current attack on civil liberties has no real foundation—and cited my case as example.

"There is nothing in the Marzani trial record to suggest trickery," he writes and points out that I was indicted under a law "which has been on the statute books since 1863." This is contrary to fact. The clauses under which I was indicted were placed on the books in 1934. More important, however, the trickery consisted in extending the statute of limitations in my case through the use of a law designed to catch fraudulent war contractors.

Mr. Crawford implies that my case represents "an effort to rid the Government of Communists and fellow travelers." The record shows I was indicted two months after I left the Government. The record also shows the State Department tampered with its own documents in a vain effort to show I had been fired.

Mr. Crawford attacks Mrs. Roosevelt's statement that the court had denied bail. Having spent several weeks in prison until the Court of Appeals reversed the trial court and granted bail, I can assure him that Mrs. Roosevelt's statement was correct.

This lack of accuracy on Mr. Crawford's part is much less disturbing than his contribution to American political theory. "There is a point," he writes "where devotion to civil liberties can become plain political gullibility." This to me is plain Nazi thinking.

A further use of Nazi tactics is the assertion that Communists and fellow travelers "insinuate themselves into democratic governments with the deliberate purpose of serving as spies and saboteurs." This proposition is the very core of reactionary stategy to isolate the left and silence liberals.

The answer to it is simple. During the war we found adequate protection in existing laws on espionage and sabotage. These laws are operative and the FBI has not been starved for either funds or personnel. The safety of the state is well guarded and does not depend on "loyalty" investigations and phony "criminal" prosecutions which are terrorizing Government employes and stifling criticism.

It is time to call the reactionary bluff. It is time to assert that patriotism and the status quo are not synonymous. In my own case, my war record at home and overseas speaks for itself. Mr. Crawford would do well to reexamine his thinking, for if he doesn't he will end up in strange company. There is a point where gullible acceptance of red-baiting becomes suicidal surrender of civil liberties.

Stooge Unions

BERLIN.—The most powerful instrument of Russian foreign policy is that part of the trade-union movement outside Russia which has come under Communist domination. It rates higher than the Communist parties, which in many instances have been discredited.

This is the considered judgment of those who are meeting at first hand the competition of Russia here on the Berlin battleground. Both within the framework of Germany and within the larger frame of western Europe, the leverage exerted through a Communist-dominated labor movement is great.

France is the cardinal example. The Communists control the French Confederation of Workers. They can threaten to paralyze French industry. The French government uses that threat to try to persuade the State Department in Washington to hold up all plans for making the 40 million Germans in the United States-British zones more nearly self-supporting.

Forty million starving people are fair game for communism. Breakdown and chaos are an invitation to totalitarianism of the Soviet variety. That is the logic of communism in western Europe.

It has a parallel logic inside Germany. In some respects, in their zone in east Germany, the Russians have failed. They have failed to make mass converts to their Socialist Unity Party. People with knowledge here say that, if a secret vote could be taken in the Soviet zone, perhaps as high as 80 per cent would vote against the Soviet Party.

BUT IN ONE LINE the Soviet rulers have succeeded. By the familiar techniques of infiltration, force and economic coercion, they have captured the trade unions. The order of control passes right up to the top.

The cry of the unions within the Soviet zone is for unity with the unions in the British and United States zones. That is a persuasive cry at this moment in Germany. It has a deep appeal to more and more Germans who are fearful that their country will be split permanently into two or three parts.

For that reason, trade-union heads in the American zone cannot say no. Most of them would like to. They are Social-Democrat or Catholics and they foresee that unity would be likely to open the way to the same tactics of infiltration and force which allow the Communists to wield control in the Soviet zone.

What has happened is typical of so much that happens here—daily. Trade-union leaders from the British-United States zones attended a conference with leaders from the Soviet zone. At that conference they proposed a committee to study the unity plan and another significant proposal related to it.

This is where the international power angle comes in. The World Federation of Trade Unions met in Prague this summer. At that meeting the federation, dominated by Communist union leaders, voted to take in German unions which would represent all Germany.

Here is another persuasive appeal for the German people—an invitation to belong to an international body. A German leader who said no to such an invitation would find himself in an embarrassing spot.

THE COMMITTEE of German trade unionists named to study the invitation to unity and to membership in the World Federation agreed to report just before the Council of Foreign Ministers are due to meet in London. That is an interesting coincidence. If they report in favor of unity and membership in the federation, the Soviet will have won a minor engagement in the contest for Germany. And in the long run it could prove to be a major victory.

While the Soviet zone is for the most part a closed world, various competent witnesses have testified to Russia's success in Sovietizing their part of Germany. After a tour of the zone, J. Emlyn Williams of the Christian Science Monitor, one of the ablest correspondents in Germany, wrote that it "has been organized as far as conditions allow as if it were part of the Soviet Union." He noted "fundamental changes which will survive after many of those introduced in the other zones."

The technique of organizing stooge unions and capturing those which have been relatively independent is one in which Moscow's agents excel. The Communist union is the spearhead of Communist dominion in every other field. That is unmistakably clear from the perspective of the contest being waged in Europe.

Mimosa Blights

It becomes apparent, when driving through Maryland and Virginia, that a terrible blight has struck the mimosa, our most beautiful tree. I consulted the Department of Agriculture and found there are two blights. One is the wilt disease which attacks from the earth through the roots. They have found no preventive or cure for this. The second is the webworm and the Division of Forest Insects, Bureau of Entymology, Beltsville Research Center, has successful spray. For that reason it would be good to arouse the owners of mimosa trees so that they can ascertain what is attacking their trees and use the spray if it is the webworm.

Those of us whose trees have the wilt disease must resign ourselves to losing them.

French Communists

By Andre Visson

Report On Europe: V

THE MOST encouraging political factor in France in the summer of 1947 is the decrease of the direct Communist influence and pressure. The "sacred union" of the French political parties, which was established with the Communists in the Resistance, came to an end in May when the Communists left the French government.

The French realize that, although the Communist Party is the strongest of all their political parties, it is nonetheless possible to govern France without it. Furthermore there are many indications that the French Communists are beginning to lose the attraction they exerted on French intellectuals and workers immediately after the liberation.

Two years ago an alarmingly great number of French painters and writers considered it "fashionable" to express their sympathy for the Communist movement. Those men have not yet turned anti-Communist; but, in the summer of 1947, they feel somewhat embarrassed to express their pro-Communist sympathies. The "revolutionary and patriotic" colors of the Communist banner, by which they had been attracted, faded. And there is no "intellectual adventure" in communism. The French Communist Party revealed itself to be an implacable bureaucratic machine, the brains of which are well hidden behind the doors of the Politbureau, to which no French intellectual sympathizer can be admitted.

French intellectuals, accustomed to thinking of radical political changes in the dynamic and heroic style of the French Revolution, feel disappointed. The French Communists do not have any use for revolutionary heroes. All they need are blindly obedient followers. As to their own leaders, once admitted to participate in the government they behaved in many respects exactly like the non-Communist ministers. The Communist ministers had as many, if not more, government limousines and accepted dinner invitations of the same Parisian hostesses.

THE LOSS of the Communist attraction has been precipitated by the latest trends of the Soviet foreign policy. For two years many non-Communist Frenchmen lived with the idea that Soviet Russia, the greatest military power on the continent, would be the best safeguard for France against the resurrection of a German danger and, perhaps, even against any "American economic imperialism," which so many Frenchmen feared was eyeing the richest areas of the French colonial empire.

But Soviet opposition to the incorporation of the Saar in the economy of France, and the sympathy expressed by the French Communists—on Moscow's instructions — for autonomous movements in French colonial possessions in Africa and Indo-China have considerably tarnished the allegedly nationalist shine of the French Communist Party.

Now the French suspect that not only the English-speaking powers but also Soviet Russia may want to have a stronger Germany as an ally in the conflict which is shaping up between the United States and Soviet Russia. Should this be the case, then it is of no use to look toward Moscow for protection. If both Washington and Moscow want to build up a strong Germany, it might still be better to look toward Washington.

THE FRENCH workers continue to be led by the Communists in the powerful Confederation Generale du Travail (General Federation of Trade Unions); but a growing number of French workers, and especially their wives, are beginning to ask whether the Communist policies really serve their own best interests.

Immediately after the liberation, the Communists succeeded by a number of clever tricks in getting control of the General Federation of Trade Unions. They felt so sure of the backing of the workers that they concentrated all their vote-getting efforts on the peasants and on the middle classes.

In order to succeed in this effort, they had to support the wage-stabilization policy of the French government. But a number of wildcat strikes, some of which expanded into great strike movements, forced the Communists to revise their policy and tactics. Since they are out of the government, they are in a better position to recover their control of the dissatisfied workers; but they find it much more difficult to reassure and to attract peasants and middle-class Frenchmen.

The main stronghold of the French Communists is still the General Federation of Trade Unions. According to the best French and other Western European trade union experts whom this writer had the opportunity of consulting, the Communists have hardly more than 45 per cent in the ranks of the French trade unions. But nonetheless, they control three quarters of union leadership. As long as the Communists maintain their present control, they can use the trade unions as a gun pointed at the French government.

One of the greatest problems facing France is, therefore, how to reduce the Communist control of the trade unions to the actual Communist ratio within the unions. Non-Communist trade union leaders believe that this would be possible if trade union elections were held by secret ballot and were to take place in the plants during working hours, instead of being held late in the evenings at meetings in which the Communists use their attrition and blackmailing tactics in order to capture control of the unions in which they are in the minority.

DISAPPOINTED by the Communist policy, many French workers have become disgusted with all political parties. They start to think in terms of "anarchist syndicalism," which had its roots in France in the nineteenth-century socialist theories of Proudhon. This latest trend incites the left wing of the French Socialist Party to bid for the leadership of the dissatisfied workers. And, in their desire to capture the votes of the workers, the left-wing Socialists, who succeed in gaining control of the national committee of their party, even risk breaking the present coalition government by forcing the Socialist premier, Ramadier, to go too much to the left.

The general consensus among French politicians is that, should France be left to herself, the Communist danger would certainly subside. Nobody believes that the Communists can any longer gain power by using democratic tactics in elections. And while there are many indications that the Communists are preparing themselves for a possible coup by intensifying the clandestine armaments of their fighting units, it is not believed that the French Communists would dare to instigate such a coup without being sure that they would receive immediate and full support from the Red Army. Thus, the Communist danger in France ceases to be an internal problem and becomes an international one.

Should only France be guaranteed ten years of peace, she would cease to consider her Communists, despite their five and a half million votes, as any serious threat to her democratic institutions.

Housing Shortage to Be Solved By Congress, McCarthy Says

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), vice chairman of a joint congressional housing investigating committee, yesterday predicated Congress would find a "bipartisan" answer to the housing shortage.

"I don't think the problem is so great we can't find an answer," he told a press conference.

"If we can't find an answer we should resign our jobs and go back home."

McCarthy, here to contact heads of Federal housing agencies before the committee launches formal hearings, described the home shortage as "tremendous" and prices as "out of reach."

He said the group will concentrate on "road blocks" to adequate housing, including material costs, labor costs, outmoded building codes and laws, archaic designs, restrictions on material supply, restrictions on labor supply and output, financing and insurance costs and local taxes.

He told of inspecting one veterans' emergency housing project in New York last week, together with Representative Ralph A. Gamble (R., N. Y.), chairman of the investigating group:

"We found dead rats on the doorsteps, gas seeping from garbage and veterans living in mud," he said. "When you find conditions like that you feel there is a problem."

McCarthy said he and Gamble had agreed "to conduct an investigation, not an inquisition.

"If we are to lick the housing problem, it must be through cooperation, rather than compulsion.

"Business interested in the building industry, building trades unions, and Federal, State and municipal housing officials are invited to cooperate. Our first job will be to isolate and clear away the 'road blocks.'"

The resolutions creating the group directed it to bring in recommendations for legislation by next March 15. McCarthy said letters will go out to all members of Congress this week inviting suggestions.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Clayton Cables

UNDERSECRETARY of State Will Clayton has been sending to Washington a series of urgent cables from Europe. With an almost desperate conviction, he has been pressing the Administration leaders to call a special session of Congress in December at the latest. The purpose of this session, Clayton has urged, should be to appropriate an emergency advance to Europe of at least 2½ billion dollars, rather than to consider the Marshall Plan as a whole. This emergency advance must be available by January at the latest. Otherwise, Clayton has warned, the whole European situation will literally explode.

Clayton, who is not given to hysteria, has taken the lead in urging this crucial emergency step. But he has also been supported by Ambassador to England Lewis Douglas, Ambassador to France Jefferson Caffery, and Robert Murphy, highest ranking State Department representative in Germany. These men have been conferring regularly together for some weeks. The reason why they unite in urging emergency action is quite clear. They have faced up to the facts. And the facts inescapably insist that Europe cannot wait for the Marshall Plan. The gap will be too long.

Two such facts tell a good part of the story. First, there is no longer the slightest doubt that Italy will have spent its last dollar before January 1. Second, France is so desperately starved for dollars that the French government has been allowed, with exceedingly doubtful legality, to draw about 25 million dollars a month from the International Monetary Fund, merely to stave off imminent collapse.

THE MEANING of these facts is not difficult to grasp. Both making reasonable progress toward internal economic and political stability. Yet unless something is done before March, the earliest date when the Marshall Plan can be expected to come into operation on the present schedule, all this progress will go for nothing.

By the first of the year in the case of Italy, and not long after in France, there will suddenly be no more dollars with which to buy wheat from this country to feed the people, or coal to keep the economy functioning. The economic consequences are entirely predictable, a desperate currency crisis and economic chaos. The political consequences are hardly less certain. In political terms, the Marshall Plan will come too late.

What is happening in Italy and France is grim enough. What is happening in England is, in a different sense, just as grim. Prime Minister Clement Attlee's harsh austerity program, even by the most hopeful estimates, has reduced the dollar drain on England by at most one third. American experts privately estimate that dollars will continue to flow out of the British treasury at the rate of at least 40 million a week, and probably as much as 50 million.

An extremely simple mathematical calculation brings home the real meaning of this dollar drain. March is 24 weeks away. Twenty-four weeks multiplied by 50 million dollars means a loss to the British of more than one billion precious dollars. There is not the faintest doubt that the British cannot afford to take such a loss.

ONE CONCLUSION is thus inescapable. The British leaders, confronted by the endless seeping away of their dollar war chest, will become increasingly desperate to save dollars by whatever means lies to hand. One means is obvious. It is Germany, where the British are paying precious dollars to support half the cost of the merged Anglo-American zones. Thus, it is all too likely that, in a kind of fury of desperation, the British will suddenly announce that they intend to withdraw from Germany bag and baggage. This will confront the United States with the awful choice between ourselves occupying the whole of western Germany or allowing the Soviets to move in.

These then are the facts of our situation—The danger of imminent economic and political collapse in Italy and France, the danger of England's withdrawal from her European commitments. Either danger threatens something close to catastrophe. Clayton and his colleagues in Europe have been inescapably confronted with these facts. And they have had the courage to face up to them.

The facts insistently demand an American response. They demand first, the special session which Clayton is urging on the unwilling Administration. They demand, second, an understanding now, before the British cabinet acts in hasty desperation, with the British on Germany. They demand, in short, that the United States act now, before disaster, rather than later when disaster has already happened. A blood transfusion is obviously required. A blood transfusion is of little use when the patient is already dead.

Thus the United States must do what it has never done before. It must take the initiative. As the only possible leader, the United States must lead. If the Administration and the country are prepared to face the facts, and to act upon them, the stable and peaceful world which the future of the United States requires, is still possible. If we are not prepared to face the facts, the future is dark indeed.

1,325,000 Veterans Expected in College

The Veterans Administration said yesterday it expected 1,325,000 World War II veterans to go to college this fall—a 10 per cent increase over the previous high enrollment of last April.

The agency, basing its forecast upon advance registrations, advised student-veteran candidates for subsistence allowances to take along enough money to meet their personal financial needs for at least the first six weeks of the autumn term.

Baldwin Hits 'Inner Circle' GOP Leadership of Congress

By the United Press

Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) yesterday roundly criticized what he termed "inner circle" leadership of Congress by rock-ribbed Republicans, and warned that such men at the party helm could cost the GOP victory in the 1948 elections.

The "Old Guard," he said, "gravely hindered" the Republican program during the past session of Congress, while, he added, its failure to consult with first-term members touched off "embarrassing, disruptive" inter-party fights.

Baldwin was a co-leader in the first session of Congress of 16 "freshmen" GOP Senators who demanded an active role in party policymaking, instead of the "freshmen-should-be-seen-and-not-heard" part traditionally assigned to first termers.

His remarks yesterday, directed chiefly to "traditional, hard-core" Depublican elder statesmen, were carried in a signed article entitled, "Where the GOP Has Failed," in the September issue of American Magazine.

'48 Victory Not Certain

He warned bluntly that a 1948 GOP election triumph was no sure thing. He said the decision would rest in at least 20 "switch States" where the outcome is decided by "show-me" independent voters. These, he wrote, include such key states as New York, Pennsylvania, California, Connecticut, Illinois, Masachusetts and Missouri.

"If we act in the interest only of a minority of rock-ribbed Reshall again quickly become a minority party. If we are to remain the majority party, we must act effectively inthe interests of a majority of the people."

At no time did Baldwin direct his shafts by name at Chairman Robert A. Taft of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. But he left no doubt that a good portion of his attack was pointed at the Ohioan, who is expected to be an active candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

The article appeared as Taft is preparing to take off on a "sounding-board tour" of the Western States.

Reached by telephone at his Bridgeport, Conn., home, Baldwin was asked if his article meant that he would find it impossible to support Taft's presidential aspirations.

Won't Name His Favorite

He declined to make any statement "as to whom I favor." But it is common knowledge in Connecticut political circles he would be friendly toward the nomination of either Gov. Earl Warren of California or former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota.

Regarding the freshmen rebellion, Baldwin wrote that it was with chagrin that newcomers to the Senate found many important policy decisions already made when they took their seats last January.

He said that neglect by party leaders of the voice of the first termers had resulted in constant rows within Republican ranks.

The upshot of the freshmen rebellion was that the group obtained representation of Taft's policy committee and was given the right to participate in important party conferences.

Hoover Says U. S. Provoked Japs; Was Unwise to Fight

By The Associated Press

Former President Herbert Hoover was quoted yesterday by the American Magazine as saying the United States never would have been attacked by Japan at Pearl Harbor, precipitating the Nation's entry into World War II, "if we had not given them provocation."

Sidney Shalett, writing in the September issue, said "Hoover still does not believe it was necessary for the United States to enter the war," and quoted the 73-year-old Republican elder statesman as adding in an interview:

"My theory is that, if we had kept out of the immediate conflict, we could have put our sword down on the table, with our economic resources intact, and made a decent peace when the time for peacemaking came.

"I never believed Britain was in danger of defeat. When Germany attacked Russia, it made a British victory possible."

"No Truth in Russians"

Shalett wrote that Hoover placed no trust in the Russians, asserting at one point "you can't pin them down. There isn't any truth in them."

In Hoover's opinion, the writer said, Premier Stalin will make international contracts "with the full knowledge that they aren't worth a dam if they do not work out to his advantage."

"A whole series of Communist revolutions," already under way, is going to be the effect of World War II in Hoover's view, Shalett said.

"Yet," the article continued, "he does not feel that world-wide Communist domination or even World War III are inevitable. He would have the United States fight the Communist with economic weapons."

"The first is anti-collectivism—anti-collectivism in all its forms.

New Deal "Collectivist"

"The second was to keep us out of the war. We succeeded in that until Pearl Harbor. Up to that moment, 90 per cent of the American people, Senators, and Congressmen would have voted against it. But then, of course, we all came in to win.

"The third is the question of relief and food for the suffering people of the world."

Shalett quoted Hoover as affirming collectivism was his synonym from the New Deal.

Asked about the possibility of economic depression, Hoover said "so long as the Nation exports all its surplus, we can't have a depression. It's impossible."

Flynn Tells How Truman Was Chosen by Roosevelt

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—The "inside" story of how the late President Roosevelt picked Harry S. Truman for the 1944 vice presidential nomination is told in the autobiography of Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national committeeman from New York and close associate of the late President.

Flynn

The book, entitled "You're the Boss," is to be published Friday by the Viking Press.

Flynn, "boss" of the Bronx Democratic machine for 25 years, says the decision of Truman's nomination was made well in advance of the nominating convention while Flynn was at the White House with the President. The President gave him the job of urging Truman on other big city leaders, Flynn says, with the admonition that Roosevelt's own preference for Truman was not to be disclosed.

Flynn declares in the book that he "sold" Mr. Truman to the other leaders at the convention but that at a later conference while he was absent, they decided on James F. Byrnes instead.

Flynn related that he argued desperately and finally had to get the President on the telephone and have him tell the other leaders that Flynn's action had been authorized by him.

Confidence in 1948 Victory For G. O. P. Dwindles Sharply

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 2.—Public confidence in a G.O.P. victory next year has dropped sharply.

The number of voters who think the Republican Party will win the Presidency has dwindled to little more than half of what it was last December.

Democrats see more chance of victory now than they did nine months ago. Republicans, once supremely confident that 1948 was "in the bag," are taking a somewhat sober attitude today. Many who were at one time sure about a G.O.P. victory have now lost that faith and are sitting on the fence saying "don't know."

A major reason for the changed attitude is, of course, the political comeback of President Truman and the Democratic Party since the poor showing made in the 1946 election—a comeback charted in polls reported by the Institute as early as February 2. The first anywhere in the country to spot the Democratic resurgence, these surveys were published at a time when other observers were still showing the Democrats lagging.

How the country is today doping out the political score for 1948 is shown in the following Institute survey:

"Regardless of how you yourself feel, which party do you think will win the presidential election in 1948?"

	Dec. '46	May '47	Now
Think Dems. will win	9%	30%	30%
Think Reps. will win	79	53	46
No opinion	12	17	24

One noteworthy thing about these figues is that while faith in a Republican victory has gone steadily downward, from 79 to 46, at the same time there has been no increase since May in the number looking for a Democratic victory. Rather, there has been an increase in the no opinion or undecided vote, indicating that a good many voters have tended to shift from confidence in the G.O.P. to a neutral position.

THE CHANGE of attitudes within the two parties is shown below. Last December more than nine in every ten Republicans felt sure the G.O.P. would win in 1948. Today seven in ten feel that way.

HOW REPUBLICANS SIZE UP FUTURE

	Dec. '46	May '47	Now
Think Dems. will win	1%	12%	18%
Think Reps. will in	94	94	76
No opinion	5	12	18

HOW DEMOCRATS SIZE UP FUTURE

	Dec. '46	May '47	Now
Think Dems. will win	19%	49%	46%
Think Reps. will win	62	33	30
No opinion	19	18	24

REPUBLICAN leaders last week hailed the overwhelming G.O.P. victory in the special election for Congress in the Michigan eleventh district as an omen of good tidings in 1948.

The most recent Institute survey on political party preference throughout all the 48 states shows however that the G.O.P. has a good deal of fence-mending to do if it hopes to emerge as the major party in the presidential race. On July 14 the Institute reported that 55 per cent of the Nation's voters with opinions would prefer to vote for the Democratic Party if an election were being held, while 45 per cent would favor the G.O.P. The Democrats took the lead last February with 51 per cent against 49 per cent for the Republicans.

The two most popular candidates in the rival parties are President Truman for the Democrats and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Republicans. When matched against each other in an Institute presidential "trial heat," Truman led with 51 per cent, to Dewey's 49 per cent, as reported July 27.

Real Estate Bond Index At New Peak

By S. Oliver Goodman

Real estate bond prices reached a new high in August.

The Amott-Baker Index of 200 issues, which includes four Washington realty issues, moved to $757 per $1000 bond. This compared with the previous peak of $753 on June 30, 1946.

August advance increased the average by 0.6 per cent and marked the third consecutive month in which real estate security prices have worked to higher levels. The current price represents a recovery of 6.2 per cent from the low of $709 to which the market declined between June 30, 1946, and September 30, 1946.

The price rise last month favored no special class of real estate bonds, although office building securities have led other issues in price advances for the year to date.

Amott, Baker & Co. said mortgage bonds are now 3.7 per cent higher than at the beginning of the year. Office building bonds are up 5.3 per cent, hotel issues 3.3, apartment hotel 3.1, and apartment building 1.3 per cent.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 2 (AP).—Export demand was the dominating factor in today's trading in grain futures at the Board of Trade.

All grains opened lower on reports to brokers that Great Britain would refuse its September and October export allocations, and a light rally after a weak opening was not supported.

Later in the trading brokers heard that Great Britain would refuse only the October allocation, and a rally developed which carried prices to near Saturday's close. Then came reports that the Commodity Credit Corp. had reentered the wheat market at Kansas City, for the first time in a week, and prices advanced sharply.

At the finish wheat was ½ to 1½ higher than Saturday's close, September 2.56¾@2.57. Corn was ½ to 1¼ higher, September 2.45@2.45¼, and oats were unchanged to ⅛ higher.

Late in the trading private reports from Washington were to the effect that the October allocation for Great Britain would not be disposed of immediately but would be held, in the event some change develops in the British financial situation, or for use by some other country in an emergency develops.

Atlas Plywood Net Soars to $3,093,411

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Atlas Plywood Corp today reported record net income for the fiscal year ended June 30 of $3,093,411, or $5.87 a common share, compared with a previous peak of $1,476,904, or $2.80 a common share, in the preceding fiscal year.

"The greater profits," said Elmore I. MacPhile, president, "resulted from the enlarged production of our expanded plant capacity and larger export sales. However, the percentage of profits to sales declined because of wage increases granted to labor and higher costs of lumber and other manufacturing supplies, although the profit situation was aided by the fact that considerable company-owned timber was cut and used."

Melville Sales Climb

New York, Sept. 2 —Melville Shoe Corp. today reported retail sales for the four weeks ended August 23 totaled $4,438,465, a gain of 6.9 per cent over $4,152,592 in the comparable 1946 period. For the year to August 23 sales increased 12.9 per cent to $42,548,306 from $37,680,386 last year.

D.C. Policeman Is Reinstated

Garrett Stewart

poration Counsel Oliver Gasch.

Letters urging leniency for Stewart had been sent to the Commissioners by Senator Clyde A. Hoey (D., N. C.) and Representatives Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) and Hamilton C. Jones (D., N. C.).

Other letters in Stewart's behalf were received by the Commissioners from Charles D'Andelet, of the Colonial Furniture Co., 3275 M st. nw., representing a group of Georgetown businessmen; Randolph Dillon, vice president of American Scale Manufacturing Co., 3206 Grace st. nw., and the Rock Creek Citizens Association.

Young Denies "Pressure"

Commissioner John Russell Young denied the Commissioners had been influence by "pressure" from the three Congressmen.

"We decided the case entirely on its own merits," he declared.

The case grew out of a complaint by Fitzpatrick that he was beaten by Stewart without provocation while waiting for a streetcar with a companion. Stewart testified that Fitzpatrick shouted a threat as he and Garrett drove by.

Stewart said he heard a threat, got out of the car and placed Fitzpatrick under arrest. He said Fitzpatrick was hurt when he struggled with him and both fell to the street.

Jailor Held In Attempted N. C. Lynching

Jackson, N. C., Sept. 2 (AP).—A Superior Court judge today dismissed charges against six of seven white men accused in the attempted lynching of a Negro but had the Northampton County jailer arrested and bound the seventh defendant over to a grand jury.

The action was taken by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, who sat today as a special committing magistrate on Gov. R. Gregg Cherry's commission, after the Northampton County grand jury last month found no cause for action against the seven.

The judge, in freeing six of the accused men, ordered that Joe Cunningham, assistant theater manager at nearby Rich Square where race tension has run high this year, be held for action by the adjoining Warren County grand jury on September 16.

Arrest of A. W. Edwards, elderly jailer, from whom 22-year-old Godwin (Buddy) Bush was taken by an armed and masked band last May 23, came as a surprise move in a hushed and crowded courtroom. It followed testimony by Edwards today that there had been no force or threats against him when the Negro was taken from jail.

Judge Frizzelle stopped the six men who were freed just as they arose to leave the courtroom. "Before you go," the judge said, "I want to make this observation. This court is passing only on probable cause. It is perfectly apparent . . . that the only reason you are allowed to go free is because of the incompetence of Mr. Cunningham's confession as it concerns you. If the statement had been made in the presence of the other six, it would have been admitted—or if it had been made before the accomyplishment of the conspiracy, it would have been admitted."

In advising Edwards of the bench warrant against him, Judge Frizzelle said the jailer had done nothing to prevent the masked men from taking Bush. "Not once di ydbuegthe mo did you beg them to desist. You let them into the Negro's cell and pointed him out. I couldn't leave this courtroom with my self-respect intact if I did not hold you under a bench warrant."

Jailer Edwards was arrested by Sheriff J. C. Stephenson on a bench warrant issued by Judge Frizzelle. It charged him with conspiracy in breaking and entering a jail and with aiding and abetting in the breaking and entering. The jailer's case will also be considered by the Warren County grand jury.

Cunningham is charged with conspiracy to break and enter a jail and with breaking and entering a jail with intent to kill or injure Bush, the same counts on which all seven of the original defendants were charged. Each of the two counts carries a maximum imprisonment of 15 years. All of the seven defendants earlier today had pleaded not guilty when the charges were made.

out that a Treasury Department ruling permits exemption of patronage refunds from net taxable income.

"When such patronage refunds are paid in stock or other evidences of equity interest, they can be retained by the consumer cooperative corporation for purposes of expansion," he declared. "The private corporation is not able to set aside any part of its net income tax-free for purposes of expansion."

Investigation to Continue

Ballinger said the House subcommittee intends to continue its investigations.

"Whether justifiable or not," Ballinger declared, "it does enable such cooperatives to pay far less taxes than a privately owned corporation would have to pay and to utilize, if it so desires, this tax-free income to expand its operations."

The committee accountant, Ballinger said, was unable to determine from his study of the cooperative's annual audit reports whether patronage refunds in any tax year had been paid in cash or in stock or other evidences of equity interest.

To the criticism that the tax-exemption feature of patronage refunds is unfair to private corporations, M. J. Trast, public relations counsel for the cooperative, declared:

"That's ridiculous. Any corporation that would give its net income back to its customers would not have to pay tax on it."

Trast said the cooperative makes all its patronage refunds "available in cash" to its participants. Whether or not they prefer to convert it to stock is entirely up to them, he said.

Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., holds exclusive business rights in Greenbelt, where approximately 8000 live in houses built and owned by the Government. Inquiry into its operations is part of a general study being made by the subcommittee on effects of such cooperatives on small business.

Freak Storms Kill Three in New England

Boston, Sept. 2 (INS).—Damage of more than a million dollars was caused this afternoon in southern New England by a series of freak storms—high "twister" winds, lightning and torrential rains—which left a toll of three dead.

The heaviest damage was done in South Easton-Brockton areas in southern Massachusetts where the loss was estimated at $500,000.

North of Boston, wind gusts measured 116 miles an hour, while in Boston the winds were 41 miles. A normal two weeks rainfall fell in a six-hour period.

Lightening Strikes Plant

Lightning struck a manufacturing plant in South Boston, and high winds leveled three walls as the roof collapsed. Killed was Henry Manchester, 72, who was crushed in the wreckage.

At Thomaston, Conn., Mark Sears, 49, was killed when lightning struck his home and caused an explosion in the furnace on which he was working.

The third victim was Alfred Smith, 22, Readville, fatally injured when two cars collided in Westwood, their drivers blinded by the downpour.

Areas of southern New Hampshire, eastern Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut were swept by the freakish weather. At Magnolia and Manchester, high winds lifted a two-story building of the Manchester Marine Railway 50 feet into the air, but no rain fell. Trees blocked highways.

Winds cut a swath 300 feet wide across North Providence and Smithfield in Rhode Island. Nearly 500 telephones were out of order in the Attleboro section in Massachusetts.

Peru Suspends Constitutional Guarantees

Lima, Peru, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Constitutional guarantees were suspended today by President Jose Luis Bustamante because of a 5-day-old general strike in Lima and its port of El Callao.

Forty-eight labor leaders were arrested on various charges connected with the strike, which was declared illegal from the outset and had been only partly successful.

A joint communique issued by the General Labor Confederation and the Union of Labor Syndicates contended that the strike had been settled in direct negotiations with management half an hour before President Bustamante ordered constitutional guarantees suspended.

Bustamante's charges that the strike had a political character and a "marked subversive tendency" were denied in the joint communique.

Many workers had returned voluntarily to their jobs, after authorities announced they would be protected. Garbage collection was resumed after five days and otherwise the situation was rapidly returning to normal.

However, army and police detachments still patrolled the streets and guarded industrial, banking and other establishments.

Police launched an investigation of the bombing of the home of former President Manuel Prado.

Look . . . How Main Street Has Grown!

● Main Street stretches around the world!

Now it's only 36 hours by air to any spot on the globe. The avenues of trade have grown shorter.

Sometimes we forget that. Sometimes we forget how much World Trade means to all the Main Streets in America.

The merchants on Main Street and the people who shop there are better off because of World Trade.

In fact, part of every dollar they earn (and you earn) comes from World Trade.

You know that Main Street is prosperous when the baker has extra money so he can buy from the butcher, who in turn has extra money to spend at the garage and grocery and the local theater. Those people, in their turn, have more money to spend at the bakery and other places.

That's the way it is with World Trade, too. When we buy tea, China has money to buy things we want to sell. When we buy perfumes, the French can buy farm equipment from us.

So World Trade isn't just a mysterious something-or-other. It's Main Street trading on a bigger scale.

It helps everybody. We ought to do all we can to make it prosper, because we build our own prosperity by doing it. If we want more prosperity, we want more World Trade.

Remember, Main Street is a two-way street; if we want to sell, we have to buy.

Part of Every Dollar You Get Comes From World Trade!

THE INTERNATIONAL EDITIONS of TIME and LIFE

Season-Opener at National Is Light, Scant of Stature

(Mr. Brady, an instructor in the Speech and Drama Department at Catholic University, has been a frequent contributor to The Washington Post's theater page. He will handle theater reviews while Richard L. Coe is on vacation.)

By Leo Brady

"We Love a Lassie," by Marcel Wallenstein and Kathleen Kennedy, became the first new play of the new theatrical season when it opened at the National last night. Like many lead-off men, it is lightweight and scant of stature and will do well if it gets to first base on a walk.

Last night's opening audience was entirely receptive and eager and did its rather uphill best to have a good time, but in the end it had to work almost as hard as the actors. Who, it must be noted, worked quite hard—and with good effect in the cases of Barbara Everest, Julie Harris and John F. Hamilton.

Audience Does Its Best

The audience of faithful National adherents did its best to have a good time probably because they sensed the shadow of a good, round, broad detached farce in the story idea conceived by Wallenstein and Miss Kennedy. But the day really involved a little labor for them when the authors were apparently content to repeat the same situation over and over again and the humor largely consisted of variations on a theme which has been pretty well booted around on the latter-day burlesk circuit.

The lassie of the title is a girl whose mother flung herself off a cliff and whose father is unknown. (For a farce, by the way, the producers have tricked up a slick opening for a horror story). Her grandfather's will bequeaths 10,000 pounds to the girl provided her father is discovered and established as her guardian. Any good student of the Marx Brothers or the Commedia dell'Arte knows that fathers will immediately crop up like burrs in the hills outside the setting. They do.

Laughs Fail to Keep Step

Unfortunately, however, laughs fail to materialize with the same frequency. Partly because there is not enough adept pyramiding of one comic situation one top of another. Partly because the interest is permitted to become genuinely emotional at times as far as the girl and her grandmother are concerned. Partly because neither the script nor the cast maintains a uniform farce level. Also of no particular help to the intended merriment is a completely artificial second act curtain which comes down because our theater has a tradition of writing plays in three acts.

In the present condition of the show, its act emerges as the funniest, since the first is largely given over to exposition manoeuvered by what is supposed to be a picturesque collection of Scots types, and the third is concerned with an entirely new complication which is hard to get excited about.

Setting Is Authentic

Melville Cooper's direction now and then endows one of his actors with a nice eyebrow-raise or a neat gesture, but he has not been able to transfer much of his own ability to the players. Edward Gilbert's setting is nice and authentic but doesn't really contribute a great deal to the comic tone of the piece. And since there's a weather man in the cast of characters, he ought to be able to soften the din of that first-act downpour.

As Mrs. Galbraith, the grandmother in whose heretofore peaceful home all the shenanigans take place, Barbara Everest is firm, and authoritative and makes even a line like "It was your cow that died" sound appropriate and fairly fresh. John F. Hamilton has the juiciest part as Willie Gunn—the witty, tippling, friendly Irishman whom everybody likes. He tends to be a little over-charming at times, but what else can you do with this kind of a part? Julie Harris is possessed of a nice intensity and strength and if it doesn't especially contribute to the humor, that isn't her faut. Philip Tonge and A. Winfield Hoeny are a couple of the expectant fathers and Valerie Cossart is glittering and coarse as a not-so-little stranger. Winston Ross is a fine, upstanding hero, but like Miss Harris, he's rowing against the stream here.

The action takes place in Scotland naturally but Harry Lauder would possibly complain that he was short-changed.

CARY GRANT appears to have unlimbered the billingsgate something terrible here, for Myrna Loy is popping mad and Shirley Temple has clapped her hands over her ears, as a little girl should: The scene is from "The Bachelor and the Bobby Soxer," currently unwinding at Keith's

Archbishop Fails to End Film Strike

Los Angeles, Sept. 2 (AP).—A Labor Day effort by Archbishop John J. Cantwell of the Los Angeles Catholic archdiocese to end the long and bitter Hollywood film strike proved futile.

Leaders of the two AFL warring union factions and representatives of the producers were called together yesterday by the archbishop and at th econclusion of the meeting Msgr. Thomas O'Dwyer, representing the archbishop, said:

"We sand adjourned without arriving at any agreement."

During the session, Joseph Cambiano, carpenters' union representative, said his men, members of the striking conference of studio unions, had a prior right to studio jobs based on 20 years of work in the studios.

Roy M. Brewer, official of the other AFL faction, the non-striking International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, said his men had the right to th eset construction jobs in question because the CSU workers walked out 11 months ago.

J. A. Panuch Named Adviser to Gen. Clay

Clay, U. S. military governor in Germany, it was announced today. Panuch has been a member of the bar of New York since 1929. He is a resident of New York and Greenwich, Conn.

President Is Critical Of Bush's War Work

By Robert S. Allen

Dr. Vannevar Bush's eager ambition to be head of the newly created Research and Development Board is running into some rough going in inner White House quarters.

Dr. Bush

The powerful agency was established by the armed forces unification law enacted by the last Congress. Bush is currently chief of Army-Navy research activities and a lot of undercover wire pulling, particularly by the military, is being exerted in his behalf to get him the RDB job.

Chances of this drive succeeding are still good. But if Bush is named, he will have to toe the mark as far as President Truman is concerned.

The President made this sharply clear at a White House conference on the appointment question. Present at the meeting were Defense Secretary James Forrestal, General Eisenhower, Admiral Nimitz, Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, and several other high defense officials.

Truman spoke very critically of Bush as head of wartime research operations. In restrained but emphatic terms, the President charged Bush with being largely responsible for the passage of the hodgepodge science foundation bill, under which Government research would have been lumped in a military-dominated agency over which the Government would have had practically no control. Truman vetoed the measure in a stinging message.

Truman Still Undecided

The President told his defense chiefs he was still undecided whether he would appoint Bush.

"I want to think that over a while longer," the President declared. "I'm still very much undecided what to do about it. But if I should decide to give Dr. Bush this job, I can tell you that we're going to keep a very close eye on him."

Note: The Army and Navy are having difficulty unloading on United States industries and universities the numerous German scientists brought to the United States after VJ-Day. The military is now through with most of these men and wants to get rid of them, but doesn't want to send them back to Germany for fear the Russians will grab them. However, United States scientists, who are largely very disparaging of the caliber of the Germans, are vigorously objecting to their remaining in this country.

Missing Guest

Trim, soft-spoken President Sockawati of East Indonesia created quite a furor in the august State Department the other day. He was scheduled to be there at 11 a. m. to make a formal call. But the hour passed, and no President Sockawati.

State Department officials immediately conjured up dire possibilities: Assassination, kidnapping, etc. A frantic search was immediately instituted. In the midst of the excitement the distinguished guest arrived—calm and beaming, with a camera in his hand.

"Where have you been, sir?" he was asked. "We've been terribly worried."

"I'm very sorry," was the surprised reply. "But on the way here I passed the White House and noticed people taking pictures. I thought it was a very good idea. So I did, too. I think it's a delightful tourist custom, don't you?"

Note: East Indonesia (Bali) is at peace with Holland and not involved in the current fighting. The hereditary ruler of East Indonesia is a young, Western-educated Sultan.

Merry-Go-Round

Clifford Durr, hard-hitting liberal Federal Communications Commissioner, may resign to accept a high scholastic job. Two Southern university presidencies have been offered him . . . not all Congressmen are junketing . . . J. M. Combs of Beaumont, Tex., one of the ablest and most respected men in the House, is hard at work in the Washington beat on legislative problems . . . As a result of the far-reaching improvements and reforms introduced in veterans' hospitals by Dr. Paul Hawley, brilliant, indefatigable VA medical chief, the turnover rate of patients has increased by more than 100 per cent.

Reaching for Stars

Hectic scramble for stars is under way in the upper reaches of the Army, AAF, Navy and Marine Corps.

The military promotion bill enacted in the final hours of the last Congress fixed the number of generals and admirals in the four services. The Army with 350 generals on its rolls was cut to 334; 184 for the ground forces, 150 for the AAF. The Navy with 206 admirals was whittled to 207. The Marine Corps with 47 generals was limited to 36.

These levels will necessitate a drastic reshuffling of brass hats. A small percentage will be retired. But a number will have to be demoted in ranks.

To escape this, with attendant reduction in pay and numerous privileges, there is a lot of undercover jockeying and maneuvering, particularly in the Army. Despite their disdain of "politicians," some of the hottest politics to be found anywhere is played in inner Army circles.

Note: Under the new law, the Army will have four four-star generals; the AAF three; the Marine Corps one; the Navy three four-star admirals. Former Navy Secretary Forrestal tried to boost the number to 10 for the Army and Navy. But former War Secretary Robert Patterson flatly opposed this and Congress backed him.

Truman Defines

When Peter Maguire, son of the chief justice of Ireland, called at the White House, President Truman remarked that there are "more Irishmen in the United States than in Ireland."

"That's true, sir," grinned young Maguire, who was accompanied by 17-year-old John Spain and Pat and Dick Flynn, sons of Bronx Democratic Boss Ed Flynn. "Many people don't realize that north and south Ireland, combined have a population of only about four million people."

Young Maguire added that many Irish immigrants came to the United States because of "your fine opportunities and democracy."

"We have a republic and not a democracy, Peter," corrected the President. "The only place in our country where there is genuine democracy is in the New England town meeting. Our governmental system is based on democratic principles, but if you get down to a fine definition, the Nation would have to be classified as a republic."

Tests Reveal Possibilities Of Telepathy

Dundee, Scotland, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—A psychologist told the British Association for Advancement of Science today that he had statistically established the "probable existence" of the power of one mind to communicate with another, even across the Atlantic Ocean.

Prof. John Hettinger of London University said he had conducted tests with psychologists in New York in which "controls" on the western side of the Atlantic looked at pictures clipped at random from magazines. "Sensitives" in London tried to pick up impressions of what the controls in New York were looking at.

Neither controls nor sensitives were told what was going on.

One New Yorker looked at a picture of Joe Louis. In London, the sensitive said simultaneously: "Some one is counting—wants to count movements. Two men are in the attitude of boxing."

A New Yorker looked at an advertisement showing a waiter with a round tray on which were two tumblers. The sensitive in London said: "I am holding a small round tray with two glasses on it."

In New York, a control looked at a picture of a medical attendant examining the mouth of a war prisoner. The sensitive in London said: "Something is wrong with the mouth. I rather got the impression of a dentist."

Mexico to Pay Oil Firm

Mexico City, Sept. 1 (U.P.).—The Mexican government will pay $81,250,000, "money of the United States," as an indemnity for the expropriation of the El Aguila Oil Co. in 15 equal annual payments, the text of the agreement reached by Mexico and the oil company indicated tonight.

19 Japanese Found Guilty In Torture Deaths of GIs

Guam, Sept. 2 (AP).—Nineteen Japanese today were convicted of torturing to death 10 American prisoners of war in 1944 by the inhuman experimental use of bacteria, dynamite, strangulation, bayonets and bamboo spears.

Capt. Hiroshi Iwanami, former fleet surgeon whom witnesses testified devised and ordered the strange, sadistic executions on Truk, was convicted by a U. S. military tribunal of murder and of violating the law of war.

Eighteen others, including a second surgeon and ranging from chief petty officers through lieutenant commander, were convicted of fatally torturing the 10 Americans, who were not identified.

They will be sentenced later.

The two-months-long hearing, presided over by Rear Admiral Arthur G. Robinson of Washington, D. C., was termed the most spectacular ever conducted by the Navy in the Pacific. Three witnesses committed suicide—shocked and fearful that they had testified, or would have to testify, against their former commander and buddies.

One witness, 63-year-old Capt. Masaharu Tanaka, quaveringly testified that Iwanami had assured him he had permission of high authorities to perform the horrible "experiments for the good of the Japanese Navy."

Youth Group Elects

Stockton, Calif., Sept. 2 (AP).—Edward W. Mills, senior in Boston University, was elected president of the National Conference of Methodist oYuth Fellowship last night at the conclusion of a week-long confeernce, attended by representatives from 46 States.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

22 Nations of Americas Plan 1950 Census

Sixty-six statistical experts representing 21 of the 22 Western Hemisphere countries yesterday unanimously approved a provisional constitution under which a 1950 census of the Americas will be conducted.

The delegates and observers, members of the Inter-American Statistical Institute, were in the opening session of a six-day meeting at the Wardman Park Hotel. The delegates expect to lay the groundwork for the first census of human and economic resources of the entire Western Hemisphere.

After approving the constitution, the delegates plunged into consideration of general census problems expected to arise when actual counting gets under way Jan. 1, 1949. The area involved ranges from northernmost Alaska to Cape Horn at the southern tip of South America.

Chairman of the LASI committee on the 1950 census is Calvert L. Dedrick, coordinator of international statistics for the U. S. Bureau of the Census.

En Route Here

The Bruckens, son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph F. Brucken, of 2009 Perry st. ne., were en route to the parents' address from San Francisco, neighbors of the elder Bruckens said last night.

The couple was planning to stay here with his parents while Jack attended schol here under the GI Bill of Rights.

Ralph Brucken is an employe of the Government Printing Office. His son, a veteran of World War II, served with the Navy in the Pacific and then took an office job in San Francisco upon his separation from service. The couple had no children.

In the war, Brucken served as a bomb loader on an aircraft carrier. He was wounded January 13, 1945, off Luzon, Philippine Islands, was sent home on leave and returned for further Pacific duty.

The driver, Mate 3/c William A. J. Dalton, 20, told police of Prince Georges County, Md., he swerved suddenly to avoid hitting two dogs. He lost control in righting the car, he said, when he was blinded by headlights of oncoming cars.

Dalton and passengers were taken to Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, Md., by the Branchville Rescue Squad. He suffered severe shock and bruises. Others hurt seriously included Edward B. Lenens, 21, broken hip and Peter Cappa, 21, fractured skull and internal injuries. The fourth man, David Stockedn, 23, escaped with a fractured right ankle.

Man Held for Jury

In an Arlington County, Va., police court action yesterday, a 35-year-old Arlington laborer was held for grand jury action on a manslaughter charge, aftermath of an automobile accident fatality Saturday night.

Remanded to jail in default of $2000 bond was William C. Davis, of 3527 S. 21st st., whom police identified as the driver of the automobile in which Sam Jackson, 48, of Bailey's Cross Roads, was killed instantly. The car left the roadway of Columbia Pike near Carlyn Springs rd., crashed into a tree, a culvert and telephone pole, police said.

The dead man and his wife, police said, were thrown from the vehicle when it struck the telephone pole. Both Mrs. Jackson and Davis were badly shaken, but neither was injured seriously.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2.—"Not significant, not significant at all," said Richard P. McCann, general manager of the Redskins, after examining a Redskin press release that was handed back to him for comment. "There is no reason to read alarm into a routine matter like this."

POVICH

The Redskins had just announced that Coach Ki Aldrich was returning to the ranks as a player, in his old job at center. "It's not a lack of centers, it's just a precaution," said McCann. "Aldrich never really believed, himself, that he was through playing football when we named him an assistant coach last winter."

McCann, who is very high on his pets and says they will probably beat the Los Angeles Rams in an exhibition game here Friday night, was mildly outraged at the suggestion the Redskins were worried about the center of their line.

"Not only is Aldrich available but we have Al Demao, another good one, and the new boy, Bill Gray," said McCann. "I quote Jess Cravath, the USC coach, about Gray, and it's interesting. 'Bill Gray is the best defensive center I have ever seen'—Cravath."

IF THERE WAS A weakness on the Redskins last year, aside from their lack of a fullback, it was at the ends, but McCann declares that phase has now been nicely adjusted. Coach Turk Edwards, he says, now counts his good ends five deep.

"There ought to be a new respect for Jim Lookabaugh, and I assure you there is," said McCann. "He caught three passes for touchdowns in the intrasquad game the other night and he was loose a half dozen other times. But he'll have to struggle to make the first team, I think."

The Redskin coaches are quite smitten with no less than three rookie candidates for end jobs. They are Hugh (The Clutch) Taylor, the long boy from Oklahoma City who has been grabbing every pass in sight and taking it out of sight; Joe Duckworth, the big kid from Colgate, and Joe Tereshinski of Georgia University, via Wilkes-Barre.

Taylor, Tereshinski and Duckworth are hot on the necks of Lookabaugh and the other veterans, Jim Peebles and Ed Cifers. It could be, says McCann, that the Redskins will have rookies at both ends for the season's opener against the Eagles on September 28, and he sees nothing distressing about that.

IF THERE IS DEEP CONCERN among the Redskin coaches, and there probably is, it concerns the guard and tackle spots where the veteran talent is running thin. End Doug Turley has been drafted to give the veterans John Steber and Bill Ward a lift with the guard positions, and the coaches are still hunting a couple of more tackles.

It's when they get around to the quarterbacking that the Redskin coaches beam, however. For the first time since Frankie Filchock was traded away, the Redskins have a second quarterback to work with Sammy Baugh, and actually they think they have three this year.

This is going to be the coming-out season for Jimmy Youel, they think and Youel off his performanee last year does merit praise, but he may not be the Redskins' second-best quarterback. There's a man out here threatening to move in on him, and it's rookie Tommy Mont, fresh out of Maryland, and the pet T-formation signal caller, pass thrower and punter of Advisory Coach Clark Shaughnessy.

But when the Redskins need a touchdown, it's still likely that you'll see the figure of Sammy Baugh mincing out from the bench, unless he's already in the lineup.

THERE WILL BE NO complaint by Washington fans if Dick Todd is the team's left halfback, and he probably will be most of the time, but there's a fellow out here who is threatening to move in on him. He's Bob Nussbaumer, the fast-breaking fellow the Redskins got from the Green Bay Packers in the swap for Jack Jacobs, and the Redskins think they came up with a prize. So do I.

At this point, Nussbaumer is out in front of both Dick Poillon and Eddie Saenz, who were left halfbacks last season, and in the right halfback job the Redskins have also come up with a couple of new faces. They're quite happy about this Tom Farmer, who came from the Rams in the Steve Bagarus swap, and Jim Gillette, from the Boston Yankees.

The Redskins admit their weakness at fullback last season, but McCann says, "It wasn't because we didn't have fullbacks. It was because they were all hurt." Right now, Sal Rosato, Ralph Ruthstrom and Jack Jenkins are in extreme good health, he points out.

Tars Absorb Shakedown Work:

Hamilton Sends Navy Charges Through First Complete Drill

WHIDBY ISLAND, Wash., Sept. 2.—Coach Tom Hamilton sent his Navy football charges through their first full drill today and concentrated on loosening the kinks with plenty of running and conducted a long signal drill.

The Middies got their first taste of practice with 45 minutes of calesthenics in the early morning air.

The afternoon session found them in full uniform but Hamilton pointed out there would be no contact work until he felt the boys had limbered up sufficiently to lessen the possibilities of early season injuries.

A few players were feeling the strain of stiff muscles after nearly a five-month layoff. They may be ready for heavier work within a few days.

HAMILTON KEPT shifting his players throughout the signal drill, looking for reserve strength. The Navy mentor was keeping a watchful eye on some of the youngsters up from last year's plebe squad in hopes of finding replacements.

Looking at the end situation, Hamilton and his End Coach Eddie Eredelatz are working with ten youngsters, only two of whom have had real experience, one other having seen limited action last fall.

Art Markel, who held down a regular flank position last fall, is again on hand. The Los Angeles youngster is a good pass catcher and blocker.

Markel paired with Bramlett last year. Roy Russell, Vernon, Texas, played the relief role behind Lee Bramlett last year and carries his 190 pounds with some authority at right end.

Phil Ryan, Goodhue, Minn., boy who saw some varsity action as a freshman has displayed potentialities but still does not have the experience to give the coaches complete reassurance.

BEYOND THESE THREE, a field of unknowns will vie for the top berths and it is probable there will be plenty of shifting around.

Harrison Frasier, a Bullis Prep boy, from Washington, D. C. May be one of the answers to this shortage having displayed plenty of aggressiveness in Spring practice but is still green. He has speed and height. Bob Smith, Wilkes Barre, Pa., has been with the varsity squad the past two years but has not reached full promise as yet.

There are five more youngsters about whom little is known. They are Ed Piasecki, Hershey, Pa.; Dave Ridderhof, Los Angeles; Bernie Hogan, Carbondale, Pa.; Fred Lauer, Chicago, and Ronnie Andresen, Brooklyn.

Davis, Blanchard Play Farewell Game for All-Stars Tonight

'Touchdown Twins' Lead Collegians Against Giants

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP).—The football public will get its final look tomorrow night at probably the greatest double dose of dynamite ever to perform on one amateur team when Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis give their followers a chance to say goodbye to them in the ninth annual Eastern College All-Star—New York Giant charity game.

Every one of the 52,000 pasteboards for the game, which gets underway at 7:30 p. m. (EST), has been sold and none of the ticket windows at the Polo Grounds even will be opened.

Profits from the struggle, the ninth in a series, will go to the Tribune fresh air fund, which provides vacations for underprivileged New York children.

Mr. Outside and Mr. Inside will have two other former Army players in the starting All-Star lineup with them, Arnold (Mr. In-between) Tucker at quarterback and Shelton Biles at tackle. Four other members of the cadet teams which have gone unbeaten in college circles the past three years are on the All-Star list.

The best of the three Army tems on which both Blanchard and Davis played was the 1945 squad. The 1946 eleven lacked the depth of its predecessors, but it still was able to hold a great Notre Dame team to a scoreless tie.

THAT 1945 TEAM, or teams, was a coach's dream, and not a nightmare, either, except for rival tutors. The first string would start, and with Mr. B. and Mr. D. providing the big push, would roll with the gathering momentum and size of a snowball on a steep slope.

When full velocity was reached, the so-called second team would go in. Almostas good as the first and trying to be better, it would carry on from there over a completely demoralized and bewildered opponent. Army really had a 1-2 punch.

But it was always Blanchard and Davis who provided the spark, and the thrills. "Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside," B. and D., Doc and Junior. They were the ones.

Except for a leg injury suffered by Doc last year which forced temporary retirement, neither lost a minute through injury. Glenn had the wind knocked out of him a couple of times, but bounded right up. Yet both were marked men in every game.

The former collegians have been practicing for three weeks at Bear Mountain under the direction of Tuss McLaughry, Dartmouth coach who tutored the 1 0 All-Star team. That eleven made history by defeating the Giants, for the professionals only setback in the series.

* * * *

THE GIANTS REACHED West Point Saturday from Superior, Wis., where for the past month Coach Steve Owen has been remodeling the club that last year won the Eastern title of the National Football League.—The remodeling was necessary because of the loss of Frank Filchock, the club's top passer, who was suspended indefinitely for failure to report a bribe offer to "fix" the championship game with the Chicago Bears.

The revamped Giant backfield has Chris Iverson of Oregon at Quarterback; Emery Nix of Texas Christian at left half; George Franck of Minnesota at right half and Bill Paschal of Georgia Tech at full. Nix has inherited Filchock's passing duties.

Eddie Allen, former Pennsylvania strong-boy and parachute jumper, will be at fullback, completing the All-Star backfield with the three Army stars. Blanchard, who starred defensively for the college All-Stars in their win over the Chicago Bears two weeks ago, has been shifted to right half to make room for Allen.

Davis, held out of the Chicago fray by a knee injury, has recovered completely.

The probable starting lineups:

All-Stars.	Giants.
J. Monahan, D'im'h	L. E. ... Don McCafferty
Shelton Biles, Army,	L. T. ..... Tex Coulter
B. Orlando, Colgate,	L. G. .... Bob Dobelstein

Government Joins War on Horse Fever

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Thoroughbred horse racing, harassed from many angles in the last decade, now finds itself a biological target and may have a fight to the finish on its hands.

At least that is the impression the Department of Agriculture gives regarding the recent outbreak of infectious anemia (swamp fever) among horses in the Rockingham (Salem, N. H.) area.

The department yesterday sent Dr. Clarence D. Stein, pathologist of the Bureau of Animal Industry, to the scene to augment the department's representation in the affected area, which has been headed by Dr. L. O. Mott.

No Cure Known

Uncle Sam is doing everything to aid racing in controlling the malady which is not a new disease as Dr. Harry W. Schoening, chief pathologist of the Department of Agriculture, brought out yesterday. "We have been working on infectious anemia for some 20 years," he said. "Some headway has been made in isolating cases, but so far no preventive vaccine has been found, nor is there a known treatment that will cture the disease."

To aid horsemen, the department has reprinted Farmers' Bulletin No. 1819, dealing exclusively with the disease. First published in 1938, this bulletin is available for 5 cents a copy.

It is possible that infectious anemia has been present in racing circles for years without being detected. However, it has long been recognized among veterinarians and was reported in Europe as early as 1843.

Two Principal Types

For years the disease has been regarded as threat to all equine life and has been reported at some time by 24 States, from coast to coast and border to border. Although horsemen believe that the malady was brought to New England in shipments of thoroughbreds from other localities, Massachusetts is high on the list of affected sections.

Although many horses have been known to be carriers, they have lived normal and productive lives. Many known cases have been of an isolated variety. However, the disease reached serious proportions some years ago in the Mississippi Delta area where it became established among mules on cotton plantations.

There are two principal forms of the disease. The chronic form is most common and is characterized by intermittent fever, loss of weight and strength, marked depression and swellings on the under surface of the body and on the legs.

The disease may appear also in the acute form which is rapidly fatal. Still another or latent form produces no clinical symptoms, but the animal is a carrier of the infection.

Although, generally speaking, infectious anemia is most prevalent in poorly drained, lowly sec-

London Daily Swings Again At Olympics

London, Sept. 2 (AP).—Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard which has been waging a fight against Great Britain playing host to the 1948 Olympic games took another swing at the project today.

In an editorial headed "It is still not too late—call off the games," the Standard attacked the large-scale construction work slated for Wembley Stadium where most of the Olympic program will be run off.

"Sane opinion will marvel only at the colossal thickness of hide which permits its owners, at this time of crisis in the nation's serious affairs, to indulge in grandiose and luxurious schemes for an international weight-lifting and basketball jamboree," said the Standard.

Warns of Hard Winter

"Even in normal times the average rank of British enthusiasm for the games stretched from the lukewarm to the loathing," the editorial continued.

"We do not regard sport as primarily an occasion for nationalistic self-assertion.

"Yet the Olympiad atmosphere tends to take on an unpleasant edge of jingo rivalry which is the antithesis of real sporting competition."

Declaring that these considerations render the games unattractive in themselves, the Standard said "a people which has had its housing program and its food imports cut, and which is preparing for a winter battle of survival, may be forgiven for thinking that a full year of expensive preparations for the reception of an army of foreign athletes verges on the border of the excessive."

Still Not Too Late

"It is still not too late for invitations, in view of altered conditions, to be politely withdrawn," the Standard added.

Britain's organizing committee for the Olmpics replied that its mail shows that hundreds of thousands of Britons are looking forward to the games.

An official said that "no grandiose and luxurious construction plans are contemplated—just the minimum arrangements necessary to ensure smooth running. Housing sites have not had to be built—service camps and former war installations have been allocated for the athletes.

Rookie Cary Becoming Nats' Fair-Haired Boy

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Sept. 2.—The talk of the Nats today was all about Rookie Pitcher Scott Cary, who shares his teammates' enthusiasm of himself.

The 23-year-old lefthander points out with understandable pride that he's currently the co-owner of the American League pitching lead with New York's Charlie Wensloff. Each has three victories and no defeats.

"Guess that's about as good as you can be," observed the immodest redhead who at this time last year was winding up his first year in organized baseball with the Class D Orlando team.

Cary's latest success was a 7-4 job he did on the Athelics here yesterday in his second major league start.

In sheer desperation, Manager Ossie Bluege unveiled the boy as a starter last Sunday in St. Louis, and Cary responded with a 7-4 trimming of the Browns. He did it in 103-degree weather, but had to be rescued in the ninth when the heat, not the Browns, got a bit too hot for him.

"Wonder what would have happened if they had let me start earlier in the season?" he asked.

CARY IS NOT at a loss to explain his success. He does it very simply and very aptly by saying:

"I just throw the ball up there and they don't seem to be able to do much with it."

The box scores bear him out. He was nicked for eight hits by the A's, six coming in the last three innings and for 10 in St. Louis, four of those coming in the ninth.

He's got control, poise, confidence and a fair curve ball.

Ray Krouse's Smashing Play Puts Gleam in Tatum's Eye

THE SIZE AND speed of 215-pound Ray Krouse of Washington, D. C., drew the attention of Head Coach Jim Tatum yesterday as the new University of Maryland leader whipped his 97 grid hopefuls through their second day of practice at College Park.

Krouse is the lad who made the District All-High football teams as a tackle while at Western in 1944 and 1945, and came back last season after a brief service career, to gain All-Prep honors at Devitt.

He was named the outstanding player in the annual All-High vs. All-Prep game at Griffith Stadium last December.

Tatum looked on happily as Krouse, who also has performed at guard because of his swiftness afoot, slammed his way through the short blocking session.

Frank Akins Signs With Colts, May Oppose Brother

Baltimore, Sept. 2 (AP).—Frank Akins, former Washington Redskin fullback, has signed with the Baltimore Colts of the All-America Conference and may play against his brother in the game against Brooklyn next Sunday.

Akins' brother, Al, is a fullback for the Dodgers. Twenty-eight-year-old Frank played four years with the Redskins.

He was traded to the Boston Yanks at the end of last season and asked for his release. Akins was second-leading ground gainer in the National League in 1945, picking up 797 yards to trail Steve Van Buren of the Philadelphia Eagles by 35 yards.

Flaherty Absent With Ailing Sinus

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Ray Flaherty, coach of the Neew York football Yankees who open their home season Friday night against the Chicago Rockets, went to the hospital today for treatment of a severe sinus infection. He probably will be released in time to direct the Yankees.

Benigni Dominates Georgetown Drill

BIG GEORGE Benigni, the 21-year-old end from Chicago, who showed much promise last season, blossomed forth as a real pass-catching threat yesterday as Georgetown University's footballers went through their first scrimmage at the Medical Field.

Quarterback Elmer Raba, the former Gonzaga High flash, working from the "T," did most of the passing, and the 6-foot 1-inch, 204-pound Benigni was all over the field snatching 'em.

After watching his first and second teams lock in the first contact drill, Coach Jack Hagerty was pleased with his first team, but seemed a bit worried about a lack of reserves.

Jack McTanney, 200-pounder from Philadelphia, shared the quarterback job with Raba and showed a lot of deception, indicating already there will be a hard fight for that position.

G. W. Fullback Job Brings 3-Way Battle

Camp Letts, Md., Sept. 2.—With the summer practice season only two days old, the lines of battle have already been drawn among three George Washington University football candidates for the first string fullback position.

The man who originally had the inside track on the spot was 190-pound Bill Spangler, who was moved to fullback during the spring drills by Coach Skip Stahley. Spangler, a quarterback on the 1946 G.W. team, was impressive during the spring, especially while runnnig with the ball.

But now he has two very formidable obstacles in his way for the No. 1 post. They are Paul Skinner, a wingback on last year's team, and Joe Bernot, who hasn't played college football since he wore a G.W. uniform back in 1941.

Yesterday, the 5 foot, 11 inch, 220-pound Bernot went through the motions as if he had been wearing a grid uniform during the past six years.

Skinner, a mere 180-pound stripling last year, has gained 15 pounds in the right places since last fall, and is carrying the added weight so well that Stahley also sees him as a possible starting fullback.

Nats Make It 3 in Row, Beat A's, 7-4

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.—The Nats made it three in a row over the Philadelphia Athletics and Early Wynn registered his fourteenth triumph of the season tonight, 7-4.

The Nats scored six times in the sixth inning to give Wynn a big working margin.

They bombarded Starter Joe Coleman for five hits, driving him to cover and bringing Russ Christopher in. The A's checked in with their two runs in the fifth.

A crowd of 7426 was on hand to watch the third game of the set which will be concluded with an afternoon fracas tomorrow.

Nats Explode

Runless for five innings and hitless for four of those, the Nats hopped all over Joe Coleman in th esixth, driving him to cover under a six-run barrage to go into a commanding 6-2 lead.

Fixe singles, three walks and Binks' timely error accounted for the mass assault which saw 10 of the Washingtonians go to bat during the fun.

Most of the damage came with two away. Eddie Yost walked and moved up on Buddy Lewis' single to center. But Yost was caught napping and picked off by Catcher Buddy Rosar. Sherry Robertson beat out an infield hit and Lewis went to third. Mickey Vernon forced Robertson at second and Lewis checke in with the first tally.

Christopher to Rescue

Then things began to happen, al lof them bad for the A's. Spence and Priddy walked to load the sacks.

Frank Mancuso drilled a single to right to drive two runs in and Johnny Sullivan rapped another single to right scoring Priddy and Mancuso from first as the ball got by Binks, Sullivan speeding to third.

Wynn's single brought Sullivan in and Coleman out, Russ Christopher replacing him. Yost, up for the second time, quelled the disturbance by fanning.

Two-Run Error

Coleman, who had beaten the Nats three times this season, retired the first nine in order. Yost was the first Nat to get on base off the right hander, gaining first as Coleman bobbled his tap to the mound in the fourth.

Spence ruined his no-hitter with a lead-off single in the fifth.

The A's got their two runs in the fifth and they were indebted to Vernon for them. With Coleman on third and Joost on second by virtue of the latter's double, Vernon fielded Binks' grounder, but threw wide to the plate trying to get Coleman and both scored.

Player Crash Fatality

Columbus, Wisc., Sept. 2 (AP).—James A. Flowle, jr., 21, of Phillips, Wisc., regular shortstop for the Wisconsin Rapids White Sox of the Class D Wisconsin State Baseball League, died at St. Mary's Hospital tonight from injuries received in an automobile collision.

THAT'S A FOOTBALL, SON—Jim Tatum (left), former Oklahoma University coach, gives a little personal instruction to two of his boys as the University of Maryland Terps swing into their second day of practice. The boys, Vic Turyn (center) of Holden, W. Va., and Joe Tucker of Arlington, Va., are both quarterbacks. Tatum, used to winning at Oklahoma, is expecting big things of his 1947 Terps

13,791 See Victor Nose Brown Moat

Garden State Park, Camden, N. J., Sept. 2 (AP).—Four horses hit the wire as a team in the Westmont Purse today and after some deliberation the judges posted Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Briar White the winner by a nose over Jaclyn Stable's Brown Moat.

Another nose separated Joseph M. Roebling's Coyote favorite with the crowd of 13,791 who backed the Case Act colt heavily in the field of nine 2-year-olds. Ernest E. Hart's Big Dial was beaten a head by the favorite in the mad scramble to the wire and finished fourth.

Briar White, a son of Neddie and Briar Plume bred by his owner, was overlooked as he dashed the six furlongs in 1:13 1/5 and returned a $67.70 mutuel.

Four of the juveniles in the Westmont are candidates for the $25,000 added Garden State Stakes, remaining fixture for freshmen campaigners to be renewed here on September 27, Coyote, Big Dial, W. G. Helis' Grand Isle and Brookfield Farms' Istan. The two last named finished seventh and eighth, respectively.

Porter Roberts gave the winner a rousing ride. He was far back an eight of a mile from the wire as Coyote, who displaced Istan as the leader, began to falter in the stretch. Broad Moat was gaining on the favorite but the Neddie colt was not to be denied at the finish.

Jockey Atkinson Again in Limelight

Aqueduct, N. Y., Sept. 2 (AP).—Ted Atkinson, busiest and most popular jockey in New York, again crashed the spotlight today following his five victories at yesterday's opening program of the meeting.

Terrific Ted from Toronto earned a double when he guided the Jayess Stable's Blue Badge to a hard-earned triumph in the featured Southport Purse before 17,059 fans.

Earlier on the card, Atkinson had clicked astride a "field" horse named Harrier for a $13.10 payoff. Blue Badge was a $6.40 second choice.

Second for Blue Badge .

Salerno, representing Sam A. Mason 2d, trailed Blue Badge by three-quarters of a length in the mile-and-a-sixteenth headliner, while Mrs. Esther du Pont Weir's Darjeeling was beaten a like margin for the place.

That trio went postward close choices, with Salerno winding up a slight favorite. Blue Badge, earning his second success in a row, was clocked in 1:47 1-5 over a track made sloppy by overnight rain.

Atkinson also had two second and one also-ran during the first six events.

Schaefer Back On Midget Race Program Friday

Ed (Dutch) Schaefer, one of the top money winners at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway before his car was laid up for depairs, returns to action here Friday night after a month's absence.

George Fonder, another leading midget driver here, has had his car overhauled and also will appear on the weekly seven-event card.

In addition to those two Mike Joseph will pilot an Offenhauser and Ford drivers Larry Bloomer, Ernie McCoy, John Favinger and Walt Fair also have entered.

The track management has booked Jack Kockman's stunting Hell Drivers for a special 2-day showing September 10-11. The daring Hollywood troupe features a two-hour program of 28 specialties.

Kramer, 99 Hopefuls, Seeking U. S. Singles

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Seventeen countries will be represented in the national tennis singles championships opening at Forest Hills Friday, with Jack Kramer of Los Angeles shooting for the ride.

The United States Lawn Tennis Association, announcing the pairings for the annual event today, disclosed that an even 100 entries had been received in the men's division while the feminine side of the entry list was limited to a tidy 64, just enough for a full bracket.

Twenty-eight men drew byes in the opening round of the 10-day court carnival.

Half of the remaining 72 men will be eliminated Friday, when officials plan to complete all first round play in the masculine division and run through half of the 32 first-round women's contests—making a total of 52 matches on opening day.

Following Kramer in the domestic seedings, in order, are Frank Parker of Los Angeles, Tom Brown of San Francisco, Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., Bill Talbert of New York, Pancho Segura of Ecuador, Bob Falkenburg of Hollywood, Ed Moylan of San Francisco, Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, Earl Cochell of New York, Seymour Greenberg of Chicago and Jim Brink of Seattle, Wash.

Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, favored to take the woman's title vacated by Pauline Betz when she turned pro, is seeded first among the feminine entrants. Behind her came Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif., Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss of Los Angeles, Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., and Barbara Krase of San Francisco.

lion," says Bluege, of his young upstart.

"He doesn't appear to be fast, but he's sneaky. Guess you'd have to say that his ability to put the ball where he wants to is his greatest asset. Remarkable control for a left-hander."

Rick Ferrell, who caught Cary in both his starts, sizes him up this way:

"He hasn't got too much, but whatever it is, he's winning with it and that's what counts.

"He can't brush you back with his fast ball and his curve isn't the sharpest in the league. But he can thread a needle with that ball and as soon as he learns a batter's blind spot he's got him.

"I LIKE HIS confidence, too. Nothing bothers him. Yesterday, for instance, in the seventh inning when the A's looked like they might finish him off and the crowd started shouting, I went out to the mound and asked if he was all right.

"Sure thing," he said. "Don't mind that crowd," I told him.

"What crowd?" he very calmly asked.

Cary was rather disappointed in that he didn't get to pitch against the Yankees in New York, but he is all hopped up over the prospect of pitching against them this weekend in Griffith Stadium.

"Scared of them? Not Cary," he said. "They don't use but one bat at a time up there. Just like everybody else."

Cary got his start in a baseball school last spring. He was so impressive that the Nat farm club, Orlando, signed him for practically nothing.

He won 26 games for Orlando last year. Could be that the Nats have come up with something from Florida this time—and not a lemon, either.

Pairings of District Tennis Players

New York, Sept. 2.—Jim Thackara, Washington, D. C.'s amateur tennis champion, was paired against Frank Bowden of Madison, N. J., in the first round, upper bracket, of the national singles tournament that begins here Friday.

Barney Welsh, the Middle Atlantic champ, and former D. C. titleholder, was pitted against Harold Burrows of Charlottesville, Va., in the first round, lower bracket.

In the first round lower bracket of the women's singles, Sara Moore of Washington, D. C., was matched against Betty Coombe of Westfield, N. J. Adrienne Goldberg of Baltimore will meet a tough first round, lower bracket foe in Doris Hart of Miami, Fla.

tions, it has been found at altitudes as high as 7500 feet, experts disclose.

The active form of the disease makes its appearance in May or June, reaches its height in midsummer and declines late in the fall. Chronic cases may be seen in winter and its possible to produce the disease experimentally at any time.

Although transmission from diseased to healthy horses has been accomplished experimentally with the stable fly these insects cannot be blamed for all cases. In a recent experiment conducted by the Bureau of Animal Industry, the disease was transmitted by intimate contact in which the animals intermingled, unrestrained in a large stable, drank from a common watering through and fed from the floor. In this case all insects were eliminated.

Ruins Race Horses

In the experience of the bureau's investigators the disease did not spread from infected to normal horses when they were kept in adjacent stalls or adjoining box stalls and water and feed were supplied from individual containers.

Dr. Schoening brings out that, in the case of race horses, once they have contacted the disease, they are practically useless to the sport. In the case of work horses some recover enough to be useful at certain periods. However, the extreme speeds and great stamnia asked of a thoroughbred means the end of his competitive career once he is infected.

"Extreme attention to sanitary conditions are necessary," he said. "The disease may be spread by blankets, halters, or even by the use of a common curry-comb."

The fact that few race horses have died in the present outbreak does not mean it must be considered mildly, the bureau brings out. The North Dakota experiment station, for instance, reported a horse affected with the chronic form of swamp fever that lived for 41 years and, as 18 horse innoculation tests showed, was infectious during the entire period.

In Wyoming, a case was produced experimentally in an 18-year-old horse. This animal, although continuously infected with the disease, as proved by tests, lived to be 33 years old.

Despite the threat to their favorite sport, it is unlikely swamp fever, at least the equine kind, will spread to the race bettor. Man, apparently, is not susceptible to the disease—just horses, mules and asses. (No wisecracks, please.)

'Scottsboro Boy,' Convict Flogged In Stabbing

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 2 (AP).—Heywood Patterson, fully clothed and in the presence of a doctor, was given 10 lashes with a four-foot strap for stabbing another Negor convict at Kilby Prison, Warden Tennyson Dennis said today.

Patterson, one of the "Scottsboro boys" was flogged yesterday along with th eother Negro, Willis Bruce, as an outgrowth of a fight Saturday night. Dennis said Bruce likewise received 10 blows with the strap.

State Prison Director Frank Roswell said he approved the floggings because "I couldn't afford to make an exception." He explained that other prisoners have been whipped for fighting and lesser infraction of prison rules.

Patterson was sentenced to a 75-year term for rape in 1937 as one of the nine negroes involved in the "Scottsboro case."

Parking Study Authors Deny Tourist Slight

Tourists have received full consideration in the District's future parking plans, members of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency maintained yesterday, in replying to a report of the Keystone Automobile Club published Monday.

The auto club scored the agency's recent parking report for failing to plan far enough into the future and not giving sufficient attention to visitors' parking problems.

P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, said the report "takes care" of downtown parking needs for "upwards of the next ten years." In a letter to H. C. Diekinson of the Keystone Automobile Club, Howat observed: "It is felt that it would be unwise at this time to probe further into the future."

C. T. McGavin, author of the agency's parking report, said tourists had been carefully considered in studying "generations" of parking needs. "Tourists were taken into consideration in such generators as hotels, movies and shopping areas," he pointed out, "and they are provided for automatically in the general plan."

Howat said Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks, was planning to limit parking on park roadways to two hours in order to make more space available for visitors at national shrines.

Both Howat and McGavin praised the auto club's report and said it showed a great deal of study and offered constructive criticism. They said they were "gratified" to find the club agreed, to a large extent, with the views expressed in the MVPA report.

War Brides May Still Get U. S. Transportation

War brides are still entitled to Government transportation to America, the Army said last night in a statement intended to clear up misunderstanding over a previous announcement.

The Army explained, however, that under the program for bringing brides and children of armed forces personnel to this country, the brides "must accept the Government transportation when it is offered or run the risk of having to cross the ocean at their own expense."

The Army said an earlier announcement was incorrectly interpreted to mean that only brides who already have signified their intention to join husbands could come by Government transportation.

Veterans Get Rights to Rail Postal Jobs

Temporary Employes To Make Way for First 4000 Qualifiers

President Truman, by executive order, has guaranteed war veterans exclusive right to future appointment as substitute railway clerks, it was disclosed yesterday.

Simultaneously, the U. S. Civil Service Commission revealed that examinations for such jobs would be held shortly, and estimated that more than 4000 appointments would be made initially from the applicants tested.

The executive order was signed August 28 but wasn't made public until yesterday, largely because of the intervening Labor Day weekend lapse in Government news channels, it was said.

Many of the 4000-plus appointments will be made to replace temporary and war-service employes who do not qualify for permanent appointments, the Civil Service Commission said.

Non-veteran incumbents of substitute railway postal clerkships who have served continuously since the date of the executive order, under war-service or temporary-indefinite appointments, may take the examination. If they qualify, they may secure permanent appointment through recommendation of the Postmaster General.

The President's action was taken an authority of the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944. It limits the exclusive right to appointments made before July 25, 1952.

2 New Polio Cases in Area Are Reported

Two new polio cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday, bringing the area total to 20 this year.

A 10-year-old girl was listed by the Arlington County Health Department as the county's fifth infantile paralysis victim. The child, according to health officials, is under treatment at her home in the 3500 block of N. 6th st. Her condition is not believed to be serious, they said.

The District Health Department reported a 7-year-old Derwood, Md., girl was being treated for polio at Children's Hospital. Hospital officials said the girl had been admitted August 31 and her case definitely diagnosed as polio yesterday.

Of the 20 cases reported so far this year, six have occurred in the District and 14 outside the city in the Greater Washington area, health officials said.

Lock Haven Quarantined

Lock Haven, Pa., Sept. 2 (AP).—A stringent, 15-day quarantine was clamped over this city of 11,000 in a move by the board of health to avert spread of infantile paralysis. The number of cases in the area is eight. Opening of schools was postponed.

Wilmington Has Two More

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 2 (AP).—Two new cases of infantile paralysis dispelled hopes of a break in the month-old epidemic here. Two others were placed under observation.

The new cases, were reported shortly after three United States Public Health Service planes sprayed the city's business district with DDT for the third time.

J. D. Grant Heads Baltimore Rent Advisory Board

Baltimore, Sept. 2 (AP).—Jerome D. Grant, Baltimore real estate agent, today was chosen chairman of the Baltimore area Rent Advisory Board at its first meeting.

The 12-man board, appointed by the National Housing Expediter on recommendation of Governor Lane, will aid in the administration of housing laws in Baltimore city and the counties of Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Howard, Carroll, Harford and Cecil.

The board may recommend rent decontrol, advise on adequacy of general rent levels and on individual cases. Complaints are to be made to Mrs. Adele Einstein, board secretary, at 400 E. Lombard st., Baltimore.

Charles E. Hogg of Ellicott City, John S. Gittings and J. Nelson Tribby, adjutant of the Maryland American Legion, were named to a rules and procedure committee.

Gov. Lane Receives 94-Pound Melon

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 2 (AP).—Gov. and Mrs. William Preston Lane had a 94-pound watermelon in their ice box at executive mansion today.

It was raised on Mrs. John E. Pettebone's farm at St. Margaret's and sent to the Governor by former State Senator Frank Duvall, a brother of Mrs. Pettebone.

Harry Barer, butler at the mansion, and an aide had to push it into the kitchen and roll it over a board into the refrigerator.

Montgomery Police Given Pay Increase

$2310 Privates Up To $2600; All Other Grades to Benefit

A campaign for higher salaries by Montgomery County police was won by the police yesterday as the county commissioners adopted a new pay scale.

The action followed by only a few hours appearance of a nine-man Policemen's Association delegation requesting salary raises at the commissioners' meeting in Rockville.

The delegation warned that unless higher pay was granted, there would be further resginations due to "inadequate" salaries.

Biggest salary increase was won by the privates, who until yesterday started at $2310 annually and now will begin at $2600. Maximum pay for privates under the new scale will be $3000. One hundred dollars will be added each year during the first four years of service.

Captain To Get $4000

Corporals who previously earned $2970 will now earn $3150; sergeants were jumped from $3300 to $3400; lieutenants, from $3630 to $3700, and captains, from $3960 to $4000.

Desk clerks who previously started at $2249 were jumped to a starting salary of $2400, graduated in $100 yearly increases to a maximum of $2700.

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr, who previously had warned that current revenue was all allotted, and short term notes would have to be used to finance the increase, said last night current police appropriations would finance the increase for "six or eight months." After that, he said, a surplus may develop in another fund or the short term notes would be used for the remainder of the fiscal year.

Police last July 1 were granted a 10 per cent "cost of living" increase as were all county employes. They contended yesterday that teh 10 per cent granted was far short of salary increases requested by Police Chief Charlees Orme.

Seven to be Transferred

Spokesman for the delevation was John Higdon of the Silver Spring substation. Capt. James MacAulliffe of the Bethesda substation and Capt. Joseph Nolte of the Silver Spring substation, also spoke.

It was disclosed yesterday that seven county police officers will be transferred today as a result of friction between town police of Takoma Park and county police stationed there.

Transferred from Takoma Park to Silver Spring are Pvts. E. R. Jones, Preston Walker and David Bissett. Replacing them in Takoma Park are Pvts. Thomas Harding, Colin Turner and Roy Wrenn, of Silver Spring.

Corpl. Joseph Hawkins, of the Rockville headquarters, will be transferred to Takoma Park to replace Corpl. W. M. Waddell, who resigned due to "inadequate" pay a week ago.

Shirlington Plans Dance

A "disc jockey" dance will be held at 8:30 p. m. this evening in the Shirlington Outdoor Pavilion, Shirlington Community Center, Arlington. Admission is free.

Falls Church Officials Rename As Manager Meets Council

All appointive officers of the town of Falls Church were returned to their posts last night as the town council met for the first time with Roy F. Dunn, newly appointed town manager.

The session marked the opening of the new fiscal year and also the beginning of a new term for the town council. Three members of the council, two of them re-elected, were sworn in by Mayor Fenner Hazelgrove at the start of the meeting.

The only new member of the council to sit with the six-man body was J. C. McRae, who was elected to succeed Councilman Sergeant White.

Town officials who were reappointed for the fiscal year, and also sworn in by Mayor Hazelgrove Claude M. Wells, town clerk; G. E. Simpson, town sergeant; Larue Van Meter, town attorney; and Councilman Harry McCarthy, vice mayor.

Th etown ended its fiscal year in "healthy" financial condition, with a general fund balance of $11,379.64 as of September 1, according to the report of Councilman James E. Durant, chairman of the finance committee.

The balance Durant said, came about because revenues exceeded anticipations by nearl $14,000. This was due chiefly to a business sales tax adopted several months ago which was not contemplated in the original budget.

Bond Cashers Swamp Banks

the money to make down payments on homes and cars.

The Treasury Department reported that District banks drew five million dollars this morning in preparation for the payment. Wilmer J. Waller, president of the Hamilton National Bank, reported that nine branches of his bank cashed 2440 bonds and paid out a total of $536,000.

S. William Miller, president of the Union Trust Co., reported 467 veterans drawing $19,437.90.

The average bond cashed was between $250 and $300.

One of the veterans cashing was Eugene Beach, 22, 1011 M st. nw. A former seaman in the Navy aboard the U. S. S. St. Paul, Beach received $225 for his terminal leave. His wife and 7-month-old daughter, Mary Frances, were in line with him at the Union Trust Co.

"We had to borrow money to pay the hospital bill," Beach said, "and we still owe the doctor $200. We are going to pay these first."

Thurman W. Smith, 30, 1831 P st. se., former gunner's mate in the Navy, now employed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, said he was going to use his $375 to buy furniture for the new apartment into which he and his wife had just moved. He cashed his bonds at the Hamilton National Bank at 14th and G sts nw.

Eugene Powell 27, 2630 S. Pierce st., Arlington, Va., former Army sergeant, said that he was going to use the $400 he secured at the Munsey Trust Co. "to pay up some of the bills I have accumulated since I got out of the Army." He said that it had been a struggle to get along and if Congress hadn't passed the bill he would still be struggling.

Warren Hunter, 25, 2023 N. Dinwiddie st., Arl. Va., former corporal, now employed as a messenger in the Department of Justice, cashed his bond at the Munsey Trust. He said he was going to use the $200 to pay some debts that he couldn't pay because of the high cost of living.

To Pay Up Bills

Manon Turner, 42, 4041½ 12th st. se., a former sergeant in the Army, now employed in the Treasury Department, said he was going to use the $50 he got at Munsey's to pay up some old bills.

Joseph H. Walt, 23, 4311 2d st. nw., a veteran of the First Marine Division, said he had started to buy a car with the $225 bond. He had left the bond as security but when he found out they couldn't cash it he withdrew his deposit. Instead he is going to pay his dentist bill and some doctor bills. He cashed his bonds at the Hamilton Bank.

Two other veterans cashing their bonds at the Munsey Bank said they were going to use the money for down payments on new homes. Robert Velthuis, sr., Brandywine, Md., currently employed at the Chandler Shoe Store, 1208 F st. nw., said he was going to use his $125 plus some other money he had saved for a new home.

Aaron Beckham, 39, 1037 New Jersey ave. nw., former Army private first class, who served in North Africa, Italy and France, said he was going to use his $125 to build a home in Concord, N. C. He is currently employed at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Tommy Long, 21, 1774 Massachusetts ave. nw., a fingerprint clerk in the FBI and former Pharmacist Mate aboard the USS Concord, said he was going to use the $325 he got at the Hamilton Bank to buy some new clothes.

Contractor Is Cleared in Traffic Row

Walter G. Kolb, electrical contractor of 4901 Albemarle st. nw., yesterday was cleared of disorderly conduct charges lodged by a motorcycle policeman following a traffic violation.

The policeman, Pvt. Eugene R. Blankenship, has been dismounted as a result of discourtesy charges brought by Kolb.

Although found not guilty of disorderly conduct, the contractor pleaded guilty to passing a red light and was fined $5 in Municipal Court.

Passed Red Light

Kolb testified that he passed a red light and parked in front of his first floor office at 3919 Windom pl. nw., last Friday.

He said Blankenship pulled up alongside and told him to drive to the No. 8 precinct. Kolb declared he went into his office after telling the officer he was going to get some money and that Blankenship followed him in and grabbed him by the seat of the pants. Kolb said Blankenship shouted: "When I say drive to the station I mean drive."

Kolb testified that Blankenship then reached for the office phone to call a patrol wagon and that a scuffle ensued when Kolb pushed the receiver down saying "not on my phone."

Calls Patrol Wagon

The officer took Kolb across the street to a gas station and called the patrol wagon from there.

Blankenship told the court that when he ordered Kolk to drive to the precinct, the latter replied he would when he got around to it.

The officer said that Kolk knocked the phone from his hands and that he then grabbed Kolk because he thought the latter was about to strike him.

The officer was dismounted by order of Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett after Kolb complained.

Asked why summary action was taken against the policeman without a trial board hearing, Traffic Inspector Arthur E. Miller told The Washington Post last night that the offense wasn't considered serious enough to warrant a trial board.

Labor Day Traffic Toll Highest of '47 Holidays

By The Associated Press

The Labor Day observance—with at least 454 violent deaths, 293 of them in traffic accidents—left its grim stamp today as the deadliest holiday for motorists thus far in 1947.

The traffic toll compared with 228 highway deaths on Memorial Day and 255 on the Fourth of July and was considerably above the advance prediction of 250 deaths made by the National Safety Council.

Board to Try Policeman on Two Counts

Private Accused Of Slapping Woman, Taking Man's Wallet While Intoxicated

Pvt. Alfred M. Burnell, 35-year-old policeman, will face a Trial Board Friday on two counts of conduct unbecoming an officer, being under the influence of alcohol and drinking in public.

Burnell, of the Eleventh Precinct, lives at 2825 Naylor rd. se., his commanding officer said.

The specifications charge Burnell with being under the influence of alcohol and in uniform but off duty after midnight August 8. Outside the Hillcrest Grill, 2714 Good Hope rd. se., the charges say, he told a woman he was going home with her; then slapped her when she suggested he take a cab and go home.

Later, another count against him says, he cursed a motorist, took his wallet and then returned it to him.

Burnell is not under suspension. Police said he has been before the Police Trial Board once before, but they would not reveal disposition of the case or the charges against him.

Man Resting After Rescue At Va. Beach

A man who sank in 9 feet of water off Virginia Beach Monday was resting at his Takoma Park, Md., home last night, getting ready to go back to work.

Ernest T. Coury, 31-year-old partner in a Washington janitor supply firm, was under water "several minutes" before he was found by Arthur Pollack, 6500 Medwick, la., Takoma Park. Firemen and a Norfolk Naval Air Station lieutenant used artificial respiration and an inhalator more than an hour before Coury regained consciousness.

Coury, who said he could "swim a little—but I didn't realize how little," was thrown into the water when a liferaft capsized about 100 yards off-shore. "I had time to yell for help several times before I went down. That's all I can remember," he said.

Three other persons were saved from drowning at Virginia Beach over the three-day weekend. The beach has had no drownings in two years.

Commissioners To Visit 'Stepchild' Of Montgomery

Whether the community of Brookmont, in Bethesda, Md., is "an unwanted stepchild of Montgomery Court," appeared a moot question yesterday.

President Clark Baridon of the Civic League of Brookmont and Vicinity, accompanied by another officer, Thomas W. Belland, made the "unwanted stepchild" declaration to the county commisioners yesterday, adding:

"Our taxes have been raised yet we search to find a single benefit that has accrued to this community."

After a formal complaint that the community of 250 families has sidewalks, streets, a hazardous inadequate parks and playgrounds, street crossing, and no school, the commisioner sagreed to meet with the civic group on the scene in an effort to provide "immediate relief."

Step by Step

Blood Leads To Arrest In Robbery

A trail of blood early yesterday led police to what they say is the solution of the window-breaking robbery of Scott Jewelers, Inc., 812 F st. nw.

They charged Anthony Petrillo, a 36-year-old barber of 925 Potomac ave. se., with housebreaking and grand larceny in the theft of three radios and six sets of wedding and engagement rings. The loot, according to store Manager David Landsman, was valued at $209.85.

Police Pvt. Albert G. Fielder of the First Precinct, investigating a report that the store window was broken, followed the trail of blood upstairs and into a second floor barber shop. There, Fielder reported, he found Petrillo and the stolen radios and rings.

Petrillo was taken to Casualty Hospital where four stitches were required to close the cuts in his hand.

May Slaying Tips Keeping Sheriff Busy

Tips continued to pour into the sheriff's office in Omaha, Neb., yesterday but failed to produce any new suspects in the slaying of Robert L. May 2d and his wife near Omaha last Thursday.

May, 22, son of the general manager of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington bus line, and his wife, Betty, were found shot to death beside a highway west of Omaha. They were en route from a Colorado vacation to their home in Parkfairfax, Va.

Deputy Sheriff Hugh Cutler told The Washington Post last night that "our phones ring day and night with tips on possible suspects. We are attempting to run them all down, but they're coming from Oklahoma to Minnesota; from the Dakotas to eastern Iowa." Hitchhikers have been blamed in the slayings.

Two more young soldiers were questioned yesterday at Ottumwa, Iowa, but were cleared when fingerprints failed to match those found on the blood-spattered May automobile.

The two, said to be AWOL, were arrested in the Iowa city on robbery charges and held in $3000 bond.

Two khaki-clad youths have been linked with the murders by a filing station attendant who saw the Mays give them a ride.

2 Boys, 17, Admit Theft Of 15 Autos In 3 Weeks

Pair Being Held Also For Housebreaking, May Be Involved In Church Robberies

Two 17-year-old boys have admitted the theft of 15 automobiles and at least one housebreaking in the last three weeks, police announced yesterday.

Both youths, held by juvenile authorities on housebreaking and auto theft counts, are being questioned for possible connection with the wave of church robberies in Washington over the last few weeks.

They were arrested while breaking into the Francis Lucid residence at 3300 Fessenden st. nw. Monday. Neighbors, knowing the Lucids were not at home, saw the two using a ladder to enter the house and called police.

Both are Central High School students, police said.

The housebreaking count against them was based on the robbery of the Theodore P. Smyrnas home, 4325 47th st. nw., where $51 in cash and two watches valued at $1150 were taken.

Police said the youths also admitted breaking into the Rock Creek golf course clubhouse last Friday night and attempting to steal the safe. The strong box was found outside the clubhouse, unopened, the next morning.

Dry Cleaning Shop Bandit Gets $58.60

Washington's laundry and dry cleaning shop bandit yesterday netted himself $58.60 in his seventh foray within a week.

Latest victim was Mrs. Fayne Hayes, 35, of Cabin John, Md., a clerk at Burka's Laundry and Dry Cleaning Store, 1402 Rhode Island av. nw.

Mrs. Hayes told police a man answering the description of the hold-up man who has raided six other such establishments, two unsuccessfully, in the past week, entered the store at 15:55 p. m. He asked for change to make a telephone call.

"He talked about real estate over the phone until other customers had left," she told police. "Then he jumped over the counter and said 'This is a stick-up.'"

Mrs. Hayes said he forced her to opeen the cash register and to stand against the wall while he emptied it. She said she was marched to a rear room then the bandit fled.

Police threw an immediate cordon of patrolmen and scout cars around the neighborhood but were unable to find anyone of the detailed description of the nattily-clad bandit.

He was described as a Negro wearing a red and cream colored plaid sport shirt, with sharply-pressed brown trousers. Police said he is between 25 and 30 years old, very dark, about five feet seven or eight, and weighs between 155 and 160 pounds.

Shades o' Six-Shootah Junkshion, Look Heah

A night intruder who played an unresponsive game of "knock-knock" with two 25-year-old Wave twins was sought here yesterday by local police.

So was the unlocated slug of a .22-calibber rifle cartridge, fired at him breast high, through the wooden bedroom door by one of the two women.

When last seen, the "visitor" was reported in running flight at 1 a. m. yesterday, down Mt. Vernon pl. from the apartment home of Yeomen 2/C Lorraine and Isabelle Clemons, at 803 Mt. Vernon pl. nw.

Where the slug is is purely conjecture.

Lorraine, in blue pajamas, told police at the scene she fired when the man refused to answer her challenge of "Who's there!" after he had pounded on their door. After the shot, she said, she heard him run away.

Isabelle, in red pajamas, said she looked out her bedroom window in time to see a man running down the street.

Police found the hole in the door, but not th elead pellet.

The two said they kept a .22-caliber, single shot rifle between them in their bed nightly since the outside door lock at the apartment house had been broken, apparently intentionally, last Friday night.

Lorraine said she placed three extra bullets between her teeth after threatening the man behind the door. She said the rifle misfired on her first try and that she then used one of the three spares.

Both Waves hale from Hempstead, Tex., which they say is known locally as "Six-shooter Junction."

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

BURGLARS, BEWARE!—The Texas twins, Isabell (left) and Lorraine Clemons of 803 Mount Vernon pl. nw., make a formidable, although pajama-clad, twosome. The 25-year-old sisters, both Waves, stood off a night intruder who made the mistake of knocking on their apartment door. The latter left hurriedly when Lorraine fired a shot through the hardwood door with the .22-caliber rifle which they keep between them in bed. Isabell holds a souvenir German pistol, part of their arsenal. Both hail from Hempsted, Tex., known, deep in the heart of, as "Six-shooter Junction"

Sunny, Dry Today, Mercury in 80s, Says Weatherman

Yesterday morning's peek-a-boo sun came out uncontested by clouds in the afternoon to Washingtonians a sample of what's in store for them today.

The weatherman last night predicted sunny and dry skies for today, with a temperature high in the mid-80s. High yesterday was 88 at 3:20 p. m., after a morning of readings as low as 71 degrees.

Labor Day vacationists returning to their jobs found little fault with weather conditions generally throughout the Nation. The day was fair except in New England and the southern portion of the northeastern States, where showers and thundershowers predominated.

Hospital at Ritchie To Be Opened Monday

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 2 (AP).—Ritchie Hospital for the chronically ill, occupying former Army buildings at Camp Ritchie in Washington County, will open Monday, Governor Lane announced today.

Use of the hospital pending construction of a 500-bed institution at Hagerstown "marks the entry of the State in a new field of responsibility in public health," the Governor said.

Only two wards of Ritchie Hospital will be open at the outset, but as rapidly as professional personnel may be recruited will be expanded to 216-bed capacity. Nurses are particularly needed, the Governor's announcement said.

Upward of $600,000 was appropriated for Ritchie Hospital at the 1947 General Assembly sessions.

The hospital for a time will accept patients from all parts of the State. Three permanent chronic disease institutions are under construction or in the planning stage. The first is now under way at Deers Head near Salisbury, with an expected capacity of 300 beds, and another is to be built in the Baltimore area.

The Salisbury hospital is expected to open late next year.

Charter Board Named

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 2.—Acting just before the first of the month deadline, Mayor Richard Sweeney last week appointed a Charter Commission to make recommendations for a new charter for this city of 40,000.

Last year the mayor named a committee for a similar purpose but the State Senate rejected the proposed charter on the recommendation of Senator D. Kenneth McLaughlin, who felt that a new charter should be approved by a referendum of city voters.

McLaughlin then introduced a measure calling for appointment of a Charter Commission to prepare a charter for submission to city voters at the next election.

Steers Tangle Traffic

Frederick, Md., Sept. 2.—Frederick's holiday-swollen traffic was further congested yesterday when three steers wandered from the pasture of John Renn, local livestock dealer, and proceeded to complicate matters on East Patrick st. The animals dodged automobiles and city police officers for more than an hour before two of them were captured and the third escaped by means of Carroll Creek.

Associates of the veteran newsman took the announcement of his retirement with reservations and predicted he probably would be back in harness every now and then. They presented him with a watch as he left.

Lono, director of the Virginia State Planning Board and chairman of the Virginia Commission, said today.

The commission favors State, rather than Federal control, in the clearing up of pollution.

Florist Fire Laid to Bolt

Westminster, Md., Sept. 2 (AP).—Fire, believed to have been caused by lightning, destroyed the boiler house and two trucks at the Stewart N. Dutterer florist plant on Pennsylvania ave. early today.

The fire broke out about 2 a. m., after a thunderstorm which broke about midnight. A lightning bolt struck a pole near the plant, and firemen believed it smouldered along the wires causing the blaze.

The plant, 40 by 100 feet, also was used as a packing house, and was of cement and frame construction.

Dutterer, who said the boiler had not been used lately, did not disclose the damage, but said it was covered by insurance.

Another fire yesterday burned out the roof and third floor of the Green Gables Apartments on Bond st. near Main, routing six families.

Clocks Changed on Shore

Maryland operated on two times again yesterday, most of the Eastern Shore residents waking up to clocks that were one hour behind the rest of the State.

Among the principal Eastern Shore towns reconverting to standard time were Salisbury, Princess Anne, Pocomoke, Berlin and Snow Hill. Generally, they said it was so that schools could begin operations this week on the regular time.

There were two outstanding exceptions to the eastern shore standard time. Cambridge will stick out daylight time with most of Maryland until September 28, while Ocean City won't make the change until September 10. Crisfield also was keeping hands off for the time being.

In the remainder of the State, there was only one reported "early bird," Oakland also going back on standard time.

McLean Ban Upheld

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 2 (AP).—The Kentucky State Court of Appeals has upheld the action of the Kentucky State Fair barring from the fair's horse show the entries of Miss Jean McLean of Portsmouth, Va.

The horse show management told the court it barred Miss McLean's five entries because she failed to return in time trophies she won last year and because her father, George T. McLean, had been accused of "unsportsmanlike actions" at other shows.

Miss McLean, 18, already has two legs on three championship cups and has said she desired to gain permanent possession of the trophies this year.

Lane Waits for Ferry

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 2 (AP).—Governor Lane was more eager than ever today to push ahead the Chesapeake Bay bridge project after waiting an hour in a Labor Day line of waiting cars to board a ferry from Matapeake to Sandy Point.

Returning from Ocean City, where he vacationed, the Governor said he resisted the urging of three State troopers to move to the front of the line and added he simply went to work on his files at the time.

"I saw no reason to exercise my prerogative in this respect, even though Mrs. Lane and my daughters didn't have anything in particular to do during this period," he said.

He added he told them the wait would spark their own enthusiasm for the bridge program.

Tobacco Crop In Md. Faces Curtailment

Waldron, Md., Sept. 2 (AP).—Southern Maryland's auction fluctuating sale of its 1946 tobacco crop ended Monday on a down beat which brought from observers the belief that the amount of acreage devoted to the leaf might be curtailed next year.

Growers were outspokenly disappointed with the tenth season, which came to a close at Waldorf and La Plata. The sales were scheduled to stop August 22, but were extended in hopes of clearing some of the unsold leaf.

However, many farmers reported plenty of unstripped leaf still hanging in their barns, either to be sold next year or sold on the Baltimore hogshead market.

The 1947 sales got off to a poor start when planters balked at comparatively low prices and refused to sell. The prices reached an average of 47 cents a pound during the height of the season but later declines dropped it to 44.

This was a decided letdown from what the farmers expected after being urged to plant near record crops. Last year a short crop brought an average of 57 cents and Southern Maryland farmers were expected at least the same this year.

As a result of the reduced prices and failure to clear the crop many farmers reported losses and threatened to reduce plantings in 1948.

Fairfax Police Nab 2 Wanted In 3 Cities

Fairfax police arrested two men early yesterday for breaking and entering but soon found they had something more complex on their hands.

The men, Jesse Meeks, 25, Hurricane, W. Va., and Walter L. Bennett, 18, Flagstaff, Ariz., admitted that they had escaped from the Los Angeles County jail, stolen their automobile in Tucson, Ariz., and its license plates in Missouri.

Checking back, Fairfax police found they had escaped from the Los Angeles jail two months ago and that the stolen plates belonged to a resident of Capitol Bluffs, Mo.

Policemen Charles Norfolk, Richard Wahl and P. S. Dove said that while they were making their rounds in a cruiser about 2 a. m. they saw the men siphoning gas from an automobile near the Circle Market at the intersection of Routes 5 0and 211. A closer look showed the car was loaded with merchandise from the market. The men were held at the county jail for trial on charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny.

FBI agents entered the case to investigate violations of the National Motor Vehicles Theft Act.

Annual horse show sponsored by Mount Calvary Catholic Church, Forestville, Mad., will be held September 14 at the farm of County Treasurer Jame B. Bland, Suitland, Md.

Nation's Oldest Cotton Mill To Shut Down

The Savage Manufacturing Co., operator of what is believed to be America's oldest cotton mill at Savage, Md., is going into liquidation—the victim of high costs of production and a contracting market.

Manager Bernard J. Musso announced yesterday that the mill, which specializes in heavy cotton duck, has reduced its employment rolls from 372 to 30 and plans to shut down completely by January 1, 1948.

The 147-year-old mill is the sole industry of Savage—a community of 1200 residents. Ninety-eight of the homes, located a mile off the busy Baltimore blvd., are owned by the mill, which also supplies water and electricity for the town.

Seeks Jobs in District

The effect of the mill's closing is expected to be drastic unless some new industry buys the five-acre plant and its 400-acre farm and residential holdings, Musso said.

He said many of the workers are finding jobs in Washington and others are drawing unemployment compensation. Musso plans to head for Texas when the liquidation is completed.

Musso said the closing was forced by the high cost of production in the ancient plant and the curtailing of the heavy duck market because of the entry of much war surplus duck. The century-old water wheel and weaving equipment will be "junked," he said, and the more recently acquired spinning equipment will be sold.

Musso, a textile engineer, said the structures, which date back to 1750, are suitable for manufacturing or storage. The facilities include a mill race carrying water from the nearby Little Paxtuent River which is used to create electric power.

The relationship between the mill and its employes has proceeded through the years with scarecly a ripple. The plant, which has a contract with Local 474, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, has never shut down, never had a strike or the threat of one.

During the war, the mill worked at top speed turning out heavy duck used in sails, oil refining, tarpaulins, fire hose and paper manufacturing.

Seaman Loses Fight to Beat Death Penalty

Staunton, Va., Sept. 2 (AP).—Raymond Laurence, 29-year-old Negro merchant seaman under sentence of death for the slaying of a Newport News policeman, lost his petition for a writ of error today before the Virginia State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Laurence, a Florida native, was sentenced in Newport News Corporation Court to be executed on June 20 for the murder of Police Officer C. N. Doughty on August 11, 1946. The prosecution contended that the Negro shot Doughty with the officer's service pistol twice when Doughty attempted to arrest him for questioning in connection with housebreaking charges.

The high court also denied a writ of error to Mascot Hamilton, who was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment on April 24 when found guilty in Buena Vista Corporation Court of the murder of Dennis Bryant on October 20, 1946.

Opinions on approximately 20 cases argued and submitted at previous terms of the court in Richmond will be handed down tomorrow, when the tribunal ends its Staunton term.

An even dozen lawyers qualified to practice before the court today. They included John W. Stuart, jr., Lebanan; Thomas J. Wilson, III, Clifton Forge; Emory W. Reisinger, II, Fairfax; Howard C. Pilson, Stuart; Lee Snyder Lovett, Winchester; William F. Moffett, jr., Washington, Va.; Mcrae Werth, Lexington; Clarke W. Toole, jr., Lexington; J. Aubrey Matthews, Lexington; Francis W. Flannagan, Bristol; Thomas O. Fleming, Washington; and George C. Rawlings, jr., Spotsylvania.

Trailer Camp Permit Revoked By Prince Georges Board

Revocation of the permit for the Shadyside Traler Camp, 7300 block of Brinkley rd., Camp Springs, Md., was ordered yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners.

Residents of the area had protested against the camp which provides space for trailers used as homes by 24 families of servicemen stationed at Andrews Field and three veterans families.

Sitting as a board of health, the commissioners accepted the report of Sanitary Engineer Charles L. Wood of the county health department that the trailer camp does not comply with the sanitation regulation. He said it does not have sanitary facilities, washrooms and showers sufficient for the number of persons residing at the camp.

The camp was ordered vacated by October 14. It was pointed out that trailers could be moved to an approved camp by that time. William A. Carson, president of the board of commissioners, said the camp license was for seven trailers and 27 were in use.

The commissioners referred to the Health Department for investigation a petition signed by 31 residents of the Brooklyn Briodge rd., in the Laurel, Md., area opposing continuance of a dump adjacent to their properties. The petitioners claim the dump is a health menace and that flies and odors interfere with enjoyment of their property.

President William A. Carson and Commissioner Norman H. Collins were delegated to represent the board at the 8th annual School Boy Patrol officers training camp tomorrow at Scotland, Md. The school is sponsored by the American Automobile Association.

A permit was granted to the Seat Pleasant Volunteer Fire Department and Community Welfare Association, Inc. to hold a carnival September 8 to 13 at Eastern and Roosevelt aves., Seat Pleasant.

Taxicab Inspector Harry Mercer reported he had collected $591 in taxicab fees for August. Brice Bowie, clerk of the circuit court, reported collection in August of $1038 from sale of beer, wine and liquor, peddlers' and ice licenses.

MRS. THEODORE O. WEDEL

Church Women's New President Is 'The Professional Volunteer'

This is another in a series of articles introducing the club presidents of Washington and vicinity.

By Genevieve Reynolds

MRS. Theodore O. Wedel, new president of the Washington Council of Church Women, is an excellent tonic for low spirits. Her gay, lilting laugh and cheerful manner chase away the most persistent despondent moods.

Wife of Canon Wedel of the Washington Cathedral, auburn-haired, blue-eyed Cynthia insists that she enjoys the role of a parson's spouse. "You meet so many interesting people, especially young folk," she says enthusiastically.

Scholarly Canon Wedel, Warden of the College of Preachers, is also a well-known writer and lecturer. His chief critic and most able proofreader is his dynamic helpmeet.

FIVE-FEET eight inches, figure-perfect Cynthia is active in so many organizations that she smilingly dubs herself, "a professional volunteer."

Well, as a beginner, she teaches sacred studies to younger pupils in the National Cathedral School for Girls 1½ hours four days each week. She is hostess for the College of Preachers, entertaining new students each Monday at tea; assists with the Altar Guild work at the Cathedral. In the past she has pinch-hitted as bookkeeper when the Cathedral Office was short handed. More, well, she is secretary of the Women's Committee, National Cathedral Association; acting president of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Alban's Church as well as teaching a class for parents in the Sunday School.

She is first vice president of the Woman's Auxiliary, Diocese of Washington, and recently has been named a member of the National Executive Board, Episcopal Woman's Auxiliary, highest honor a woman can obtain in the Episcopal Church.

Besides numerous offices in various Episcopal organizations, she has held high posts in the United Council of Church Women.

ALTHOUGH church affairs are her first concern, Mrs. Wedel says, "I don't want to become just a 'churchwoman' in any narrow sense." For example, in addition to her church work, she has served as D. C. and national director of the Home Service Corps, American Red Cross; chairman, Board of Volunteer Service of the District plus member board, Council of Social Agencies, and the Citizens' Council on Community Planning.

A trustee and active worker in the D. C. Community Chest, Mrs. Wedel also is a member of the board of the House of Mercy.

When not involved with church and community activities, you'll find her dashing about the country to make speeches, which she admits that she enjoys. Recently, she returned from a lecturing tour out Colorado way.

BORN in Dearborn, Mich., youthful Mrs. Wedel was graduated from Northwestern University where she was a member of Kappa Delta Sorority and Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity. Since coming to the Nation's Capital, she has been active in the local Kappa Delta Alumnae Association.

People, traveling and reading detective stories are her pet hobbies. Her pet aversion—exercise.

Good Will Ambassadress

Cuban Hostess May Be First Lady

By Ruth Brigham

A DARK-EYED senora from Cuba, who, incidentally, may be the next first lady of that island—is probably the most popular ambassadress of good will in Washington today.

She's Senora Guillermo de Belt, pretty wife of Cuba's Ambassador. And she's probably poured more tea at more tea parties than any other Ambassador's lady. That's a sure sign of charm and grace, as any hostess will tell . . . but Senora de Belt modestly says:

"No; it's only because I speak good English."

And she speaks it with an Irish flavor, for the former Elisa Martinez Viademonte, daughter of a leading Havana lawyer, had an Irish-American governess in her youth.

Ambassador Belt is prominently mentioned as a candidate in next year's presidential elections, on the Authentico Party ticket—President Grau's party.

She's Noncommittal

OF THAT, Senora de Belt won't say yes and she won't say no, but she does say:

"My husband wouldn't have the effrontery to say he wouldn't be president. I rather suspect myself that he'd like it. But, for me, I'm afraid he'd work himself to death. He is so enthusiastic, and such a hard worker for what he believes in."

He believes, she says, in an international point of view.

She describes her husband's party as "Liberal, not Rightist, but anti-Communist," she said.

Working Diplomat

SENORA BELT says her husband is a "working diplomat," and explained:

"Guillermo's job is not like that of many Ambassadors. It calls for more work than parties. He is not a diplomat, in the strict sense. He's an economist, but he's also a lawyer."

She said his business knowledge is of paramount importance, because "Cuba is the fourth best customer of the United States goods."

The Belts feel quite at home in the United States, where Senora de Belt attended Visitation Convent in Washington. This is also the paternal ancestral land of the Ambassador.

He is the grandson of John Benjamin Belt, who was sent from his Maryland home by Confederate President Jefferson Davis bearing important papers to Cuba for safekeeping. The young Southerner liked the island so much that he returned there to live following the war, and married a Cuban.

Experts Ask

How Long Will Mme. Bonnet's Skirts Be?

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

"EVERYBODY'S BACK IN TOWN," said a taxi driver yesterday, "and driving their own cars." Many of the "everybodies" are back briefly. The Robert Woods Blisses will stop over precisely three days from California on their way to Europe. Mrs. Arthur Fowler will scarcely have time to unpack before she's off again to New Jersey.

But among the permanents will be the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet, due to arrive from Paris the end of the week. Mme. Bonnet's new wardrobe will be scanned with desperate interest by those Washington ladies who are loath to scrap their entire wardrobes for a new one. If Mme. Bonnet hides her slim legs completely, a great many ladies of Washington's diplomatic circles will have to dip heavily into their savings account.

Holding the hemline or giving way in moderation, has spoilt a lot of fun this last month. Take Mrs. Leslie Biffle, for instance. She's been "facing" her dresses so industriously that she's scarcely found time to leave her apartment. "I didn't even get a chance to go to the Brewster investigation!" mourned Mrs. B!

Anonymous John

WHILE ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT has been splashing among the headlines, his younger brother, John, has been plugging away at his job with satisfying anonymity. John, who's an executive in a West Coast department store, has taken precisely three days vacation this summer. He flew from California to spend a long weekend in Nahant, Boston's oceanside summer resort, with his wife and two children. The children, incidentally, are free as air these days. Until long after President Roosevelt's death, they were guarded wherever they went by a brace of detectives.

Aviators All

AVIATION, on the downbeat since the war, was given a much needed boost out at the National Air Races in Cleveland. Hero of the meet was 30-year-old "Cookie" Cleland, who broke the former speed record in capturing the coveted Thompson Trophy. Cookie, son of a tearoom hostess at the Halle Department store, manages a Cleveland airport. He was one of the Navy fliers profiled in Joe Bryan's "Mission Beyond Darkness," story of the air push east from Manila told by the appealing method of picking a special squadron, jotting a separate squib about each member. It was Joe, incidentally, who put together Admiral Halsey's memoirs.

There were lots of familiar faces on the race course sidelines, and among the timekeepers who clocked planes as they zinged around pylons were Rear Admiral Luis de Florez and Roger Wolfe Kahn. Roger, younger son of the late financier, Otto Kahn, has had a variegated career. He headed his own jazz orchestra, was once married to Hannah Williams, Jack Dempsey's former and exceedingly turbulent wife, then settled for aviation.

Luis de Florez, who despite his foreign sounding name hails from Pomfret, Conn., was one of the war's most prolific inventors. Among dozens of inventions, he perfected a swivel gun for fighting planes and worked out a ground "trainer" which simulated fighting conditions in the air. Luis, the only admiral, we believe, to pilot his plane solo, left the Navy a year ago and is now devoting his technical genius to mass book production for Doubleday, Doran. But he seldom lets books interfere with aviation.

Interesting Visitors

IT'S a relief to have several interesting women, instead of men visitors from abroad. Due to arrive within a few weeks and talk at the Herald Tribune Forum in New York are two British ladies. One's the famous Jennie Lee, the other is Barbara Ward, daughter of a Fifeshire miner. Jennie Lee, a member of Parliament, is also the wife of Britain's Minister of Health, Aneurin Bevan (not to be confused with Ernest Bevin). Jennie Lee lectures on social conditions and subjects supposedly of interest to women. She's very anti-Wallace, by the way, and recently skinned our former Vice President with ruthless skill. Barbara Ward, who's still in her twenties and very pretty, is an assistant editor of the Economist, a gazette of high political and intellectual standing. She is one of the leading blue stockings of this difficult era.

Sec. and Mrs. Lovett Entertain For Iran's Handsome Royalty

By Elizabeth Maguire

The handsome royal family of Iran was well represented at the reception given yesterday by Acting Secretary of State and Mrs. Robert A. Lovett. Guest of honor was Princess Achraf Pahlavi.

The Princess, noted for her keen mind, is tiny and holds herself erect. The bodice of her black dress was embroidered in circular gowned in black with sparkling gold sequins. The princess had a family reunion at the party. Present were her brothers, Prince Abdorreza Pahlavi, Harvard '47, and Prince Mahmoud Reza Pahlavi, UCLA '49, and their sister, Princess Fatemah Pahlavi. However, 14-year-old Prince Hamid Reza Pahlavi, who arrived in town Monday, apparently doesn't go cocktailing yet. He will enter a school on Long Island this fall.

gold sequins and she added more sparkle with a choker of gold and diamonds. On her wrists she wore a three-inch bracelet of diamonds and emeralds and her two rings were of diamonds and emeralds. A broad-brimmed black hat with sweeping aigret feathers, pinned with diamond brooch, completed her costume.

Returns This Month

The Princess is head of the Red Lion and Sun Society, the Iranian version of the Red Cross. She will be here until the 10th and she will leave for Iran the 24th.

One of the first couples to arrive at the party yesterday was the Secretary of War and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, the latter wearing a hat really designed for the cocktail hour. Small and black, its feathers looked like tooth picks spiked with hors d'oeuvres.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanger were there with their three pretty nieces from Boston, the Misses Charlotte, Anne and Ethel Simonds, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Simonds.

Mrs. Baig, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of Pakistan, wore a cool looking sari of sheer ivory silk trimmed with flame red and gold border, set off by her ruby and diamond jewerly.

Harriman There

After an hour or two of being greeted and photographed the Princess withdrew to sit and chat with a circle of friends. The Secretary of Commerce, William Averell Harriman, sat on her right while George Baker o fthe State Department engaged her in conversation on the left. Others in the group included Mr. and Mrs. E. Bohlen, Mrs. Hamilton Wright, and Lieut. Gen. LeRoy Lutes.

The attractive gathering on the whole was comprised of State Department representatives and residential society. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cato D. Glover were there and Capt. and Mrs. Herbert D. Riley. Also, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. W. Todd, Capt. and Mrs. Archie Roosevelt, Maj. Gen. S. J. Chamberlin, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Lampton Berry, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Maddox.

Parties Honor Miss Rosicki

Another party for Miss Rosicki was given yesterday by Miss Rardin, who entertained at cocktails in the apartment of her aunt, Mrs. Henry Doherty, at the Shoreham Hotel. The young hostess was assisted in receiving by the engaged couple and their parents.

In Bridal Procession

Miss June Marilyn Bradford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Bradford of Richmond, Ind., on August 31, became the bride of George Brickelmaier, son of Mrs. George Brickelmair, sr., and the late Dr. Brickelmaier. The Rev. A. L. Stamper officiated at the ceremony, which took place in First Christian Church of Richmond, Ind.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace and marquisette. It was fashioned with tight bodice and long full skirt ending in a short train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a braided tulle coronet edged with two small sprays of orange blossoms.

Mrs. Dorothy Merchanthouse attended her sister as matron of honor, costumed in pale yellow marquisette over yellow tafetta. She wore a coronet of green carnations and carried a colonial bouquet of green carnations.

William J. Mitchel, jr., of Dearborn, Mich., was best man, and the ushers were N. E. Arbogast and Don C. Merchantthouse of Richmond, Ind.

After a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the couple left for a wedding trip to Cape Cod and New England.

The bride attended Earlham College in Richmond, Ind., and American University in Washington. The bridegroom was graduated from Dartmouth College, and during the war served in the China-Burma-India theater of operations with the U. S. Army.

Mr. and Mrs. Brickelmaier will make their home in Washington at 2127 California street.

Miss Minerva Wilson was maid of honor and Miss Frances Smith was bridesmaid. Robert Tyler acted as best man, while Charles Read and Daniel Witt, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as ushers.

Your son and daughter who have been to camp this summer learned quite a bit about good habts in caring for their room, their clothing and bedmaking. Mary Haworth's Mail

Told by Psychiatrist to 'Grow Up,' Woman With Terrifying Neurosis Didn't Know How To Begin; But She Found Healing in Prayer

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: What makes you so wise? I have read your column frequently from the time it started in this city and am amazed at your common sense and shrewd perception.

I have a debt of gratitude to pay, so herewith many thanks to you. Over a year ago I was engulfed in a perfectly beautiful neurosis, the details of which I shall spare you.

Suffice it to say that suicide was on my mind constantly. I thought I was going crazy and hoped I would. About 18 months previously I had even gone to a psychiatrist; but in a miserable long interview, lasting an hour, all I could do was cry.

He gave me a towel and I soaked it with tears; and his prescription was, "Grow up." True words, though harsh. But I couldn't find a pharmacy that supplies that kind of pill; so his prescription didn't help.

'Sermon on Mount' Turned Tide

SO IT WAS that about a year ago I read one of your articles that recommended "The Sermon on the Mount," and I found the book at the local library. I kept the book a month and it cured me. No; not in a month did it cure me. The process was far more gradual, and even yet the blue devils gang up on me once in a while, but these times are less and less frequent and of shorter duration now.

I am not afraid of life any more. I have a strong consciousness of not fighting alone; God walks with me. There have been many other improvements in my life, too, that have come about in perfectly natural ways; and yet I attribute them directly to the effects of prayer.

This is a funny age we live in, and the times are indeed out of joint. Plumbing and electric lights are far more important than clouds and trees, and movies more necessary than friends. It is so with medicine, psychology, psychiatry. All seem attuned to a mechanistic concept of the universe.

Yet before these sciences became so highly developed—and so well publicized—people turned to prayer to solve their problems. I've never heard of a race on earth that didn't make a practice of soliciting help from supernatural powers. And they must have got results, or the practice wouldn't have continued from age to age.

Prayer Is Work But Rewarding!

HOWEVER, prayer is work: a strenuous unceasing activity of consciousness, if we are sincere about it; and I grant it would be much easier to let a doctor or the gents of Government solve one's problems in time of trouble—if only they could. Anyway, my psychiatrist cured me of psychiatrists. Undoubtedly they are good medicine for many people, but not for me.

During my one interview, I was told among other things to avoid more child bearing; that pregnancy would tend to aggravate my despondency. At the time I was already the mother of three and I doubted that the children had any bearing on my difficulty. In brief, I doubted the advice and ignored it.

We started our fourth baby somewhat later, two months before I read Dr. Fox's book, and in that period my neurosis was neither better nor worse. The real improvement began within a month after reading "The Sermon on the Mount," and continued steadily during and after pregnancy.

So that is the story. The happy ending is that I am a better wife, better mother, better housekeeper and much happier person nowadays; and the initial credit for this improved situation belongs to you. I wonder how many others you have helped? Thousands, I know; and I wish you full joy of it. Very sincerely, S. R.

Letter Answers Popular Question

DEAR S. R.: Off and on, people ask me why this column refers time and again to "The Sermon on the Mount" as a source of help in extremity. Your kind letter provides the answer. That book has light to give—the "light of the ages" expressed in modern language.

As for the personal improvement you report, you deserve full credit for it, since you struck out in search of help and persevered until you found it—in terms of spiritual recourse to the All-Source of human succor. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Your Questions On Homemaking

We wish to finish a gumwood cabinet which my husband has constructed. Can you suggest where we could find information about modern finishes. H. K. C.

Your local public library should have some recent books on woodworking which will give the information you desire. There are also several housekeeping books with sections devoted to furniture refinishing. These include "The Complete Household Encyclopedia," by Dorothy Pace, (Caxton House), and "America's Housekeeping Book," compiled by the New York Herald Tribune Home Institute, (Charles Scribners' Sons.)

1. Our antique sea chest has a white water ring on it. The chest is wood but we do not know what kind. How can the ring be removed without refinishing?

2. We have a brass floor lamp which now has black spots on it which seem to be in the brass. Are such spots removable? If so, how?

3. A cheap walnut-finished desk has become badly scratched. How can we remove these scratches and refinish the desk in a maple or walnut finish?

4. Will it harm furniture to store it in a damp basement or a hot attic? The drawers on one of our desks, which has been stored in a damp cellar, will not open. R. S. O.

1. If the chest has been waxed, removing the old wax with liquid wax and applying a fresh coat should get rid of the watermarks. For other finishes, rub with powdered pumice and linseed oil in the direction of the grain. Or rub lightly with a cloth dampened in water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

2. Have you tried using a metal polish on the spots on the brass lamp? If that wasn't effective, rub with linseed oil and rottenstone, mixed to the consistency of heavy cream, and a soft cloth. After tarnish disappears, wipe off with a clean cloth dipped in linseed oil. Wipe off excess oil with another cloth, then rub with a flannel polishing rag.

3. First, remove the old finish from the desk with varnish remover and sandpaper. Follow directions that come with the remover and sand sufficiently to smooth off the scratches. Next apply a stain, either maple or walnut. After this dries thoroughly, seal it in with a finish. Several are recommended by woodworking experts. Directions for one follow: Use clear varnish, thinning it a bit with turpentine (about one part turpentine to six parts varnish.) Use two or three coats, allowing each to dry thoroughly before applying the next. Rub with very fine sandpaper between coats. After the final coat is dry, rub first with fine pumice and linseed oil, then with rottenstone and oil. Clean off with a rag dipped in oil, later removing excess oil thoroughly with a fresh cloth. Finish with a varnish polish or by waxing. This method gives an unusually smooth, durable finish.

4. Yes, damp basements and hot attics are very poor places for storing furniture. Cellar dampness may make the wood swell (which is undoubtedly the reason the drawers in the desk stick), and in a hot attic, furniture may dry out and crack. Finishes may also be affected by these conditions, and dampness may cause molds to form.

The Carving Knife

Even the tender roast cannot be carved successfully with a dull knife and just sharpening the knife at home on a stone will not last forever. Every month or so the carving knife should be ground to a fine edge for good work.

Exercise to Slim the Midriff

By Ida Jean Kain

If you could only muster up enough will power you figure it would be no trick at all to slim off the extra 20 pounds that crowd the waist and cramp your style.

You're sure you want to slim down to normal? No fooling this time? Then that's all there is to it. Desire. You can slim down, if you want to. We all have enough will power for anything we want to do. Right?

Toning up flabby muscles helps enormously, for this brings a general feeling of determination and confidence. Have you ever noticed that on the days when you have the most energy, your will power seems equal to anything? Toned muscles build energy. The source of energy is the vital organs, but exercise of the muscles which surround the organs steps up vitality.

The quickest way to get a firm grip on your will power is to put live tone in the muscles that form the abdominal girdle. Corective calisthenics for this part of the figure can even discipline the appetite by helping to decrease the size of the stomach, inside and out.

The starting position is very important, and the beginning exercises should help to counteract gravity and restore the abdominal organs to their proper position. In fact, no vigorous exercises should be undertaken until the organs are in their normal position; then the muscles should be toned to hold them there. Please do these exercises in the order given:

Position: Take a dining room chair without arms. Lie on back on floor with your legs resting across the seat of the chair sideways, and the bend of the knees at the edge of the chair. Arms down at sides.

Movement: Pull up snugly with the muscular girdle and draw hips upward as you stretch arms back on floor overhead. Your weight is now resting on shoulders, and the legs resting on the seat of the chair. Hold. Lower hips to floor. Repeat three times. Rest in same position and repeat three more times. Do not arch the back as hips are raised, and keep a firm up and in pull on the abdominal muscles.

From this same position, bring alternate knees to chest, while pulling up and in with midsection muscles.

Position: Lying on back on floor, knees bent, soles on floor, a few inches apart. Arms down at sides, palms on floor.

Movement: With hips raised about two inches from floor, swing hips from one side to the other rhythmically, tilting upward at each side as you swing. Don't hold your breath. Try to feel the movement in the side-front abdominals as you swing. Repeat twelve times . . . relax and continue another twelve times.

Eternal Quest

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

No, it didn't take radio commercials or Hollywood movie stars to make women critical of their own appearance. Ever since the distaff gender has seen itself in the looking glass, it has wanted to do something about it. CHAMPAGNE, ORCHIDS AND MODELS will be on parade at the opening of the redecorated Mayflower Lounge on September 18. It'll be the traditional Mayflower "Champagne and Orchids Party" pushed about a month ahead of its usual date; will also mark the start of a new visiting band policy with Florian Zabach's orchestra as the first visitors. Dick Keens' band, whittled down a bit, will play the interludes. Jeanne Shirley, young and brightly talented, will be the singing star. And there'll be a highly selective fashion parade. . . . First thing to meet your eye in the newly done Lounge will be a great big mural of the Capitol by Jean Pajes. Other typical Washington scenes circle the room.

PALL MALL REOPENS. The Raleigh Hotel's elegant Pall Mall Room will open for the fall on Saturday. Oscar Davis, smooth band leader who registered so well at the Shoreham and Old New Orleans, will be there with his new orchestra. Dance music will strike up at 8:30.

BALALAIKA PLANS. Mischa Bess, owner of the Balalaika, is in New York skimming off talent cream for his opening revue which will make its bow on Thursday, September 11. He expects to latch onto a lovely Slavic dancer and a pair of rare singers . . . Grisha Gregory, the Balalaika band leader, is giving another dancing and yatching soree next Saturday. His last one was such a honey that the guests demanded an encore.

Lou Selden and Sandra Joyce who stir gallons of comedy into their juggiery, head the new Casino Royal show. Now also is Loria Leland, top stepper from New York's Music Hall. The Elaine Shaffer prettles have new dance ensembles. Songs by the indispensable Louise Lee and "Jive" Schafer.

LA CONGA TO RETURN. Milt Barrett, former operator of the Club Rayburn, writes from Manhattan that he'll soon be back in the nitery biz at his old station. He plans to rename the Rayburn, call it La Conga as in the old days. The Herbert Curbelos orchestra will probably play for La Conga's opening in a few weeks.

Garry Stevens, dreamboat singer with Tex Beneke and the Glenn Miller orchestra, was recently the guest of Sammy Ferro, leader of the Neptune Room's Tidesmen. They had a good time hashing over their grade school days together back in Los Angeles.

DINNER TIME THOUGHTS. You can be good to yourself by ordering the lamb en papiera la Greque at the Muses. Delicate cuts of lamb are enclosed with vegetables and herbs in cooking parchment, roasted slowly into a culinary delight . . . There's no end to the Italian delicacies at Ciro's. Spaghetti with clam sauce is a special treat. And Armando's antipastes are inspired . . . Sweet and pungent chicken, as concocted at the Good Earth, will tease the most persnickety appetite. And those delicate almond cookies are freshly made every day . . . A benefactor of mankind is the Uptown's owner, Walter Rancoglione. He's brought back the dollar dinner. It's fine, too,—includes barbecued beef, calves liver and a chicken salad plate . . . A hundred-odd Oriental delicacies, all impeccably prepared, are available at Ruby Foo's. You can add extra glamor to these glamorous dishes by inhaling such strange tropical drinks as the "Green Opal" and "Frozen Flamingo." . . . Vealy cutlet with almonds in one of the nice things dreamed up by Olmsted's Chef Roux.

A garden patio has been opened at Water Gate Inn. It's cool, secluded and old worldish. Green trees and ivy growing all around and the moon and stars looking down on you and your dinner date.

Egg Shampoos Restore Gloss

If your hair has been scorched by the sun, and is dry and brittle after a summer of chlorinated swimming pools, salt water and heat, start now to get your locks back to a shiny, lustrous beauty for exciting fall coiffures.

One of the best ways is to shampoo it at least once and perhaps twice a week for a few weeks until it begins to look soft. If the shampoo you have been using is too drying, try an egg cream shampoo. Prepared egg shampoos are a boon to the girl who doesn't want to get all mixed up separating whites and yolks, and who often finds a scrambled egg in her hair because she has used too-hot water when preparing her shampoo. Egg cream shampoo is usually not a soap nor a chemical but a fragrant liquid cream enriched with egg concentrate.

Before you use the egg cream shampoo, give your hair a vigorous brushing and be sure the bristles of the brush sweep your scalp right down to the ends of the hair. Then wet your hair with clear tepid water. Pour a tablespoon of your shampoo into your hand and with the fingers work it well into the scalp.

Always be sure you rinse your hair thoroughly.

Judges Named For Fairfax Election Case

Richmond, Va., Sept. 2 (AP).—Chief Justice Henry W. Holt of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today designated four judges to preside in two cases involving election contests arising from the Democratic primary on August 5.

Floridus S. Crosby, judge of the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit, was ning September 9 with Judge Paul E. Brown, and an associate, at the hearing of a contested election instituted by Robert J. McCandlish versus Edwin J. Lynch to determine the nominee in the Democratic primary election for the House of Delegates.

Judge J. Jordan Temple of the Third Judicial Circuit was designated to sit in the Circuit Court of Accomack County to hear a contested election case instituted by John E. Somers and others to determine the nominee as county treasurer in the primary election. He will sit with Judg e Jeff F. Walter and an associate. The hearing begins October 17.

McCandlish petitioned the Circuit Court to declare him the Fairfax County nominee for the House after the contest between himself and Lynch ended in a tie. Lynch later was declared the nominee by the State Board of Elections after a drawing in which his name was picked from a hat.

$800,000 Rural Road Improvement Program Is Approved by Montgomery Commissioners

An $800,000 road improvement program for the rural area of Montgomery County was approved yesterday by the county commissioners.

Almost 40 miles of rural roads will be improved under the program which contemplates expenditure of an additional $130,000 in Federal funds.

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr said last night the commissioners in executive session had approved, with only three exceptions, the program submitted a week ago by the commissioners' advisory road committee.

Projects Are Listed

Approved, McNayr said, for grading, draining and a temporary surface were: Cloppers rd., 1.4 miles, $65,000 in county funds and $65,000 in Federal funds; the Brookeville-Brighton rd., 2.5 miles, $32,500 in county funds and $32,500 in Federal funds.

Roads to be financed entirely by the county with a permanent surface and "proper" bridges, McNayr said, are: Plyers Mill rd., 1.2 miles, $45,000; Kemp Mill rd., one-half mile, $30,000, and Jones Bridge rd., 1.4 miles, $50,000.

Roads to be graded, drained and to receive a temporary surface out of county funds:

Charles Burdette rd. to Clarksburg, 3 miles, $35,000; a connection between the Laytonsville and Unity roads, 2 miles, $32,000; completion of the Groshen rd., 4 miles, $20,000; road from Brink to Goshen, 2 miles, $16,000; Woodfield-Cedar Grove rd., 1.5 miles, $25,000; Sugarland rd., 1.7 miles, $25,000; Ice House rd., 2 miles, $40,000; Martinsburg-Dickerson rd., 1.5 miles, $25,000; relocation of River rd. from Old Hershberger House to Willard rd., 2.5 miles, $25,000, and the road from Gaithersburg to Route 28, 2 miles, $25,000.

Roads to Be Repaired

Existing hard-surfaced roads to be repaired, including shoulders, out of county funds: Cloppers rd. near Old Germantown, 1 mile, $10,000; Sunshine-Brighton rd., 3 miles, $15,000; Shady Grove rd., 2.2 miles, $12,000, and the road from Gaithersburg to Tom Garrett's, 1.5 miles, $20,000.

When the committee submitted the program for 1948 construction, it pointed out that after the $800,000 bond issue was disposed there would remain an additional $700,000 for 1949 road work under the $1,500,000 bond issue authorized by the last session of the legislature.

Hamilton, Seeking Reserves, Eves Middies in Light Drill

Richmond, Va., Sept. 2 (AP).—Dr. L. J. Roper, State commissioner of health, announced today that Ronald B. Almack, 37, research analyst for the American Hospital Association, will succeed A. Gibson Howell as director of the Bureau of Hospital Survey and Construction.

Almack, who has been working in Chicago, willstart with the bureau Thursday. Howell directed the bureau on leave from Raiford Memorial Hospital at Franklin, to which he will rfeturn.

Dr. Roger said Howell would leave after a public hearing on the hospital survey and construction plan in a few weeks. The survey was expected to take about one year but was completed in less time.

The hospital survey and construction study was authorized by the General Assembly last January and operates under the State Health Department. It was created to determine approximate hospital needs during the next 15 to 20 years.

Preliminary estimates are that on a five-year basis, Virginia's needs to bring hospital facilities to the desired level would total around 30 million dollars.

Almack will work with Howell for about one month to familiarize himself with the survey and construction plans.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Alert District Liners See the (Refrigerator) Light

The other day we passed along F. D.'s question, "How can you be sure that the light in your refrigerator goes out when you shut the door?"

F. D. says that the answer (as supplied by Oklahoma's Congressman Mike Monroney) is this:

After the door has been closed for a while, feel the bulb. If it's warm, it has been burning.

The correct (Monroney) answer was supplied by Fred M. Sullivan of 1401 Eye st. nw.; A. Rothman, of 8001 Eastern ave., Silver Spring, Md.; E. Jerome Howell, of 14 Blackistone rd., and several others.

But District Liners are an ingenious lot, and they've come through with a host of other methods. For example, Alan B. Crammatte, of 1103 Trenton pl. se., says:

"Unscrew the bulb. Then you'll be sure it's off."

Valene Bradt, of 4421 Alton pl. se., suggests that you could press the button which controls the light, and see whether it works. L. C. R. postcards the same idea, as does HA 1/c Martin Bridges, of Uncle Sam's Naval Academy at Annapolis.

However, HA 1/C Rudy Filiberto, also of the Naval Academy, suggests that if you're small enough you can crawl inside and be certain. Otherwise, says he, "feel the bulb."

Clara Kearns-Preston, of 2810 Erie st. se., has a different method. She slips a knife-blade between the rubber insulation and the metal portion of the box, and if a gleam of light peeps through—the bulb is on.

She explains that she once encountered that difficulty with her refrigerator, and when the serviceman arrived to fix it, he asked in puzzled tones:

"But lady, how did you KNOW the light wasn't going out when you closed the door?"

Several District Liners thought of disconnecting all electrical appliances except the refrigerator, and then checking the meter at a time when the refrigerator motor was off.

Among those offering this suggestion were F. J. K., of 1126 16th st. nw., and "Nemmy" (who's going to marry the girl, in spite of the fact that she says she sleeps under heavy blankets in the summer time).

Several readers were quite thorough, and listed a variety of methods. Edgar F. Vandivere, of 215 E. Jefferson st., Falls Church, Va., gave the right answer plus these:

When the refrigerator isn't running, pull its electric cord out of the socket. If there's a spark, the bulb was on.

Or have somebody open and shut the door of the box while you listen to your radio. If you hear a series of clicks, the bulb was off. (But that doesn't apply to static-free F-M radios . . . advt.)

S. Burton Fisher, of 2-G Northway rd., Greenbelt, Md., is the ingenious type. He says:

"Drill a hole in the box, and stick a lucite rod through the hole. If the rod lights up, the bulb has remained on."

Sven S. Duncan, the Connecticut ave. boat man, also gave the right solution, and included an alternative. He says:

"Replace the regular bulb with a sunlamp bulb, and put the baby in the box. Open after one hour. If the baby is sunburned, there's your answer."

DEAD FISH

The rumors that the Nats are about to dispose of Stan Spence and/or Gerry Priddy bring a protest from Jean Smith, of 8601 Carroll in., Silver Spring, Md.

Jean says that these are the last two hustlers left on the squad, and that if we get rid of them our "Dead Fish" are going to be deader than ever.

I agree with Jean, but that doesn't count for much. Not once this season has Mr. Griffith asked for my advice on how to run the team.

(And look what's happened as a result.)

GAD! NOT THAT

Mrs. J. J. Coen, of 2805 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va., spots this story of extreme punishment from our esteemed afternoon contemporary:

Father Who Beat Boy Gets Year in Baltimore

It might have been worse, Mrs. Coen. He could have been sentenced to a year in Philadelphia.

Ingrid Has a Laugh on Selznick

New York.—For her current services in "St. Joan" Ingrid Bergman may net more than any other actor or actress ever has received for appearing in one movie. This is the first time that David O. Selznick, to whom she was under contract, will not share in her earnings.

Selznick naturally was reluctant to have the contract end. There was a clause whereby it could have been prolonged: If Miss Bergman was working in a picture which wasn't finished by the time the contract expired, then the expiration date was to be postponed until the picture was finished. Two days before the expiration date, Miss Bergman — completing a picture with Hitchcock—was notified to report to a different set and start shooting in another picture. If this were repeated, she'd have been under contract to Selznick forever. Miss Bergman laughed and laughed for two days, until she was free of the Selznick contract.

Max Gordon and Lou Holtz have been friends for many years. And during those years Holtz always has invested in Gordon's productions. Once, however, he was persuaded to withdraw his $15,000 investment, for which he was to receive a half-interest in the show. Some people who read the script and had seen a run-through convinced Holtz that the show would flop. He discussed it with Gordon, who confessed that he didn't know whether or not the show would be successful. Holtz withdrew his money. The show was Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth." It ran for two years. As a consolation, Gordon gave Holtz a 5 per cent interest as a gift.

If, as suggested, the House Un-American Committee invites Gary Cooper to register his complaint regarding Red influence in Hollywood, the committee members will find themselves confronting one of the most reluctant speakers they've ever encountered. Cooper is truly the Silent Man. . . Once, when some of his friends had a discussion about Da Vinci and Michelangelo, they asked him: "Gary, which was the better artist?" . . . Cooper set his jaw, gritted his teeth, stared a while in contemplation, then finally said, "Depends."

Beverly Kelly, the Ringling Circus press agent, is arranging with Rodgers and Hammerstein, the producers of "Annie, Get Your Gun," about a suitable grave for Annie Oakley. While Annie's name is emblazoned in lights over a Broadway theater marquee, her body lies in an unmarked grave in Brock, Ohio . . .

Col. Robert S. Allen is encountering Army opposition to the publication of his forthcoming "Lucky Forward." "It tells the untold story of the war in the ETO," says Allen. "Patton fought three wars there —one against the Krauts, one against the high command to fight the Krauts, and one for supplies to fight both" . . . Sam Levene has brought the script of "The Last Tycoon" to New York.

Ely Culbertson, who would rather be known as one who excels in writing than in card-playing, still has the first rejection-slip he received, when he was 16. "We regret that we must reject it," the editors wrote him, "mainly on the grounds that it is wholly unrealistic. You have omitted to provide an exit. Your short story, however, shows signs of talent and imagination, provided you yourself are sane."
